MAID'S HANDS BLOWN OFF

POLICE HERE SEEK CRIMINAL

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 29.—An "infernal machine," addressed to former United States Senator Thomas W. Hardwick and mailed in New York, exploded this afternoon when it was opened by a colored woman servant employed at the Senator's home here and blew off her hands. Mrs. Hardwick, who was standing near, was seriously burned and cut about the face and will be long recovering from the shock, in the opinion of her physician.

Senator Hardwick said that the package appeared to be a lead pencil, or something about that size. It was in a wrapper marked "Gimbel Brothers, New York," and labeled "sample."

"It is an incredible crime for which I can offer no explanation," he added. "I have no idea who the miscreant was or why he should have sought to take my life. It is just one of those outrages that beggar description."

Senator Hardwick recently moved to Atlanta to practice law.

The package, which was about six inches long and three wide, was addressed to "Senator Thomas W. Hardwick," and was directed to his former home town, Sandersville, Ga. The name and address were typewritten, but his Atlanta address was written in long hand when it was forwarded here.

Mr. Hardwick and his wife and daughter have resided in Atlanta since Congress adjourned March 4. He stated that much of his mail has been sent to Sandersville since he left the national capital, and that he some time ago directed the Postmaster at his former home to forward his mail to Atlanta.

The package was delivered at the Senator's apartment instead of his law offices, otherwise he would have been the victim. It consisted of an oblong paper box under the wrapping. Inside the box was a small piece of wood that exactly fitted. A hole had been hollowed in the centre of the wood. A lead ring was inside the hole. Officers say the explosive, which they believe was nitroglycerine, was governed by the strings, which were probably attached to a spring coil that caused the explosion when it was disturbed by the removal of the strings.

A thorough investigation was immediately begun by the police and by Assistant United States District Attorney W. Paul Carpenter, and Post Office Inspector Tomlinson and the New York police were communicated with. The police and Federal authorities here, recalling the similar outrage attempted against Mayor Ole Hanson of Seattle, are of the opinion that the mailing of the deadly package to Mr. Hardwick was the work of anarchists.

The Police Department was notified by the police of Atlanta of the sending of the bomb. Within a few minutes thereafter various agencies were at work trying to discover the perpetrator of the outrage. Inspector Cray took charge of these operations and Sergeant James J. Gegan, in charge of the bomb squad, started his men out. While the officials would not discuss the steps they had taken, it was reported that they were combing the town in search of men of known extremist tendencies who might be guilty of sending the bomb.

The use of the mails in the sending of the bomb makes the crime an offense against the Federal Government, and it was reported that both the Secret Service and the Army and Navy Intelligence Bureaus were at work on the case.

Isaac Gimbel, President of Gimbel Brothers, said last night that he attached no importance to the fact that the bombs mailed in New York to former Senator Hardwick and Mayor Ole Hanson of Seattle were wrapped in paper bearing the name of his company.

"Our store," said Mr. Gimbel, "sends out thousands of packages every day wrapped in paper bearing our name. A person who made two purchases would

League to Hold First Meeting in Washington, Wilson Presiding

PARIS, April 29.—It has been virtually decided that the first meeting of the League of Nations shall be held in Washington next October.

Plans are being made for the holding of this meeting, the first gathering to be in the East Room of the White House under the presidency of President Wilson.

Lord Robert Cecil and Colonel E. M. House and other representative men of various nations have discussed the holding of the meeting in Washington and found general approval of it among the delegates, so that it has in effect been settled upon.

The salary of Sir Eric Drummond, Secretary of the League of Nations, is to be $25,000 yearly, with a similar amount for the expenses of the office, including the clerical staff, according to the representative of Reuter's Limited.

FREIGHT HANDLERS VOTE TO WALK OUT

DEMAND HIGHER WAGES

Workers Also Want Time and a Half Before 7 in the Morning and After 5 in the Afternoon.

The 15,000 longshoremen employed on the fifty-two piers of New York City under the direction of the United States Railroad Administration will be called out on strike at 6 o'clock this morning, according to a strike vote passed last night at a meeting of the International Longshoremen and Freight Handlers' Union, held at St. Columba Hall, 331 West Twenty-fifth Street. There were 3,000 longshoremen present at the meeting last night, and they were urged by Paul Vacarelli, President of the union, to "fight to a finish."

The strike vote was said to be unanimous. Only the piers in control of the Railroad Administration will be affected, and the strike will not take in the large steamship piers. The longshoremen decided not to embarrass the incoming shipments of milk and for that reason 300 longshoremen will be permitted to handle the milk supply.

The men demand an increase from 45 to 50 cents an hour, and they also want time and a half for work before 8 o'clock in the morning and after 5 in the afternoon. Strike headquarters will be established today at 500 West Thirtieth Street. A resolution calling the men to stop work was introduced last Tuesday, but was laid on the table at the suggestion of Vacarelli, who asked for time to confer with the officials of the Railroad Administration. No reply was received in response to a letter sent at that time to Regional Director Smith, and when longshoremen on Piers 16 and 17 refused to go to work Vacarelli ordered them back. On their return, it was said that the New York Central Railroad Company, in charge of the piers, locked them out. Thereupon the men made demands on Regional Director Smith, and when their demands were not complied with they voted to strike.

It was stated at the offices of the United States Railroad Administration in the Grand Central Terminal that the object of the new demand, in violation of a recent agreement, was an endeavor to avoid the employment of men in the early hours of the morning, as permitted by the original agreement,

DIRECTS RETURN OF OCEAN CABLES TO OWNERS FRIDAY

HAS NOT CHANGED VIEWS

NO FAIR TEST YET, HE SAYS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Postmaster General Burleson today issued an order for the return of the cables to their owners next Friday, May 2. In a statement he issued he said he still firmly believed in Government ownership and operation of the telephone and telegraph systems, but as the incoming Congress apparently did not approve such a policy, there was but one course for him to pursue—to return the wires to private ownership after safeguarding legislation had been enacted.

The order returning the cables follows: Order No. 3,047.

The marine cable systems of the United States, and every part thereof, including all equipment and appurtenances thereto whatsoever, and all material and supplies, the possession, control, supervision, and operation of which was assumed by the President by his proclamation of the 2d day of November, 1918, to be exercised by and through the Postmaster General, Albert S. Burleson, are hereby returned to their respective owners, managers, Boards of Directors, or receivers, to take effect on midnight, May 2, 1919.

Representatives of the Postmaster General now operating said properties will take immediate steps to carry this order into effect.

By direction of the President:
A. S. BURLESON,
Postmaster General.

His Supplementary Statement.

Mr. Burleson's supplementary statement follows in part:

"By direction of the President, the requisite orders have been issued restoring the various cable lines to their respective owners, effective May 2, 1919. The telegraph and telephone lines will be returned to the various companies as soon as legislation can be secured from Congress safeguarding the interest of the owners thereof.

"For a number of years the Postmaster General has advocated the Government ownership of the telegraph and telephone systems and has urged that they should be blended with and become a part of the postal establishment as essential agencies of communication. As to the wisdom of this course the Postmaster General has not changed his views.

"At the time the Government took over the control of the wires extraordinary and abnormal conditions existed, resulting in a constantly increasing and very high operating cost, which has necessarily continued. The early coming of the armistice, the accentuated cost of operation and diminishing revenues, the uncertainty in the period of Government control, presented such a situation that those in charge for the

British Delegates Uphold Monroe Doctrine As Consistent With League Principles

PARIS, April 29, (Associated Press.)—The British delegation issued a series of commentaries on the covenant of the League of Nations, expressing their definite views and making some changes from the official analysis issued on Sunday. With regard to the section dealing with the Monroe Doctrine, the commentaries say:

"Article 21 makes it clear the covenant is not intended to abrogate or weaken any other agreements, so long as they are consistent with its own terms, into which members of the League may have entered or may hereafter enter for the assurance of peace. Such agreements would include special treaties for compulsory arbitration and military conventions that are genuinely defensive.

"The Monroe Doctrine and similar understandings are put in the same category. They have shown themselves in history to be, not instruments of national ambition, but guarantees of peace. The origin of the Monroe Doctrine is well known. It was proclaimed in 1823 to prevent America from becoming a theatre for intrigues of European absolutism. At first a principle of American foreign policy, it has become an international understanding, and it is not illegitimate for the people of the United States to say that the covenant should recognize that fact.

"In its essence, it is consistent with the spirit of the covenant, and, indeed, the principles of the league as expressed in Article 10 represent the extension to the whole world of the principles of this doctrine, while, should any dispute as to the meaning of the latter ever arise between the American and European Powers, the league is there to settle it."

It is particularly noted that the commentaries state that the Monroe Doctrine "has become an international understanding."

Wilson to Sail Before June 1; May Call Congress for May 15

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company

PARIS, April 29.—President Wilson now plans to leave Paris for home between May 25 and June 1. Before leaving here he will issue a proclamation calling Congress for an extra session, the date of which may be as early as May 15.

SENATORS WANT LEAGUE CHANGES

FOUR POINTS OF CRITICISM

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The groundwork for a fight on the League of Nations covenant as adopted by the Peace Conference was laid here today at conferences held by Senator Lodge, majority leader in the new Senate, and other Republicans. Senator Lodge talked with Republican confreres at his home. Later he issued a statement that the covenant would require amendment. He refrained from discussion of the alleged defects. His announcement reads:

"I am not prepared to make a statement in regard to the new draft at this moment, because I desire to examine it carefully and compare it with the former draft, and also to confer with my colleagues, for it is obvious that it will require further amendments if it is to promote peace and not endanger certain rights of the United States which should never be placed in jeopardy."

Senator Lodge, with Senator Curtis, the Republican whip, sent telegrams of warning to Republican Senators as follows:

"We suggest that Republican Senators reserve final expressions of opinion respecting the amended League covenant until the latest draft has been carefully studied and until there has been an opportunity for conference."

The telegrams gave the first indication that the Republican leaders intended to hold a conference to consider the policy as to the League of Nations to be pursued in the Senate. This conference, it is expected, will take place a day or so before Congress convenes in extra session.

Article on Monroe Doctrine.

Although Senator Lodge declined to discuss the changes he considers necessary to make the League covenant acceptable to the Senate, it was stated at the Capitol that one of his objections was based upon the phrasing of Article XXI., which is designed to safeguard the Monroe Doctrine, believing it vague. The same opinion is held by Senators Borah of Idaho, New of Indiana, Sherman of Illinois, Moses of New Hampshire, Curtis of Kansas, Johnson of California, in fact, by nearly all the Republican Senators from whom any expression has come.

Article XXI. provides that "nothing in this covenant shall be deemed to affect the validity of international engagements such as treaties of arbitration or regional understandings like the Monroe Doctrine for securing the maintenance of peace." In view of the Senatorial critics, this phraseology fails to stipulate with sufficient exactitude that the Monroe Doctrine is to be eliminated from control of the League of Nations. The words "regional understandings like the Monroe Doctrine," these Senators contend, are too general, and might be interpreted by member nations, in case of dispute, to include only understandings that follow the form of the Monroe Doctrine, while not affecting the doctrine itself.

Another criticism of Article XXI. is that the clause is confined to understandings "for securing the maintenance of peace." The Monroe Doctrine, they contend, was not framed as a peace measure, but to protect American control of the Western hemisphere, even to the point of war.

From the talk heard at the Capitol it seems evident that a hard fight will develop over Article XXI., with the view of amending it so there may be no doubt as to the elimination of the Monroe Doctrine from interference by the League. That is declared to be the plan of Senator Lodge. It was discussed in his conference with his fellow-Senators.

Notwithstanding the telegrams urging Republican Senators to withhold comment on the covenant for the present, several Senators said they did not feel bound to silence. Among these was Mr.

PREMIER WON'T LEAVE ROME

ENVOY PAGE SENDS MESSAGE

COULD NOT SIGN TREATY

Last Germans Reach Versailles Car Windows Broken on Way

VERSAILLES, April 29, (Associated Press.)—Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, German Foreign Minister; Herr Landsberg, Secretary for Publicity, Art, and Literature; Dr. Theodor Melchior, General Manager of the Warburg Bank; Herr Leinert, President of the Prussian Assembly; Herr Giesberts, Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, and Herr Schücking, Germany's plenipotentiaries to the Peace Congress, reached Vaucresson, five miles from Versailles, tonight.

The delegates, accompanied by some sixty experts, assistants and journalists, traveled in two special trains. After hearing a short address and being photographed by an army of press photographers, the Germans were conveyed to Versailles and lodged in hotels.

Several windows of the second train, which brought journalists and minor attachés, were broken as a result of a minor demonstration during the trip, but otherwise the journey passed without incident. Among those who arrived with the German Foreign Minister was Dr. Haniel von Haimhausen, former Councillor of the German Embassy at Washington.

PARIS, April 29, (Associated Press.)—Ambassador Page telegraphed from Rome today that he had gathered from Premier Orlando, in a long conference held on Monday, that the Premier did not intend to return to Paris for the signing of the Peace Treaty. The Premier expressed regret that the time was so short before the arrival of the Germans.

This is only one of the disturbing complications presented by the Italian situation as the time approaches for the delivery of the Peace Treaty to the Germans.

The Italian Premier, the telegram from Ambassador Page added, felt that his action either way would have serious consequences, but it was better to have trouble from without Italy rather than from within Italy, because the present state of public feeling in that country would not justify the signing of a treaty which did not include Italian aspirations.

Ambassador Page said he had taken steps to have the Italian authorities suppress manifestations directed against President Wilson. As a result one of the principal demonstrations in Rome was given up.

Should Premier Orlando not return for the signing of the treaty, it would give the situation a more serious aspect than the departure of the Italian delegation, for the Allies would be required to take final action without the participation of Italy. While there is every desire to avoid this result, the indications are that the Allies will proceed with the signing of the treaty if Italy decides against participation.

The final draft of the treaty is virtually completed. The men in charge of the work say they have no doubt that they will be able to finish it by Thursday or by such time as delivery is made. The latest count shows a total of 80,000 words in the treaty.

An official summary of 10,000 words has been made. It is in such shape that it could be made public at once, but the intention is to hold it for publication throughout the world at about the same time that the treaty is delivered to the Germans. The various Governments are cabling this summary everywhere for simultaneous release when authorization is given by the Conference.

Lloyd George Sends Special Envoy to Orlando To Warn Him Not to Insist on Fiume Cession

PARIS, April 29, (Associated Press.)—The British Prime Minister has again intervened in the Italian situation by sending one of his trusted associates to communicate personally with Premier Orlando in Rome.

While the British desire is to conciliate Signor Orlando, he is advised against the inclusion of Fiume under Italian control as likely to make a settlement difficult, if not impossible.

LODGE SUPPORTS ITALIAN CLAIM

NEEDED FOR PROTECTION

Believes That Italy Should Have Military and Naval Control of the Adriatic.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—In telegrams dispatched today to organizations and individuals in Boston, Senator Lodge, who will be Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee on the reorganization of the Senate, took issue with President Wilson in the latter's insistence that Italy should abandon her claim to Fiume. Senator Lodge said that as the people of Fiume have indicated their preference to join with Italy and as Italy has taken possession of Fiume as one of the fruits of war the Italian Government should be allowed to keep it.

Mr. Lodge stated that Italy maintains that possession of Fiume is necessary for her protection against future invasion from Germany. From the viewpoint of national safety and protection alone, he argued, the Italian Government ought to be permitted to retain the Adriatic port.

Senator Lodge's telegram was directed to Dr. Rocco Brindisi, President of the Dante Alighieri Society; Saverio Romano, President of the Federation Figli di Italia; Antnony Laureana, President of the Federated Columbus Republican Clubs, and Pasquale Galassi of the State Immigration Board, and others. It read:

"April 29, 1919.

"Gentlemen: In the discussions of the terms of peace I have always declared that the region known as Italia Irredenta and all adjoining regions where Italian culture and Italian population are dominant, should be returned to Italy, and that Italy should have military and naval control of the Adriatic not only for her own protection but as an essential barrier against any future attempt of Germany to attack the rest of the world as she did in the recent war. I have also said repeatedly that the Jugoslavs ought to have access to the Adriatic, which I regard as economically essential to their independence.

"To both these opinions I adhere, and I can see no reason why the matter could not have been arranged. From information given me by an Italian deputation whom I saw last Spring in Washington I was assured that Italy was entirely willing to give portions of the Dalmatian coast containing good ports, to the Slav population of that region. If this be true, as I have no doubt it is, I cannot see why this arrangement should not have been made.

"The pact of London, according to the President's statement, provided for the return of Fiume to Croatia, but the dissolution of the Austrian Empire has vitally changed the situation contemplated by the secret treaty of London, and to that secret treaty the United States was not a party. I repeat that I think Italy should make arrangements to secure an access to the Adriatic to the Slavic populations which I hope will form a united independent barrier State.

"As to Fiume, if Italy is of the opinion that it is necessary to her safety and for her protection that she should hold Fiume, I am clearly of the opinion that it should be hers, especially as the people of Fiume, I understand, have voted to join with Italy. Italy regards Fiume as the founders of our own republic regard the mouth of the Mississippi when it was said that any other nation holding the mouth of the Mississippi was of necessity an enemy of the United States.

"That which we desire to do for the Slavs is purely commercial and economic. Italy's demand for Fiume rests on the ground of national safety and protection. Italy has fought side by side with France, England, and the United States and has helped enormously in repelling the German onset. She has sacrificed a half million of her people. She has burdened herself with heavy debts. She has suffered grievously in her industries and in her food supply. She has taken possession of Fiume, which was part of the enemy territory, by her victory in the war. I do not see how the United States and the other nations with whom she was allied can properly refuse her request.

"I earnestly hope that Fiume may become an Italian possession so as to give her that security to which her armies and her sacrifice entitle her.

"Very truly yours,
"H. C. LODGE."

BOSTON, April 29.—Members of the Massachusetts delegation in Congress were asked in a telegram today, signed by leading Italians in this city, to support Italy in the Fiume controversy.

INSISTED FIUME BE INTERNATIONAL

WAS PRESENTED APRIL 14

President Held Italy Gained Great Historic Object Her People Long Had in Mind.

PARIS, April 29, (Associated Press.)—A statement was issued tonight dealing with the memorandum sent by President Wilson to the Italian delegation on April 14, with permission to make it public in Italy, and which was given out today in Rome.

There is no question to which I have given more careful or anxious thought than I have given to this, because in common with all my colleagues it is my earnest desire to see the utmost done for Italy.

Throughout my consideration of it, however, I have felt that there was one matter in which I had no choice and could wish to have none. I felt bound to square every conclusion that I should reach as accurately as possible with the fourteen principles of peace which I set forth in my address to the Congress of the United States on the 8th of January, 1918, and in subsequent addresses.

These fourteen points and the principles laid down in the subsequent addresses were formally adopted with only a single reservation by the powers associated against Germany and will constitute the basis of peace with Germany. I do not feel at liberty to suggest one basis for peace with Germany and another for peace with Austria.

It will be remembered that in reply to a communication from the Austrian Government offering to enter into negotiations for an armistice and peace on the basis of the fourteen points to which I have alluded I said that there was one matter to which those points no longer applied. They had demanded autonomy for the several States which had constituted parts of the Austro-Hungarian Empire, and I pointed out that it must now be left to the choice of the people of these several countries what their destinies and political relations should be.

They have chosen with the sympathy of the whole world to be set up as independent states. Their complete separation from Austria and the complete dissolution of the Austro-Hungarian empire has given a new aspect and significance to the settlements which may be effected with regard, at any rate, to the eastern boundaries of Italy.

Personally, I am quite willing that Italy should be accorded along the whole front of her northern frontier, and wherever she comes into contact with Austrian territory, all that was accorded her in the so-called pact of London, but I am of the clear opinion that the pact of London can no longer apply to the settlement of her eastern boundaries.

The line drawn in the pact of London was conceived for the purpose of establishing an absolutely adequate frontier of safety for Italy against any possible hostility or agression on the part of Austria. But Austria-Hungary no longer exists. These astern frontiers will touch countries stripped of the military and naval power of Austria, settled in interdependence of Austria and organized for the purpose of satisfying legitimate national aspirations, and created States not hostile to the new European order, but arising out of it, interested in its maintenance, dependent upon the cultivation of friendship and bound to a common policy of peace

ORLANDO DEFENDS DEMANDS

KNEW AMERICAN ATTITUDE

SOCIALISTS ALONE OPPOSE

Press Says Delegation Can Now Return to Paris and Resume Negotiations.

ROME, April 29, (Associated Press.)—The Chamber of Deputies tonight voted confidence in the Cabinet by a count of 382 to 40, the latter votes being cast by Socialists.

The vote followed an address by Premier Orlando which was constantly interrupted by applause and ended in an ovation in the Chamber, even the Tribunes joining.

"Now the Italian delegation can return to Paris with increased authority to continue peace negotiations," was the dominant note in comment tonight on the vote of confidence given to the Cabinet.

This point of view stands out especially in the Tribuna, which says:

"Supported by this vote, our delegates will soon return to Paris, their authority increased and multiplied in a proportion corresponding to the doubts expressed as to the authenticity and fullness of their powers.

"President Wilson appealed to the Italian people and members of Parliament. Their answer is unmistakable. If Mr. Wilson desired to make such an appeal, he must intend to take the answer into account, so the decision of the Italian people must exercise on him its logical and natural effect.

"Otherwise it would be useless to ask the opinion of peoples, if he who thus appeals is ready only to accept the verdict if it coincides with his original view."

Former Premier Luzzatti followed the Premier and was also unanimously applauded, except by the intransigeant Socialists, whose spokesman, Deputy Turati, explained why the Socialists could not give a vote of confidence to the Cabinet.

Situation Grave, Says Premier.

In making his speech before the Deputies Premier Orlando admitted that the world situation at the present was grave and for Italy "very grave," and that it was the duty of Italy "to preserve the greatest calm and serenity."

He said in part:

"This statement aims to be only an impartial declaration of facts, so that Parliament may have all the elements necessary to pass judgment on the work of the Government and of the Italian delegation at the Peace Conference, as well as on the situation created by the last painful events.

"I think it opportune to recall briefly the attitude of the Italian delegation in that phase of the negotiations which began about the middle of March. At that time the preparatory work was finished and a program for definite deliberation had to be decided upon. Questions concerning peace with Germany were given precedence, but it was agreed that those regarding Italy should follow immediately.

Premier Orlando said that all through the period of negotiation to frame peace terms with the Germans the relations of the Italian delegation with the allied and associated powers could not have been more amicable or cordial. He added:

"If it was possible to deduce from our conversations the divergencies of views between the Governments, and, above all, between the Italians and Americans, there never had been reason to believe these divergencies were absolutely irreconcilable, but up to the time of handing over the memorandum on April 14 by President Wilson, setting forth the American view, assurances had been given that the American delegation had not reached a definite decision regarding the Italian question."

Thought Divergences Could Be Settled.

"There were certainly divergencies of views between the two Governments, (Italy and the United States,) but never did I believe that such differences were irreconcilable. Indeed, until April 14, when the American memorandum was delivered to us, I had always been assured that the American delegation had not reached any definite conclusions regarding us. Several times I stated with firmness consistent with courtesy that the program of the Italian territorial claims was based on essential cardinal points of acceptance, which was an absolute condition for the Italian Government."

"This is, synthetically, the history of the activity of the Italian delegation from the middle of March to April 13, when the convocation of the German delegates was agreed upon, with a reserve provision.

"On April 14 I had two long conversations with President Wilson in which the whole Italian territorial question was profoundly discussed. Mr. Wilson concluded by handing me a memorandum, saying it represented the decision of the American Government on the question and authorizing me to communicate the same to the Italian Parliament. I have distributed it today to all members.

"President Wilson's message prevented us from refusing, as well as accepting, any proposal without first appealing to the Italian people and Parliament, which alone, and nobody else, are entitled to pass judgment on the conduct and responsibility of the Italian Government.

"This, therefore, is my duty—to ask before this National Assembly whether the Italian Government and delegation, acting as they did, were faithful interpreters of the thought and will of Parliament and the country.

The Anglo-French View.

"The point of view of England and France can be summed up as follows: They have always recognized with perfect loyalty the pledge of honor contained in the Treaty of Alliance between them and Italy, intending faithfully to respect it, but they have declared that as that treaty does not include, and indeed excludes, Fiume from the Italian claims, they do not concur with Italy on this question.

"They would only admit the principle of making Fiume an independent free State, on condition, however, that this would occur as a compromise and not as an addition to the integral execution of the conditions of the treaty.

"It only remains for me to further expound the Italian viewpoint. Italy firmly believes, before all, that her aspirations, as I set them forth in my answer to President Wilson's message, are founded on such high and solemn reasons of justice and right that they should be integrally accepted, even putting aside any international treaty or agreement. I need not repeat the reasons of historic right and national solidarity which are engraved in the heart of every Italian so that they become an absolute part of our nature.

"I wish, however, to repeat a simple fact, to wit: That if all Italy's aspirations were accepted in their entirety, Italy would have, in proportion to her population, a number of inhabitants inferior to those assigned to other States as a consequence of the war. Therefore, the accusation of entertaining imperialistic sentiments grieves and offends us.

This nation, which certainly has given no proofs of cupidity in discussing the billions, requested for reparations, and which has shown no excessive signs of emotion one way or another, even when vast and rich territories had to be distributed in Africa and Asia among belligerents and which has demonstrated that she prefers sentiment to utility until her attitude was a fault, has given the highest proof that she was fighting for her sacred rights.

"Regaining in this hour all her energies and will and finding her reserves of enthusiasm and sacrifice inexhaustible, Italy has made it not a question of billions, nor colonies, nor rich territories, but the suffering cry of her own brothers.

"Regarding relations between us and our allies, we esteem and love the generous people of France and England and the Governments which represent them. Perhaps we love and esteem them too much, so that we may not be sure that we will realize our rights, which come from contracts which pledge them and their honor. It must also be considered that in making these relations there is a sentiment which must be maintained between friend and friend, and Italy, perhaps, measured according to her contract the extent of the sacrifices which the war imposed."

Premier Orlando said that Italy believed that her claims were founded on such high reasons of justice and right that any international treaty or agreement should be set aside so that they might be accepted.

Luzzatti Backs Premier.

Following Premier Orlando, Professor Luigi Luzzatti, as spokesman for the Majority Party in the Chamber, declared that the Allies had never rewarded Italy's sacrifices as they deserved to be rewarded. Italy's restoration, he added, ought at least to be equal to that of the other Allies.

"Too much blood has been shed and too many sacrifices, both for the present and for the future have we made," continued Professor Luzzatti, "for us not to be entitled to demand that our sons along the Adriatic shall be able to feel themselves under the protection of their longed for motherland."

The speaker declared that it was the duty of all the Deputies to rally round the Government.

The speaker said that President Wilson's message had hurt every Italian heart, and that the Chamber must give a firm and clear reply which would constitute a renewed expression of its confidence in the Government

Deputy Turati, the official leader of the Socialist Party, declared that the Socialists would not only be defenders of the sacred right of self-determination in the case of Fiume, but also of the equally sacred right of revolutionary Russia.

"For the same reason," continued Signor Turati, "we cannot range ourselves with the Socialists of other States, who, in accordance with the Entente ideology, have applauded the new African and Asiatic empire of Great Britain, American domination in Europe, and the occupation of the Sarre region, where there is not a soul who speaks French, just as in Fiume there is not a soul who does not speak Italian."

DEMAND SOCIALIST PEACE.

Committee Will Press Berne Conference as Basis at Paris.

AMSTERDAM, April 29.—The International Socialist Conference, in session at Arnhem, has adopted a resolution opposing any peace in contradiction of President Wilson's Fourteen Points. In view of the uneasiness caused by the decisions at the Paris conference, it is announced, the Socialist organization will send its Executive Committee to Paris to demand an interview with the Council of Four, and will insist upon the necessity of a solution in conformity with the decisions of the Berne conference.

This committee is composed of Hjalmar Branting of Sweden, Camille Huysmans of Belgium, Secretary of the Socialist Internationale; Arthur Henderson, British labor leader; Pierre Renaudel, member of the French Chamber of Deputies; Jean Longuet, leader of the French Minority Socialists; James Ramsay MacDonald, British Laborite, and G. H. Stuart Bunning, Secretary of the British Postmen's Federation.

The conference passed a resolution that Palestine should be an independent State and be admitted to the League of Nations.

ROME CROWDS DEMAND ANNEXATION OF FIUME

ROME, April 28.—Demonstrations in Rome today in support of the Government's stand on the Adriatic question culminated in a great mass meeting, convoked by Prince Colonna, the Mayor, on the Capitoline hill. The citizens gathered at the meeting passed unanimously a resolution asking the annexation of all territory given to Italy by the Treaty of London, and also Fiume. The resolution also urged the Government to remember the "sufferings and hope of Spalato and Trau."

The assemblage took a solemn oath to remain united while the famous Capitoline bell was rung. Prince Colonna presided at the meeting and municipal officials attended.

A procession afterward went to the Quirinal, where the King and Queen appeared on the balcony of the palace. With them were soldiers who had been wounded in the war. The crowd cheered and cried: "Fiume! Dalmatia!"

PARIS PRESS IS COOL TO REVISED COVENANT

PARIS, April 29.—The covenant of the League of Nations arouses little enthusiasm in the press of this city. Indeed, many of the principal newspapers abstain from comment altogether. L'Oeuvre, which has always been a champion of the League and of President Wilson, says:

"Speaking generally, we are bound to say the covenant of the League of Nations causes a certain amount of disappointment. Its twenty-six articles constitute really the statutes of the League of Governments to safeguard their territorial sovereignty, and are not the new charter of the law of nations which had been hoped for."

The newspaper thinks that the resignation shown by Belgium, Japan, and France must be due to promises or special guarantees which will be known, perhaps, "when diplomacy is no longer secret."

All the newspapers say that great concessions were made by France. Some of the journals go so far as to declare that these concessions amount to a surrender. As a whole, however, the press expresses the hope that later amendments will result in satisfying what are regarded as the legitimate claims of France and the other countries which, as the Havas Agency summary of the comment words it, "showed their moderation by abstaining from insisting yesterday upon an immediate vote" on the changes in the covenant which they were advocating.

FOUR VICTORIES FOR WILSON.

Stephen Lauzanne Thus Views Action of Plenary Session.

PARIS, April 29.—Commenting on the plenary session of the Peace Conference, Stephen Lauzanne says in the Matin this morning that the disposal of the four new points brought up marked the capitulation of France, Japan and Belgium and victory for the United States, or "four personal victories for President Wilson."

"Japan," says Lauzanne, "gave the signal to retreat," when Makino said he would not insist on the immediate acceptance of the equality of races clauses. In commenting on Hyman's acceptance of the failure of Belgium to get the seat of the League, Lauzanne says there was not even an effort of oratory to cover the retreat. As to the submission of Bourgeois and Pichon on the cherished French project to strengthen the military supervision of the League, Lauzanne says:

"It is the third victory, blow after blow, which makes the league as Wilson has conceived, willed, and built it.

"Then comes his fourth triumph in saving the adopted famous clause destined to satisfy the American Senate and perpeuate the Monroe Doctrine. It passes without discussion. It passes with unanimity, as would any other clause demanded by the President of the United States."

At the session Bourgeois said in private conversation to Lauzanne:

"We have built a shaky house, open to all the winds which come. It is necessary greatly to strengthen it if we wish it to stand."

"Alas, yes," writes Lauzanne. "The French people have dreamed of a far different structure, less loftily placed upon cloudy heights, more solid at the base, a building better sustained against attack and insult, better safeguarded against the stranglers of civilization."

Ambassador Tells Orlando Wilson Is Misinterpreted.

ROME, April 29, (Associated Press.)—Thomas Nelson Page, the American Ambassador, visited Premier Orlando today. The two men had a friendly conversation, in which the Ambassador expressed regret at the situation that had arisen.

The Ambassador said he thought the situation had been aggravated by Italian newspaper criticism based on a wrong interpretation of President Wilson's attitude, and added that all those interested in preserving good relations between the two countries should do their best to prevent such disturbing factors from having play.

Premier Orlando, in reply, said he considered the situation very serious, but that his desire was to ameliorate it and restore calm. The Premier said he deeply regretted that the incident had occurred and had been much disturbed over it.

NO SUPER-STATE IN NEW COVENANT

POWERS OF THE COUNCIL

Greatest the World Has Known, but to be Exercised Only by Unanimous Vote.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

By Wireless and Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 28.—The League of Nations was born this afternoon at the plenary session of the Peace Conference under conditions of the greatest harmony. While Japan gave notice of an amendment, asserting the principle of nondiscrimination on account of race equality, it was not pressed, and France, after reiterating her proposals for the control of armaments and military measures to carry out obligations under the covenant, did not move their incorporation.

The covenant was adopted without an amendment, save one clarifying change. President Wilson's motions to elect Sir James Eric Drummond, private secretary of Arthur J. Balfour, Permanent Secretary General of the League, and making Belgium, Brazil, Greece, and Spain temporary representatives of the smaller nationalities on the Governing Council, were also carried without dissent.

The Conference agreed to resolutions to give effect to recommendations for ameliorating the conditions of labor throughout the world. It was intended to ask the Conference to approve articles to the Peace Treaty providing for the trial of the ex-Kaiser by a tribunal appointed by France, Great Britain, Japan, Italy, and the United States, but for an unexplained reason this matter was not brought up. The proposed articles provide that Holland surrender the former Kaiser and require Germany to give up persons accused of crimes against the laws and customs of war.

Careful to Avoid a Super-State.

April 27.—Throughout the revision of the covenant its framers have been careful to keep it from providing for the creation of a super-State. After long discussion and some revision it has emerged in its new form as a solemn agreement between sovereign nations which consent to limit their freedom of action on certain points for the greater good of the world and themselves. Free consent in future, as well as now, is the keynote of the covenant. It was agreed that hard and fast rules were not feasible or desirable. The success of the League must depend upon the public opinion of the world.

Those who are most interested in the success of the League concede that the covenant is only the foundation for a better and more practical League. They do not doubt that exchanges in the future between members of the League through the medium of the Council—as it is called in the revised document, instead of the Executive Council, as in the original covenant—and the Assembly—the new name given to what was termed the body of delegates in the first covenant—will perfect this great world organization so as to enable it—to quote President Wilson—to make the world a better place to live in.

It is pointed out today by some of those who took a prominent part in framing the convenant that the Assembly under the old covenant was the supreme organ of the League of Nations; but, as it was realized that a large body, comprising perhaps 150 members, whose decisions require the unanimous assent of about fifty nations, was not practicable for working purposes, and less so for dealing with emergencies requiring quick decision, those who drafted the convenant provided for the organization of a Council representing the real, potent, organized political power of the world.

Powers of the Council.

This Council will consist of one representative each of America, France, the British Empire, Italy, and Japan, with four members representing all the other nationalities. The Council will have greater authority than any body the world has ever seen. While its decisions are seemingly merely recommendations, the covenant framers have provided for its creation on the theory that, when recommendations come from the chief men of the five greatest powers and four others representing the rest of the world, their unanimous views can hardly fail to be adopted by all concerned. The Council is to meet once a year, but there will be representatives of its members permanently at the seat of the League, Geneva, who will be in close touch with one another and will obtain and create a common point of view.

The views of the Council must be unanimous. Any one member can prevent the action recommended by the others. In this way the sovereignty of every nation is preserved. But those who are most concerned for the success of the League hold that if there is a desire to agree an agreement will be certain, or the minority will acquiesce in the view of the majority. In this connection it is pointed out by those competent to speak with authority in international affairs that there would be little practical advantage and much danger in permitting a majority of the Council to vote down one of the great powers. Four representatives of the smaller nationalities could do this by joining with the other great powers.

Efforts to Meet American Objections.

The provisions concerning unanimous agreement were made clearer in the redrafted covenant so as to meet the objections voiced mainly in America. The framers of the covenant point to Article XXI. as showing that the covenant is not intended to weaken or abrogate other agreements now in existence or made hereafter, so long as they are consistent with the terms of the covenant, and provided that they are intended to give further assurance of peace. These agreements may include special treaties for compulsory arbitration and purely defensive military arrangements. It is declared that in so far as the Monroe Doctrine tends to that end, its validity cannot be affected by the covenant.

Admission is made that while the Monroe Doctrine forbids interference by individual European Governments in American affairs, it cannot be invoked to limit action of the League of Nations, which has world-wide application. The interpretation is also advanced that the principles expressed in Article X. extend to the entire world Monroe's great principle. In this connection it is stated by some of those prominent in framing the covenant that should any dispute arise between America and European Government the League will be at hand to effect a settlement.

The covenant is drawn so as to provide a loose organization in accordance with President Wilson's original ideas. It is believed that no hard and fast binding arrangement was feasible. Many, if not most, of the changes made were the result of criticisms and suggestions in the United States. To overcome these, President Wilson had the advice and assistance of such men as William H. Taft, Elihu Root, and Oscar S. Straus, and careful attention was paid to the suggestions made by members of the Senate. A large number of changes in phraseology to give the document greater legal weight and clearness were made in accordance with suggestions contained in the speech of Senator Knox.

Provisions for Preventing War.

The most important parts of the covenant relate to provisions for preventing war. These provisions concern limitations of armaments; mutual guarantees of territory and independence; the admission that any circumstance threatening international peace is an international affair; agreement not to go to war until a peaceful settlement has been attempted; machinery for obtaining a peaceful settlement, which includes publicity of appropriate information, and sanctions employed to discipline nations violating the agreement. These provisions are all new and form one of the most important, if not the most important feature of the covenant.

Special attention is directed to Article VIII., which makes it plain that the League, through its Council or any other body, will not attempt to dictate the size of national armed forces. It is the understanding, however, that the formation of the League will be followed by a general disarmament convention.

It is with these facts in mind that I have approached the Adriatic question. It is commonly agreed, and I very heartily adhere to the agreement, that the ports of Trieste and Pola, and with them the greater part of the Istrian Peninsula, should be ceded to Italy, her eastern frontier running along the natural strategic line established by the physical conformation of the country—a line which it has been attempted to draw with some degree of accuracy on the attached map.

Within this line on the Italian side will lie considerable bodies of non-Italian populations, but their fortunes are so naturally linked by the nature of the country itself with the rest of the Italian people that I think their inclusion is fully justified.

There would be no justification in my judgment in including Fiume, or any part of the coastline to the south of Fiume, within the boundaries of the Italian kingdom. Fiume is by situation and by all the circumstances of its development not an Italian, but an international, port serving the countries to the east and north of the Gulf of Fiume.

Just because it is an international port and cannot with justice be subordinated to any one sovereignty, it is my clear judgment that it should enjoy a very considerable degree of genuine autonomy, and while it should be included no doubt within the customs system of the new Jugoslavic State, it should nevertheless be left free in its own interest, and in the interest of the States lying about it, to devoted itself to the service of the commerce which naturally and inevitably seeks an outlet or inlet at its port.

The States which it serves will be new States. They will have complete confidence in their access to an outlet on the sea. The friendship and the connections of the future will largely depend upon such an arrangement as I have suggested, and friendship, cooperation and freedom of action must underlie every arrangement of peace if peace is to be lastnig.

I believe there will be common agreement that the Island of Lissa should be ceded to Italy, and that she should retain the port of Volpna. I believe that it will be generally agreed that the fortifications which the Austrian Government established upon the islands near the eastern coast of the Adriatic should be permanently dispensed with under international guarantee, and that the disarmament which is to be arranged under the League of Nations should limit the States on the eastern coast of the Adriatic to only such minor naval forces as are necessary for policing the waters of the islands and the coast. These are conclusions which I am forced to by compulsion of the understandings which underly the whole initiation of the present peace.

No other conclusions seem to be susceptible to being rendered concise with these understandings. They were understandings accepted by the whole world, and bear with peculiar compulsion upon the United States, because the privilege was accorded her of taking the initiative of bringing about the negotiations for peace, and her plans underly the whole difficult business.

And certainly Italy obtains under such a settlement the great historic object which her people have so long had in mind. The historical wrongs inflicted upon her by Austria-Hungary and by a long series of unjust transactions, which I hope will before long sink out of the memory of man, are completely redressed. Nothing is denied her which will complete her national unity.

Here and there upon the islands of the Adriatic and upon the eastern coast of that sea there are settlements containing large Italian elements of population, but the pledge under which the new States enter the Family of Nations will abundantly safeguard the liberty, the development and all the just rights of national and racial minorities, and back of these safeguards will always lie the watchful authority of the League of Nations.

And at the very outset we shall have avoided the fatal error of making Italy's nearest neighbors on her east her enemies and nursing just such a sense of injustice as has disturbed the peace of Europe for generations together and played no small part in bringing on the terrible conflict through which we have just passed.

TIME LOST IN CONCILIATION

Suggestion That the Time Has Arrived for a Return to His Earlier Position.

PARIS, April 28.—On the face of it, we seem to be meeting the Germans under adverse circumstances. One of our allies has withdrawn from the Conference, and another is presenting a case with many points of similarity to that of the first, and may decide to withdraw if the decision goes against it. There remain three of the five Governments united, but this union is not so close as might be wished. Premier Clemenceau shared President Wilson's sentiments on the Italian question, but had his doubts as to issuing the pronunciamento at this time, and his "scrap of paper" cable to Rome shows his willingness to court Italian favor at the expense of the President. The British Premier, too, is showing some disposition to jockey the situation. As this is the way the game is habitually played in European diplomatic controversies, nobody is complaining, but the facts are mentioned in connection with the approaching meeting with the Germans.

There is a matter much more serious than the Italian situation and the lack of unity among Government heads on that subject. In the effort to clean up the Chino-Japanese situation a nest of secret treaties has been discovered. These treaties were probably made under more or less duress. No matter. Regardless of the circumstances of their making and the world interest of today, it is only necessary to shout "Scrap of paper" to prevent any reopening or reconsideration on their merits of the questions involved.

Wilson's Strong Cards.

If everybody had come here with the one idea of bringing about world peace and doing it quickly, the job would have been finished two months ago. The literal fact is that everybody came determined to get all he could for his particular country. America alone wanted nothing and in this position has been faithfully represented by President Wilson. In the midst of the tumult of self-interest, a disinterested voice soon palls; but Wilson has had and still has some very strong cards. He represents a country that has money and men. He would not last long in the present temper of Europe but for the fact that his particular resources are very much needed by all European countries, and the result will be that, however stale his abstractions may become upon their ears, the Europeans will never permit him to go home without coming to an agreement.

Within the next few days President Wilson must decide whether he can adopt the policy of his Italian decision all the way through or must accept the policy of compromise which some of his advisers urge upon him. Nobody can doubt what he would personally prefer. His greatest desire is to come out of the European affair with an unmistakable victory over militarism. Militarism is not confined to Germany. Indeed, since Nov. 11, it has been showing its head in many other countries.

Difficult to Oppose France.

Undoubtedly Mr. Wilson's ambition, so far as it is possible to realize it in this Peace Conference, is to organize the world against military tendencies. This is his aim in the Adriatic, as it is in Shantung. The President undoubtedly had the same idea about France. He felt that she had nobly and successfully defended herself, and that the peace should be in keeping with self-defense and not express victory that meant future aggression. With Alsace-Lorraine recovered and reparation from Germany, France would be in the best possible position. She would have the world prestige that she had won by defeating the invader, and if Germany dared at any time in future to attack France again she would find civilization united against her more promptly and solidly than in the late war.

It was very difficult, however, to oppose France in her policy of security by military means and aggressive measures. France having obtained approximately what she asked, other countries were immediately strengthened in their demands. What the Italians talked most about was the extent to which the Council of Four had yielded to France in contrast to its firmness against Italy. Of course the same argument applies to Japan and Great Britain. The result of it all has been that one man with no interests has had to try to stand up against four others with large interests, to say nothing of scores of minor claimants.

If it had been possible to conduct the various discussions publicly there would undoubtedly have been created in the world a sentiment that would have shown the ridiculousness of a general settlement on the basis of trying to give each fellow whatever he wanted. There was always the objection that Germany would profit by these discussions, and there was the ever-present danger of the overthrow of the European Premiers by their Parliaments.

First Real Trial of Publicity.

The President's Italian pronunciamento is the first real trial of the principle of publicity in the conference. While it has created superficial disunion, there are signs of the rallying of the moral forces in support of the President. The French Labor unions have promptly indorsed him, and in such terms as leave no room for doubt. Those who are in a position to judge French public sentiment believe that the labor unions speak for it by and large. It is believed that the British masses are similarly sympathetic. The President's clear call is a return to the position taken by him when he first came to Europe, which was so spontaneously approved by the masses of the people.

In the meantime the President and his colleagues have disappeared into the mazes of consultation and conciliation, and the hope of a grand peace that would stamp out militarism and end war has been fading from the hearts of the people. The President has been surrounded by influences that operated against anything in the nature of heroic measures. Those with selfish enterprises have come back every morning with a fresh will, and President Wilson's own advisers have been counselors of moderation and conciliation; and, finally, some people believe that he has been perhaps deterred from backing more boldly his own convictions, as expressed in so many State papers, by fear of losing his fight for the League of Nations.

It is something of a disadvantage for a man to go into a battle with his baby in his arms; but all who have worked with the President say that he has tackled every question independently, leaving the League to stand on its own merits.

CORRECT COVENANT TEXT.

More Minor Changes Received by State Department by Cable.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—A correction of the text of the covenant of the League of Nations received by cable at the State Department today made the first sentence of Article V. read:

"Except where otherwise expressly provided in this covenant or by the terms of this treaty, decisions at any meeting of the Assembly or Council shall require the agreement of all the members of the League represented at the meeting."

The words "or by the terms of this treaty" are added.

Borah, who remarked, incidentally, that no telegram from Mr. Lodge or Mr. Curtis had come to him.

"I think there will be some talk on the League," said Mr. Borah. "I take the telegrams to apply only to those Senators who have not had an opportunity to analyze the draft and compare it with the original. I do not regard it as an attempt to stifle the criticism of those who have opposed it all along, and who have not hesitated to express their views."

Among Republican Senators there appeared to be a deep-seated impression that the covenant would be amended in the Senate or rejected. Leaders declared that of the thirty-nine Republican Senators who signed the "round robin" against the League most would retain their ground, in which case the two-thirds vote necessary for ratification could not be obtained.

In other quarters, however, it was stated that many of the thirty-nine, convinced that the League of Nations was wanted by the American people and that the redrafted covenant would safeguard American interests, would vote for it. It is impossible to make an intelligent forecast at this time, as thus far not more than a dozen Republican Senators have expressed any view of the redraft. Most of them are at their homes.

From comment heard at the Capitol it appears that opposition to the covenant is being focused upon four assertions:

1. That the covenant fails to safeguard the Monroe Doctrine.
2. That the problem of immigration to the United States is not vested in American control, but may go to the League of Nations as a justiciable question, if a dispute should arise over it.
3. That Article X., binding members of the League to "preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all members" might oblige the United States to enter into disputes over territory between European nations and go to war, if the League should decide to support a contesting nation.
4. That under Article XI. any dispute among nations may be interpreted by the Council of Nine to constitute a "threat of war" and that the immigration problem, the Monroe Doctrine, and other matters regarded as purely American might be thrown into this category.

Borah Scents Treason.

"To my mind, the adoption of the covenant with Article X. in it would be treason," he declared. "Under Article X. the United States would be obliged, along with other members of the League, to undertake to protect all the members from external aggression against their territorial intergity and existing political independence. Under this provision the United States would be perpetually dragged into the territorial quarrels of European nations. Our men might be called upon to fight in wars in which this country would not have a particle of interest.

"Unless Article X. is taken out of the covenant, the whole document ought to be rejected without further consideration. It is the most infamous character of entangling alliance ever conceived.

"Another feature of this covenant that ought to come out is Article XI., touching upon a dispute that may be regarded as a threat of war. Under this article there is not an affair of national import that the United States now has, or any other nation has, under its own control which could not be determined by the League of Nations. Questions could be raised as to immigration or anything else and thrown at once to the League of Nations. Any dispute, under Article XI., could be taken by the League to constitute a threat of war.

"As to Article XXI., which pretends to safeguard the Monroe Dictrine, the phraseology is so vague that it means absolutely nothing. It must be clarified if the Monroe Doctrine is to be preserved. President Wilson, in his statement last night at Paris, merely referred to Article XXI. as 'new.' He did not undertake to explain it. The fact is, probably, that the article as it appears was all that the President could get the delegates of European powers to accept. That may explain his failure to attempt any explanation of it."

Senator Borah made his criticism after a talk with Senator Lodge, which he characterized as "entirely satisfactory."

Senator New of Indiana agreed that Article XXI. was ambiguous.

"It ought to specify, without circumlocution," he said, "that the Monroe Doctrine is to be immune from control by the League. As it is now, there is uncertainty whether the Monroe Doctrine is safeguarded."

WASHINGTON, April 29, (Associated Press.)—Senator McNary of Oregon, Republican, announced today that he would support the League covenant as finally adopted in Paris.

"In my opinion," he said, "the covenant has been amended to meet all the legitimate objections raised against it."

SMOOT PARTLY SATISFIED

But Still Finds Fault with Articles X. and XXII. of Covenant.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, April 29.—Article XXII. of the redrafted League of Nations convenant, designed to safeguard the Monroe Doctrine, may fall short in its purpose, unless clarified, according to Senator Reed Smoot. The Senator says most of the amendments to the covenant demanded by leading Republicans have been adopted by the Peace Conference, but if press reports are correct Article X. is still unamended, and guarantees all nations entering the League their political independence and territorial integrity from foreign aggression. Senator Smoot says this is a very dangerous provision and expresses the hope that it may yet be amended at the Conference.

"With the exceptions noted, I am pleased with the amendments agreed to, but do not wish to express an opinion on the passage of the covenant by the Senate until I have seen the official draft and given it careful study."

PARIS, April 29.—An American army officer just back from Italy told me today of two interesting incidents at Trieste and Fiume, which have a bearing on the present Italian crisis. There is no doubt, he said, about the present excitability of the Italian people. Public opinion there for the annexation of Fiume and the acquisition of Dalmatia, added the officer, had been lukewarm and indifferent at first, even entirely lacking in certain parts of the country, but the propaganda had been effective, so that while the present opinion was largely "made opinion," it was well made and something to reckon with.

"For example," continued the officer, "in the last month Trieste has been just as excited as Fiume. Walls are placarded with signs declaring that Italy must have Trieste. The streets are full of parades carrying legends to the same effect. This sort of demonstration has been carried on despite the fact that nobody ever said the Italians would not have Trieste. It has been the intention of the Peace Conference from the beginning that Italy should have Trieste, regardless of the fact that in their original maximum claims the Jugoslavs demanded it. Nevertheless, it has been part of the Italian campaign among their own people to create the impression that they would lose everything they did not fight for; hence the artificial excitement as indicated by the popular demonstration at Trieste demanding that city for Italy. Also to make assurance doubly sure a big colonizing movement at Trieste has been going on in recent weeks, a large number of Italians and the their families and household goods being moved there by boatloads from other parts of Italy.

"In Fiume recently the Italian Government officials got the populace together at a great open-air meeting for the distribution of food. After the supplies had been given out the crowd was asked if they wanted a further distribution of food and if so to indicate their desire by raising their hands. All hands in that immense crowd went up. Photographs were taken that instant and later widely distributed throughout Italy with a caption to indicate that they were pictures of citizens of Fiume voting in favor of annexation to Italy."

Choosing Counsel

When you choose advisers in law, medicine or surgery, you exercise thought and care. A real advertising expert is a rare bird, the number of them is less than two hundred in the whole United States.

Advertising is a business, some art and some science. It is not codified or digested as are laws and medicine. It can not be learned out of a book.

Nevertheless, nearly everyone speaks of advertising confidently, as with the voice of authority. The self-confidence of the prospective advertiser may be justified, but a more conservative plan would retain the best advertising counsel to be had.

The most experienced advertisers pay for real service; the least experienced choose advertising advisers quite casually.

JAPANESE OFFER TO CEDE SHANTUNG

NO ACTION BY COUNCIL

Lansing Said to Favor Yielding German Concessions for Territorial Surrender.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 29.—The widely circulated report that the Chino-Japanese dispute over Kiao-Chau has been settled today by Wilson, Clemenceau, and Lloyd George is untrue. The matter of adjustment is still open awaiting further argument from China.

Chinda and Makino, the leading Japanese plenipotentiaries, discussed the matter with the Council this morning, and the Council outlined its views, but took no action.

An effort is being made to induce Wilson, Clemenceau, and Lloyd George to accept a compromise providing for the surrender of the Shantung Peninsula to Japan through the peace treaty, on condition that Japan give a separate undertaking to China to return the territory. The time for the return is not specified in this proposal, Japan taking the ground that fixing a time would be a reflection on her good faith.

It is also asserted that the proposal contemplates the Japanese taking over German obligations in Shantung and receiving a port 125 miles from Tsingtau when they give up the rest of the Shantung territory to China. This proposal is attributed to the Special Committee, of which Lansing and Balfour are members.

Any information on the subject, however, except that no agreement has been reached which has been obtained from official sources, should be taken with all reserve.

The fact remains that those concerned are satisfied that Japan is now willing to agree on some compromise.

PARIS, April 29, (Associated Press.)—The session of the Council of Three ended late this afternoon without any decision on either the Japanese or Belgian question, and a member of the Japanese delegation said he did not know whether another conference would be held tomorrow.

Kiao-chau is now rivaling Fiume as a stumbling block to peace and is attracting much attention. The Chinese proposition to let Japan keep Kiaochau and the former German concessions for one year under pledge to turn them back when China should have reimbursed Japan for the cost of capturing Tsing-tao has been unfavorably received by the Japanese.

The Japanese are willing to agree to the return of Kiao-chau, but on condition that they retain the port of Tsing-tao and the right to co-operate with the Chinese in the running of the German-owned railways and mines in Shantung Province.

The Chinese maintain that the Japanese proposals threaten China's sovereignty, and, if adopted, would put into effect the terms of the secret agreements forced upon her by Japan.

While the situation is difficult, the Big Three are endeavoring to arrange a compromise, whereby the German possessions in China will be formally turned over to Japan, with provisions insuring their return to China by the League of Nations under just conditions.

The financial experts of the United States and France were called in while the Belgian delegates were being heard regarding the necessity of earlier payment to them of their share of the reparations. The discussion was left unfinished.

Reuter's correspondent says that he learns from Belgian delegation circles that the situation in Belgium is so serious that unless financial aid is received from the Allies it may be impossible for the Belgian delegates to sign the peace treaty.

HARDEN WARNS AGAINST THREATENING VICTORS

ZURICH, April 29.—Maximilian Harden in the latest number of Die Zukunft recalls the behavior of victorious Germany in 1871 and the heavy yoke that Bismarck placed on France in connection with the present situation and the tactics of the German political leaders.

"In 1871, at the time of the peace pourparlers," he writes, "Jules Favre, annoyed, slightly raised his voice. Bismarck then began to speak in German, although he was perfectly aware that Favre did not know a word of German. When some wonder was manifested at his behavior, the Chancellor declared that there was no need for him to behave more politely than the French plenipotentiaries did. When asked what attitude Germany would adopt in case of a French refusal to sign the treaty, Bismarck replied:

"'We will continue to occupy the forts. The armistice is not likely to be prolonged, and in any case we will lock up Paris more tightly than before. Our measures will prove efficient when the French feel the pangs of hunger; in the meantime we will ask for their arms and their guns. Let them cry if they like; they will at last realize how ridiculous it is to make formidable threats, which it is impossible to carry out, to a victorious enemy.'

"In 1919 the situation is the same for the Germans, and the Iron Chancellor would think that we were threatening too much. From the beginning the Weimar Assembly has declared that our opponent has adopted an impudent attitude.

"Dr. Dernburg recently made threats again in the Tageblatt. He also said, according to the formula of Karolyi, that if Germany did not obtain the peace she had a right to, she would open her gates wide to Bolshevism. For the present, let us be content, if the honorable Deputy opens wide to us the gates of the splendid villa he possesses at Grünewald."

WILL TRY EX-KAISER AS CRIME INSTIGATOR

Charge of Originating War Not Specified by Council in Peace Treaty.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, (Wednesday,) April 30.—With reference to statements from Paris that it is possible the Peace Conference will make its final decision today on the question of the trial of the ex-Kaiser, the Chronicle's parliamentary correspondent writes:

"The rumor was circulated in the House of Commons lobby last evening that the Kaiser will be brought to trial after all on a charge of instigation of crimes against humanity and international laws.

"Although there was no official confirmation of the report, it would certainly be in accordance with the view of the British Government if the ex-Kaiser were arraigned as the author of crimes that must have had high sanction before they were committed.

"It is understood that the British representatives at the Paris conference have done all that they could to procure assent to this view from the delegates of the other powers."

LONDON, April 29.—The Evening Standard says it has authority for asserting that William Hohenzollern will be prosecuted and tried not as originator of the war, but as one of the instigators of crimes as provided in the report of the Commission on War Responsibility.

RUMANIANS AND SERBS SEIZE MAGYAR TOWNS

PARIS, April 29, (Havas.)—The Rumanian troops on Saturday occupied the neighborhood of Puespok-Ladany, 111 miles east of Budapest and on the railway line between Budapest and Debreozen. Dispatches from Budapest add that the Rumanians also captured Bekes-Csaba, 120 miles southeast of Budapest.

COPENHAGEN, April 29.—Dispatches from Budapest under date of Monday say that Mako (110 miles southeast of Budapest) and Nagy Lak (15 miles southeast of Mako) were occupied by Serbian forces on Sunday.

The Theiss River bridge near Czap has been blown up by the Rumanians.

Hundreds of intellectuals are being arrested at Budapest, according to a Berlin dispatch to the Berlingske Tidende. It is reported that one of the People's Commissaries has explained that they would be held as hostages and would "pay with their blood for every step the Rumanians take within the frontiers of Hungary."

ZURICH, April 29, (French Wireless Service.)—A force of 2,000 Bolsheviki marching into Hungary from Russia has been disarmed in Galicia by the Ukrainians, reports to Vienna newspapers say.

BERLIN, April 26 (Associated Press.)—Former army officers are shining shoes in the streets, and university graduates, lawyers, and Judges are doing menial duties in order to earn enough to secure food. This is a picture of Budapest under soviet rule, drawn by Judge Soelling of Kiel, who has just returned from Hungary. He says the propaganda of the red army has been a total failure, and that the few recruits who are coming in are doing so out of sheer necessity to secure food.

According to Judge Soelling the population is taking the hostilities between the different factions with dull apathy and are waiting only for the Rumanians, Czechs and Serbs to rescue them. The Government continues to take hostages. Yesterday they locked up a number of former members of Parliament, among them the editor of the Pester Lloyd, Josef Vszi; the editor of the Pester Hirlap, Legradi; former Premier Count Esterhazy and the poet Franz Herozey.

VIENNA HUNGRIEST OF EUROPEAN CAPITALS

Without Allied Aid Would Starve to Death in Week, Observer Says.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, via London, April 29.—There is undoubtedly much Communistic activity in this city. It is openly preached at every street corner by Russian and Hungarian emissaries to the workless, whose numbers run into hundreds of thousands. Wounded soldiers and members of the Volkswehr, or National Guard, are all infected by it.

It was by acting upon the misery of these various elements that the Communist leaders were able to bring about the recent outbreak. More carefully worked, it might have accomplished the same result as did the similar rising in Budapest. As it happens, however, the Communist leaders here are men of a very much smaller capacity than are Bela Kun and his friends and they had one greater difficulty to overcome. In Budapest hunger helped the Communists; in Vienna it fought against them.

The existing Government of Dr. Renner is scarcely more stable than was that of Karolyi in Hungary. Its members so far have shown little constructive statesmanship. It cannot rely at all upon the Volkswehr, which is its only means of enforcing its measures, but it is kept in place by the absolute famine over which it presides.

Of all the Central European capitals I have visited in the past few weeks, Vienna is by far the hungriest. Left to its own resources its inhabitants would literally starve to death in a week. All its former supply of food, coal, and raw materials is cut off. Its former subject peoples, whose united resources raised it to greatness, now have ruthlessly closed their frontiers against it and will not allow an ounce of grain or a pound of coal to cross them.

As the Minister of War said yesterday, Vienna is totally dependent upon the charity of the Allies. Twelve food trains daily arrive in Vienna from the sea, bringing a practical expression of that charity. That slender thread of nourishment snapped, Vienna would cease to exist. All Vienna knows this; and because they know it, Thursday's outbreak remained only a bloody riot and did not ripen into a revolution.

So far as I can judge, a very large proportion of the better class here would welcome the occupation of the city by Entente troops. They are in continual fear, though not, I think, with reason, of some new rising of the discontented, when not only might they be looted, or robbed or murdered, but the Entente would be annoyed. Personally I think there is no need for such an expedition, for fear is more powerful than many bayonets, but the position may easily change.

On the day that the Red Russian Army takes Lemberg and thus secures direct communication with Hungary, Vienna will almost certainly fall into their hands willy nilly, and it will need very large armies indeed to stop the spread of Communism to the Rhine. But for the present Vienna is quiet and dying of lack of nourishment with no hope for the future, but dying very humbly and apologetically.

MUNICH ENCIRCLED BY ANTI-RED ARMY

POPULATION ARE IN PANIC

PARIS, April 29.—(Havas.)—The encirclement of Munich by German Government troops has been completed, according to German dispatches received here. This result was accomplished, it is stated, by the occupation of Landshut, about thirty-five miles northeast of Munich, which city has been closely approached on all sides.

Meanwhile the Government forces are dealing with troubles in Nuremberg, where the Spartacide leader, Albert Schmidt, was killed by Government troops and a state of siege proclaimed. The Spartacides there took one of the Majority Socialist leaders prisoner.

BERLIN, April 29, (Associated Press.)—Bavarian troops, with 15,000 Prussians, have crossed the Danube in their march on Munich, according to a telegram from Bamberg.

LONDON, April 29.—Panic prevailed in Munich yesterday when the Government troops began their march on the Bavarian capital and three members of the Communist Government resigned, a Berlin dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company says. Before nightfall Monday Government troops had captured several villages.

A delegation from the Communist Government went to Ingolstadt on Sunday to discuss the situation with the Berlin Government military leaders.

The Communist leaders in Munich are said to be ready to escape quickly in airplanes.

BERNE, April 29, (French Wireless Service.)—Airplanes of the Hoffmann Government forces flying over Munich have been fired on repeatedly by the Communists, with the result that thirteen civilians have been killed and 100 wounded. The Communist Government, the Vossische Zeitung of Berlin says, in consequence, has forbidden any more firing at the airplanes. This measure is said to have been taken, however, with the view of saving ammunition.

The Communist Government in Munich is said to be experiencing great difficulty in feeding the population and the large number of soldiers concentrated there.

BERLIN, April 26, (Associated Press.)—Martial law was declared today in all Bavarian territory east of the Rhine, and Government troops began an advance on Munich from the south and captured Murnau. The Communists immediately threw reinforcements into Kempten, west of Murnau, from Munich and Augsburg, to ward off the attack of the Government forces.

The Spartacide leader in Nuremberg, Albert Schmidt, was shot today after the discovery by the military authorities of a plot to depose the Hoffmann Government. Fighting then developed between the Government and Communist troops, resulting in the death of a number of the Reds. The other Spartacide leaders in Nuremberg were arrested and quiet again reigns temporarily.

The Communists yesterday sent emissaries to Ratisbonn and Landshut in an attempt to raise 2,000,000 marks. The agents were arrested, together with the Communist Commissioner of Transportation, Herr Lukum. The Commissioner confirmed reports that the financial situation in Munich was desperate and that the Communists were unable to pay those out of work as they had agreed.

MUNICH PEOPLE HID MONEY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 27, (via Copenhagen, April 28.)—THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent today interviewed Dr. Strobel, a well-known nerve specialist, who has just arrived in Berlin after an extremely adventurous flight from Munich, details of which he does not wish published, fearing to rob other physicians of a chance of escaping in the same way.

He says conditions in Munich are simply incredible, though there is not much individual crime, as was the case during the Berlin Spartacide weeks in January and March. In Munich crimes are committed by the Communist authorities, who have already destroyed untold wealth by childish Utopian measures. The socialization of private capital was not the lucrative measure the Communist leaders expected, because most of the wealthy people anticipated the plan by concealing their cash. In consequence, many millions of old banknotes long since withdrawn have been again forced into circulation, because they are the only means with which to pay the Red Guards. The storekeepers, however, only accept these notes at the point of a revolver.

Dr. Strobel is convinced that 10,000 Government troops would suffice to defeat the whole Red force, despite the fact that it contains many officers of the former regular army, who receive as much as 3,000 marks monthly and 15,000 marks earnest money. Most of them were not Communists, and only accepted service to pave the way for a victory of the Government troops.

The citizens were extremely incensed against Hoffmann's Government for hesitating so long.

Meanwhile the triumvirate reigns supreme, though among themselves they are constantly fighting and calling one another names. The student Toller, like the two others, is a Polish Jew of rich parentage, who studied in Berlin before the war. He entered the war enthusiastically as a volunteer, but his officers soon made him rue this step. Dismissed on account of illness, he continued his studies till the beginning of the revolution, when he went to Munich, becoming one of Eisner's followers. Toller is posing as a Red Guard Napoleon and the special protector of young female artists, among them a Berlin movie actress.

Henry Porter, who was captured in the Allgau Mountains, was not killed, as reported.

BOMB INJURES EX-SENATOR'S WIFE

Mr. Gimbel said no investigation had been started at the store to trace the bomb wrappers, asserting that such an investigation would be futile unless clues other than the wrappers could be furnished.

Another official of the Gimbel store said that all of the 10,000 employes of the establishment were hired by trained experts, who exercised the greatest care in eliminating from the applicants any who gave indication of being undesirable, and he felt that as a result of this there was not the slightest likelihood of one of them being responsible for the sending of the bombs.

As for the possibility of tracing the culprit through the label itself, the official said that the labels for the company were printed in many different parts of the country, one of the printers having his plant as far west as Chicago. Another fact, which still further complicated the situation, was that many manufacturers whose output was contracted for in lots sent their products to the store all wrapped up for delivery, and that for these articles they printed the Gimbel labels themselves.

GERMANS COMPLAIN FOOD COMES HIGH

FARMERS HOARDING SUPPLY

BY EDWIN L. JAMES.

COBLENZ, April 29.—With the distribution of food from America just getting well under way in Germany, the former enemy population, once loud in gratitude for being saved from starvation, has begun to cry that the food distributers charge too much, that America is enriching herself by the sale of food at the expense of Germany. It is little less than astounding to note these expressions, since for weeks and weeks all German newspapers had notified their readers that prices would be on the basis of dollars, and not of marks. This means that the mark, which is relatively regarded by the native as worth 24 cents, will buy only 7 cents worth of American food.

Germany had fair warning of this, but continued to cry for our food at any price because of the desperate food conditions. Now, with the edge taken off their hunger, the attitude has changed. In recent letters which the censor took from the mail here in Coblenz, expressions of thankfulness for American food are hard to find.

Scores of letters make sarcastic remarks about the prices the Americans are charging, and how America has belied her claims to humanitarian motives by fixing prices for food beyond the reach of the poor. When a family here has to turn over 8 marks for a pound of American bacon, it looks like $1.90 to the Germans, but only 60 cents to Americans, and when American flour goes at 10 cents a pound the German has to pay nearly 2 marks, which looks like 35 cents to him.

These prices are indeed high for poor families, but all Germans had fair warning of what the prices would be, as they were published weeks in advance. It was commonly supposed that even those who could not pay the prices would profit by the greater supply of food thus released from German sources. There were strict regulations put out by the German authorities as to how the hoarders of food and the farmers generally should throw their supplies on the markets, so that the poor folk could eat.

But while America is charging just the prices we agreed in advance, official statements show that for the last month there has been not one pound of meat distributed in Coblenz from German sources. Coblenz is a city of 60,000, surrounded by farming communities, so that the lack of local supplies means only that the natives are holding on to their own food.

Any one who thinks this policy has any other motive than selfishness of the craziest kind would be soft-minded. The Germans ought to get American food cheaper.

A member of the local German administration, who on previous occasions has antagonized the Americans, yesterday sent a telegram to Berlin asserting that, while the French were selling flour at 1 mark a pound, flour from American sources cost 1 mark 85 pfennigs. Now this American food comes officially from the Allies, but the German complaints never mention the Allies; it is always America that is trying to get rich at the expense of the starving Germans.

The following statement was issued by the American authorities in charge of civil affairs in this district:

"Reports are becoming numerous from all parts of the American occupied area showing that German officials in charge of the enforcement of German food regulations are not enforcing these regulations. They are not compelling farmers to deliver their products to the local burgomasters for distribution. This applies particularly to butter, milk, eggs, potatoes, and meats. Whereas the Government price for butter is from 4 to 5 marks a pound, farmers are openly selling it direct to the people at from 15 to 30 marks a pound, and the prices they receive for other products are at about the same ratio of advance over the Government prices."

So long as German farmers and German officials resort to these tactics it is believed the Americans will turn a deaf ear to the complaint about prices of American food and take it all as one more lesson in German psychology.

RHINELAND FOR PEACE, BUT NOT SEPARATION

Would Favor Allies' Peace Terms if Still Part of Germany.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COBLENZ, April 28.—From local German political leaders who may be considered as reflecting the opinion of Catholic Germany I get this prediction: The conclusion of the preliminary peace will be followed by the fall of the Ebert-Scheidemann Government. Noske will be the next Premier, and his Cabinet will include Dernburg and Erzberger, the idol of the Rhineland. Brockdorff-Rantzau will lose the power he now exercises. Von Bernstorff will be the powerful factor in the next Government, although he will not hold a high official position, because of the American dislike for him. The next Government will be controlled by the Nationalists, Democrats, and the Centrum, with the Social Democrats and Independent Socialists represented as a minority of the coalition Cabinet. Bolshevism is dominant in Germany.

Whether this prediction is founded upon much more than wishes, I do not know. However, it is certainly a program that will be supported by the Catholic influences, which are disgusted with the Social Democrat control of the German Government.

It would be difficult to exaggerate the Rhineland's interest in the peace negotiations. On the eve of the departure of the German delegation proper for Versailles, leading Germans hereabouts have a very good idea of the contents of the peace terms, with the exception of the provisions for the future of the Rhineland. As to that, there is complete ignorance. There will not be any deep opposition to a provision that this part of Germany shall not help support any military machine, nor will the Rhineland yell much about the destruction of Germany's fortifications on the left bank of the Rhine.

But if political separation from Germany is decreed, that will be a different matter. The Rhinelanders have made up their minds that they will have allied soldiers in their midst for a long time, but they do not count on political diversion from the Fatherland. If there is no separation of the Rhineland from Germany, then leading Germans hereabouts are in favor of signing the peace terms at once. Having lost the war, they want to close the deal as soon as possible and get back to the business for which their superb industrial machinery is waiting. I heard of a bet made last night of 4 to 1, that the German delegation would sign the allied peace terms.

While politicians talk of the German delegation's right to negotiation, they do not seriously believe the terms decided upon will be materially altered by the German outpouring of conversation at Versailles. The Rhineland wants peace quickly. Despite the howling about prices, the Huns hereabouts don't want to lose the supply of American food, they don't want a continuance of the blockade; they want to start up business again, for which they have high hopes, and they want their prisoners of war back from France. The Rhineland does not give a whoop what happens to the Ebert-Scheidemann Government, the Rhineland is not afraid of the Bolsheviki now. The Rhineland wants the war and everything about it finished quickly. Provided always that the Rhineland is not taken away from Germany, in the political situation which would follow the German delegation's refusal to sign the peace terms, the Rhineland would exert its influence in favor of meeting the allied terms.

DEMANDS FULL LIBERTY FOR THE FRENCH PRESS

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 28.—In a long article deploring secrecy, Le Matin this morning demands that at this critical moment Premier Clemenceau restore the full liberty of the press. Also, after commenting on the fact that Orlando has been forced to go to his own people to get their opinions because Wilson had appealed to the Italian population over the head of the Government, and on the fact that Lloyd George felt the need of going before Parliament to obtain a new assurance before signing the treaty, Le Matin begs the French Premier to take his people into his confidence, too.

"The nation which has lost most in the war," continues Le Matin, "which must guard the frontiers of civilization, which has the greatest need to be assured that its interests are not neglected, now finds itself, after teaching the world democracy, still condemned to require secrecy during all negotiations.

"During hostilities Clemenceau was right in absorbing all powers, in unifying command in the Government, in establishing a severe censorship to guarantee the secrecy of military operations. But peace is not won by the same means as war, although that idea has not yet come to Clemenceau. On the morrow of victory the Premier has taken to himself the Marshalship. But he cannot exercise it on the Allies, for each of them has its own plan.

"Clemenceau ought to see in the acclamations with which Italy has received Orlando what force can be conferred on a Government by national support. Perhaps Orlando himself regrets that he had not dared to seek this public consultation before he was forced to do so by Wilson. The solitude with which the French Premier incloses himself each additional day not only deprives him of the support of public opinion in the negotiations, but of arguments and facts. It obliges him to think all alone, to possess all expert knowledge, commercial, financial, and military. In short, it condemns him to infallibility.

"But none has denied human infallibility more eloquently than Clemenceau. None has condemned more indignantly the police processes now in operation. No other has castigated with such force the political censorship now exercised in his name. If he would only have the whim to go for a moment from the office of Premier to his old editorial quarters in the office of L'Homme Libre, with what sentiments would he now reread the words he formerly wrote, which will always live:

"'All then is finished. The ignominy of the censor once more comes to distress our country.'

"Before the end of this week the peace treaty will be made public. Thus will end the last excuse of censorship. That which is about to be done concerns not only our generation, but all who follow. Every word should be studied, discussed, and approved by the nation. The Deputies will have to render an account of themselves to their constituencies. Each of us will have to account for himself to his children.

"So we demand from Clemenceau at this moment all liberty of the press. This insistence is certainly not a reflection on him, since it is his own insistence expressed all his life. His own past supports our demand. If he has obtained for France the reparations and guarantees to which she is entitled, with what enthusiasm will the entire country salute him as the organizer of peace, as well as the organizer of victory! But if there has been an error on some point, how can his love for France consent that that error should become fixed and irreparable? Peace has need of light."

LABOR CLAUSES IN PEACE TREATY

State Department Makes Public Text of the Nine Adopted at Paris.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The nine clauses proposed by the Commission on International Labor Legislation for insertion in the peace treaty, as adopted by the Peace Conference in plenary session at Paris yesterday, were made public here today by the State Department. Among the principles incorporated are a standard eight-hour day, a weekly day of rest, the abolition of child labor, equality of pay for men and women, and workmen's "right of association for all lawful purposes." The text of the clauses as adopted follows:

"The high contracting parties, recognizing that the well-being, physical, moral and intellectual, of industrial wage earners is of supreme international importance, have framed a permanent machinery associated with that of the League of Nations to further this great end. They recognize that difference of climate, habits and customs of economic opportunity, and industrial tradition make strict uniformity in the conditions of labor difficult of immediate attainment. But, holding as they do that labor remedies [probably error in transmission] be regarded merely as an article of commerce, they think that there are methods and principles for the ratification [rectification?] of labor conditions which all industrial communities should endeavor to apply so far as their special circumstances will permit.

"Among these methods and principles the following seem to the high contracting parties to be of special and urgent importance:

"First—The guiding principle above enunciated that labor should not be regarded merely as a commodity or article of commerce.

"Second—The right of association for all lawful purposes by the employed, as well as by the employers.

"Third—The payment to the employed of a wage adequate to maintain a reasonable standard of life as this is understood in the time and country.

"Fourth—The adoption of an eight-hour day or a forty-eight-hour week as the standard to be aimed at where it has not already been obtained.

"Fifth—The adoption of a weekly rest of at least twenty-four hours, which should include Sunday whenever practicable.

"Sixth—The abolition of child labor and the imposition of such limitations on the labor of young persons as shall permit the continuation of their education and assure their proper physical development.

"Seventh—The principle that men and women should receive equal remuneration for work of equal value.

"Eighth—The standard set by law in each country with respect to the condition of labor should have due regard to the equitable economic treatment of all workers lawfully resident therein.

"Ninth—Each State should make provision for a system of inspection, in which women should take part, in order to insure the enforcement of the laws and regulations for the protection of the employed.

"Without claiming that these methods and principles are either complete or final the high contracting parties are of opinion that they are well fitted to guide the policy of the League of Nations, and that if adopted by the industrial communities who are members of the League and safeguarded in practice by an adequate system of such inspection, they will confer lasting benefits upon the wage earners of the world."

LIGGETT TO HEAD FORCES ON RHINE

Will Succeed Gen. Dickman as Commander of American Army of Occupation.

SPECIAL DUTY FOR LATTER

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COBLENZ, April 26.—Lieut. Gen. Hunter Liggett will succeed Major Gen. J. T. Dickman as commander of the American Army of Occupation. The change in command is expected to take place within a few days. General Dickman becomes the head of the board to "consider lessons to be learned from the war in so far as they concern tactics and organization."

General Liggett was commander of the first American army corps to be formed, and also commander of the First American Army. After General Pershing relinquished field command of it, General Liggett directed the First Army in the Meuse-Argonne drive. When American General Headquarters is disbanded, the Third Army will become the sole American command in Europe. General Liggett, who has been without a command since the dissolution of the First Army, is second in rank to General Pershing, and, having assumed command of the Third Army, will, of course, be the highest commanding General in the American Expeditionary Forces when General Pershing leaves for home. Lieut. Gen. Robert L. Bullard, who has been without a command since the dissolution of the Second Army, will be returned to the United States.

General Dickman commanded the Third Army on its march to the Rhine, and has held that command since. The Third Army was formed as the Army of Occupation, and is composed of some of the best troops of the American Expeditionary Forces.

ALLIES REPEL RAID ON MURMANSK ROAD

LONDON, April 29.—Bolshevist forces attacked the allied troops on the Murmansk Railway at Kurgomin on Monday, but were easily repulsed, says a statement today from the British War Office. The enemy left a number of prisoners behind.

The statement says that in the recent operations near Urosozero, Canadian, French, and North Russian troops and the Slavo-British Legion co-operated with a French armored train, the crew of which showed great gallantry.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Brig. Gen. Wilds P. Richardson, commander of the American forces in Northern Russia, in a report to the War Department today said he had visited all detachments in the Archangel region and found the health and spirit of the men good. There was no apprehension at headquarters, he said, respecting the morale of the American forces.

"Consider situation satisfactory both from standpoint of co-operation Allies and military operations." The cablegram continued:

"The high command is alert to the situation on the Dvina River, but without anxiety."

ARCHANGEL, April 28, (Associated Press.)—According to the Bolshevist official newspaper, the Moscow Izvestia, there have appeared recently in the ranks of the army of Admiral Kolchak on the eastern front special regiments known as "regiments of Christ." The newspaper says the regiments are led into action by priests dressed in their vestments and carrying crucifixes. These troops are reported to have shown extraordinary bravery.

Other Bolshevist newspapers say that at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Moscow Soviet it was shown that the expenses of the Soviet have aggregated 1,308,000,000 rubles, while the income of the Soviet was only 710,000,000 rubles. The newspapers assert that 100,000,000 rubles have been expended on the maintenance of children of the Red Guards and that the cost of distributing this sum amounted to 30,000,000 rubles.

PARIS, April 29, (French Wireless Service.)—Polish troops, having driven the Bolsheviki from Vilna, are marching on Minsk, according to information given The Temps by M. Wasilewski, formerly Polish Foreign Minister. In connection with the Polish operations in Lithuania, the former Minister said that the Polish Diet voted the following declaration:

"The Polish military activity in Lithuania is not meant for the purpose of anticipating the decisions of the Peace Conference or to annex territory to Poland against the will of the inhabitants. Its only purpose is to protect the inhabitants against invasion."

The liberation of White Russia and Lithuania, M. Wasilewski added, would make an end to Bolshevist plans to invade Poland through those territories.

STRIKES THREATENED ALL OVER GERMANY

Noske Says Bolshevist Danger to Country Has Been Overcome Militarily.

PARIS, April 29, (Havas.)—Renewed agitation in almost all parts of Germany is reported in German advices received here.

The railway employes in the Berlin district are threatening to bring on a general strike on May 7 if their claims are not satisfied, while in the Ruhr industrial district the Spartacides are again displaying great activity and endeavoring to organize a general strike in this region.

BERLIN, April 29, (Associated Press.)—Minister of Defense Noske today, in an interview, referred to the necessity of defending Germany's eastern frontiers. Noske said the statement of Lloyd George that Germany was hardly in a position to assemble 80,000 men for the maintenance of order unfortunately was true. He added that it was nonsense for Herr Barth to talk about 3,000,000 supporters of a monarchist counter-revolution.

Noske said he thought that the Bolshevist danger to Germany had been overcome militarily; that Berlin, with adequate troops, was safe, while recent events in Munich were represented as the last serious attempt of anarchy to seize power.

MENS SANA IN CORPORE SANO

Which, being interpreted, means a sound mind in a sound body—a beautiful ancient ideal too little understood today.

Always the mind is able to do more and better work if it dwells in a perfectly healthy body.

And always the body is healthier for being nourished by pure, wholesome food, cooked in a sensible way.

At CHILDS every dish is first of all highly nutritious, and then so prepared as to make its digestion a stimulating process.

Truly, good digestion waits on appetite, and health on both, when one dines at CHILDS.

Now that Spring has arrived, a vegetable dinner is particularly appropriate—with that delightful accessory to a perfect meal, a cup of CHILDS coffee.

STRONG URGES SUPPORT

RABBIS ISSUE A CALL

Pass Resolutions Telling Jews to Keep on Investing in Victory Notes.

Official reports from the Victory Loan headquarters yesterday showed that the total for the day in the Second Federal Reserve District was $22,583,250, of which amount $14,387,400 was taken in New York City. The official total in the reserve district given out at headquarters for the loan to date was $223,953,100, or 16½ per cent. of the quota. New York City showed yesterday an official total of $170,629,450, which is 17 per cent. of its quota.

While officials of the Liberty Loan organization here are not entirely pleased at the showing the district has made so far in investment in Victory notes, the situation is regarded as better than the official figures indicate. J. P. Morgan & Co. announced yesterday a subscription of $20,000,000 through the Second Federal Reserve District and an additional $5,000,000 subscription through Drexel & Co. of Philadelphia. With this subscription, which was not included in the sum given out at headquarters, and others reported but not given out, New York City has a total of more than $200,000,000.

The men at the head of the Victory Loan drive in this district are beginning to be disturbed over the fact that the public appears somewhat apathetic. The cause of this is attributed to the fact that the war is over, and that there is no longer any opportunity for the loan organization to accompany its appeals with the daily picture of our men in battle.

Benjamin Strong, Governor of the Second Federal Reserve Bank and head of the committee supervising the Victory Loan in this district, admitted that the loan was not going as well as it should.

"The number of subscribers up to this time is disappointing," said Governor Strong. "It indicates a lack of popular interest in the loan."

In a statement given out yesterday Jacob H. Schiff, head of the banking firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., sounded a note of optimism in the otherwise gloomy atmosphere surrounding the drive. Mr. Schiff said that the terms were the best on any loan ever offered by a Government, and that he felt certain it would be subscribed.

"The Victory Loan, from a financial point of view, is the most tempting proposition that has ever been placed by a great Government, of undoubted credit and solvency, before the investor," he said. "It offers 4¾ per cent. interest, free from normal taxation, which, in comparison with corporate bonds, equals something like 5¼ per cent.; quite a number of high-class railroad bonds return considerably less income. People of very large income can free themselves from all surtaxes and also from State and municipal taxation, which, in some instances, take away as much as about 80 per cent. of annual income, by converting the Victory Loan bonds into 3¾ per cent. tax free bonds, and with the short time the notes have to run—four years—a larger decline in market value can hardly be expected.

Expects Strong Demand.

"If all these great advantages shall be generally understood, as they will be with the progress of the loan campaign, it is not unlikely that subscriptions to the loan will be far in excess of those of any of the earlier Liberty loans, and with limitation in the amount that can be allotted, it is rather doubtful whether subscribers will obtain as much as they desire to have and shall apply for. There is, moreover, no man or woman in the United States who does not feel the obligation upon themselves to aid our Government in liquidating the solemn obligations which it has entered into in connection with the recent war, which should go into American history as the 'War of Ideals.'

"Blessed be the generation that has helped to win it, whether in the ranks or by freely furnishing the means to enable our Government and our army to carry the war to a victorious conclusion."

Brooklyn fell still further behind its brisk pace last week when the total for the borough was announced yesterday. Instead of being well beyond the $20,000,000 mark, which was necessary to keep up with the daily average, the tabulations showed a total of $17,862,150, or a gain of only $590,950 over Monday.

An appeal has been issued by the Rabbis' Victory Loan Committee to the Jewish community of New York to purchase Victory notes. The committee represents the Jewish ministry of the entire city. Resolutions prepared at a meeting of the committee yesterday call upon the Jewish population of New York to show their appreciation of the service rendered by our soldiers abroad by their willingness to finish the work and pay off the war debts.

The Rev. Dr. H. Pereira Mendes presided at the meeting. The message addressed to the Jewish community is as follows:

"The Rabbis' Victory Loan Committee, representing the Jewish ministry of Greater New York, hereby urges the entire Jewish community to give its most cordial and generous support to the present Fifth Governmental Liberty Loan. We deem it to be the imperative duty of every citizen to respond to the appeal of our Government and honorably to discharge the obligations the war has imposed upon us.

"Our boys gave their time, their energy, and even their lives for a sacred cause. Let us prove our appreciation of their splendid service by our willingness to complete the task."

Submarines Circle City.

An interesting event in connection with the Victory Loan yesterday was a voyage around Manhattan by the fleet of five ex-German submarines brought over to assist in the loan campaign. Led by the mother ship Bushnell, the U-boats U-117, U-148, U-88, U-97, and U-98 came out from their berth at the Brooklyn Navy Yard and cruised up the Hudson River as far as 177th Street. The undersea cruiser UC-97 docked at the Bronx landing in the harbor for a while and took a number of Liberty Loan workers on board.

Polish organizations in the five boroughs of New York yesterday adopted resolutions pledging each member to buy at least one Victory Note. The membership of these combined organizations is 50,000, and Leon Wazeter, Chairman of the Polish Division of the Liberty Loan organization, declared that he hoped the Poles would take $100,000 worth of notes. There is to be a big Polish rally at the Hippodrome Sunday, at which Rear Admiral Sims, commander of the American fleet abroad, will be the principal speaker.

SOLDIERS TO AID IN DRIVE.

Rainbow Division Gets 40 Veterans to Sell Notes.

The Advisory Trades Committee supervising the canvassing by the Rainbow Division announced yesterday that it had enlisted forty soldiers from Camp Merritt who have just returned from France to help in the intensive campaign the division is making during the last two weeks of the Victory Loan drive to raise its quota of $675,000,000 from business firms in New York City. The soldiers will work under the Group Canvass Committee, and it was said yesterday they include men who can speak a total of twenty different languages.

The Rainbows fell further behind yesterday in their drive, but it was stated that from now on their total is expected to go up. Subscriptions approximating $3,000,000 were announced last night as the total for the day, the largest one being for $1,000,000 from the Sinclair Oil interests. Employes of this concern added $35,000 to the firm's subscription.

The Women's Clubs Committee, the banner unit in the division, has obtained more than a million dollars in its total of subscriptions. The committee had an initial quota of $450,000. Yesterday Mrs. William A. Campbell, Chairman of the committee, reported $521,000 more had been obtained for the loan. The Junior League of Brooklyn, a group of young society girls who are operating a booth at Borough Hall, came in with $65,000; the Ethical Culture Club with an additional subscription of $43,000, which raises its total to $90,500, and the Colony Club with an additional $31,000.

"MARINE DAY" SPURS SALE.

Former Ambassador Sharp Speaks to Victory Way Crowds.

Speaking at Victory Way yesterday, former Ambassador to France, Henry G. Sharp, urged on the people of the United States not to fall behind the example set them by the French in their last war loan, when 8,000,000 individuals of the French nation subscribed to the bonds floated by their Government. Ambassador Sharp pointed out that the same proposition in America would mean a subscription list containing more than 20,000,000 names.

It was "Marine and Belleau Wood Day" and the amount recorded for Victory Notes last night showed that the crowds were stirred by recalling the work of the marines in that fight. Three booths at Victory Way sold $346,000 worth of notes, the banner sales for the day being made at the booth of Mrs. William G. McAdoo, President Wilson's daughter. Three of Mrs. McAdoo's sales were for $10,000 each.

When Ambassador Sharp spoke, among his auditors were 6,000 employes of the New York Central Railroad, fully half of whom had seen service with the military or naval forces of the United States during the war.

OFFICIAL LOAN NEAR FIRST BILLION NOW

ST. LOUIS DISTRICT LEADING

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Victory Liberty Loan sales officially reported to the Treasury Department tonight totalled $984,884,150, equivalent to 21.88 per cent. of the country's minimum quota of $4,500,000,000. In comparison, it was pointed out, that when the Fourth Liberty Loan had progressed as has the Victory drive to date, $1,523,716,950 had been officially reported as subscribed, and that amount was 22.06 per cent. of the then $6,000,000,000 quota, the largest ever sought in any loan.

The St. Louis district continues to lead the field in percentage of quota subscribed to the Victory Loan, having 45.32 per cent. officially reported. The Chicago district is running second, with approximately 31 per cent., and the Boston district is third, with 27 per cent. Among overnight changes in the percentage standing, Richmond takes sixth place from Chicago, New York passes Philadelphia, San Francisco moves ahead of Dallas, and Atlanta, in last place, jumped more than seven points and begins to threaten Dallas also.

District.	Subscription.	Percentage.
St. Louis	$ 88,388,950	45.82
Chicago	202,213,650	30.99
Boston	102,548,300	27.34
Kansas City	46,750,300	23.97
Minneapolis	43,500,100	22.80
Richmond	47,126,650	22.44
Cleveland	94,407,750	20.07
New York	224,000,000	16.59
Philadelphia	60,626,650	16.16
San Francisco	46,538,100	15.36
Dallas	12,142,400	12.84
Atlanta	16,841,300	11.68
Total	$984,884,150	*21.88

Minneapolis, Chattanooga, and Sandusky were three of the largest cities to obtain their quotas today. One of the interesting features in the day's news from various districts was a statement from the Bellaire, Ohio, banks that they had such confidence in the future of Victory Loan notes that they would redeem them at par one year from date, if any one desired to cash them at that time.

Reports from virtually every district, however, indicates that purchasers are buying the bonds with the intention of keeping them until the date of their redemption by the Government. The Cleveland district reports that 600,000 subscribers have been obtained within its borders, and the Boston district has sold to 93,855 individuals.

The death of Governor Lynch of the San Francisco Federal Reserve Bank cast a shadow over workers on the Pacific Coast today. Victory Liberty Loan Headquarters in San Francisco received hundreds of telegrams from workers, declaring that they would redouble their efforts to roll up a large oversubscription in memory of Governor Lynch.

Michigan and Iowa, the first two States to obtain their quotas, today are engaged in a new race for oversubscription honors, with Michigan leading slightly. Down south every one of 970 employes of the Norfolk & Western office building in Roanoke, Va., has subscribed for a Victory note. Subscriptions in New York City tonight total $170,000,000, and outside of New York approximately $53,000,000.

The Navy Victory Ship Crane is running two days behind schedule, owing to the slackening of the nation's subscriptions over the last week-end. Unless subscriptions for the rest of this week are larger, it will be impossible for the Crane to reach the Panama Canal on time, and a delay at Panama might mean that the ship will not put into the Victory Harbor by May 10.

The nation's contributions speeded up to the tune of $145,404,000 within the last twenty-four hours, making the official total near the billion mark now. The Treasury announced that no effort will be made after the present campaign to keep intact the organization of 2,000,000 volunteer loan workers for future Government financial transactions. Some of the leading loan workers will be asked to advise Treasury and Federal Reserve District officials, however, on the general financial program for the next year.

"BATTLE" FOR LOAN [illegible]E.

Crowd Sees Sham Warfare in Van Cortlandt Trenches.

Thousands of spectators in Van Cortlandt Park yesterday witnessed a sham battle by 300 men of the Ordnance Department and an exhibition of chemical warfare devices by the Chemical Warfare Corps. The entire spectacle was in charge of Lieut. Col. Bernard Lentz of the General Staff, and was a preliminary to the Panaroma of Victory, which will be presented Saturday in Fifth Avenue.

At 2:30 o'clock instructions were phoned to Major Arthur Frantzen, in charge of the ordnance men, by Lieut. Colonel E. J. W. Ragsdale, who was stationed with Major A. B. Quinton on Fire Control Hill, which was situated in the centre of the battleground to the west of the trench. Prior to the actual fighting, signal rockets and hand grenades were sent up by the men, and then followed the discharge of three, four and six inch mortars.

In a short time three thirty-ton tanks, accompanied by six whippets, all in command of Major R. B. Harrison, came upon the trench and rested upon the embankment in front. Rockets were then sent up, and from them came small parachutes made of red, white, and blue cloth, and attached to them were American flags. The crowds of people who were viewing the sham battle from the surrounding hills and other vantage points acclaimed the victory and the presence of the American flag with applause and shouts.

Following the trench warfare exhibition the Chemical Corps started its part of the program by sending up six rounds of thermite from the four-inch mortars. This substance is molten iron, which becomes heated to a high temperature, and, falling upon the enemy, destroys everything with which it comes in contact. Following this various kinds of smoke screens, signal rockets and "terrifying" rockets were set off.

There were also on view some of the airplane signal lights which will be used by the American aviators on their transatlantic flight. These are of two kinds, one burning with a bright flame and the other giving off a smoke. The rockets will be used to guide the men in their flight, as they will be able to tell the direction their planes take by looking back at the path of lights or smoke.

The exhibition will continue today and tomorrow at 2:30 in the afternoon and at 8:30 at night.

SEES ASQUITH LIKELY TO SUCCEED READING

London Evening News Says Cabinet Favors Him for American Ambassador.

LONDON, April 29.—Herbert H. Asquith, former Premier, is likely to succeed the Earl of Reading as Ambassador to the United States, according to The Evening News today. The newspaper says it understands that Mr. Asquith "was informally offered the post a few months ago and declined, but not in such a way as to preclude an offer later."

The Evening News believes that all the Cabinet Ministers strongly favor Mr. Asquith's appointment and that he may consider it his duty to accept.

Should Herbert H. Asquith be appointed Ambassador to the United States it would be the first case of any one who had occupied the post of British Prime Minister being sent to Washington as the British Government's diplomatic representative there.

Mr. Asquith, a life-long Liberal, has had a distinguished career in English public life. In the latter days of the Gladstone Ministry and under Lord Rosebery, from 1892 to 1895, he held the post of Home Secretary. The Liberal defeat in the latter year left him out of office for nearly eleven years, but late in 1905 he became Chancellor of the Exchequer under Premier Campbell-Bannerman. In 1908 he assumed the Premiership, which office he held at the outbreak of the war and until 1916 when his Ministry was succeeded by that of the Coalition under David Lloyd George.

1,369,400 Tons Have Been Sent to War-Stricken Lands This Year.

Since January 1 the United States Government has shipped to the hunger-stricken millions abroad more than 1,369,400 tons of food, the special relief service branch of the United States Shipping Board announced yesterday. This vast quantity of supplies has gone to the civilian populations through New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Norfolk, and Gulf ports for discharge at Rotterdam, Danzig, Derindje, Bordeaux, Constantinople, and other ports on the North Sea, the Mediterranean, and the Adriatic.

To carry this vast volume of food supplies there has been called into service a rapidly increasing fleet of American and chartered foreign vessels, until today the records of the office of Tarleton Winchester, manager for the special service here, show that a total of 308 ships are engaged, aggregating more than 1,500,000 tons cargo carrying capacity. In the distribution 596,198 tons of food have gone to Belgium; 57,551 to Switzerland; 455,761 tons to Northern European countries; 253,031 tons to lands adjacent to the Mediterranean and Balkan ports, and 6,878 tons to Armenia and Syria.

A large percentage of the relief ships are the fast and commodious freighters built under stress of war and originally designed as a weapon to defeat Germany's submarines. Every available inch of cargo space is utilized, and the ships are making record runs to ports of destination and record turn-arounds in discharge of cargo to hasten back for more supplies.

Nearly one million undernourished and sickly children of Poland and Lithuania, who have been without proper food and medical attention since the beginning of the war, are now being cared for by the American Relief Administration in Europe. Systematic feeding of these undernourished children has been established by the Relief Administration as a free gift in these countries and will possibly be extended to Czechslovakia.

INDORSES SALVATION ARMY.

Bishop Greer Sends Letter of Approval to Commander Booth.

Bishop David H. Greer has issued a letter of indorsement of the Salvation Army and its work. The letter, which was written to Commander Evangeline Booth of the Salvation Army, reads:

"It gives me great pleasure to express my very hearty approval of the work of the Salvation Army, not only during the war but at other times. The work of the army has been most helpful in every way, and I am prepared to give it and do give it unreserved indorsement and commendation."

This letter follows closely similar communications from James Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore and General Pershing, commander of the American Expeditionary Forces.

DIRECTS RETURN OF CABLES FRIDAY

Government were able to accomplish but little by way of unification or to go forward with their policies of economy, and consequently were soon brought face to face with a very serious but quite simple problem, to wit: Given increasing cost of operation, plus diminishing revenues, equals what? There can be but one answer—increase of rates.

"This action was taken. It was quite unfortunate, and was taken with deepest regret, but it was imperative. To an intelligent mind this increase of rates constitutes no sound reason for a change of view on the original proposition that it is economically wise for the Government to own the wire systems as a part of the postal establishment, and in no sense tends to refute the soundness of the contention that through such ownership savings would be effected that would result in a reduction of rates. * * *

Bows to Trend of Congress.

"There is quite a difference between Government ownership and Government control for a limited and very uncertain period. The present control affords no more a test of the virtues of Government ownership than could be had through a temporary receivership in a court proceeding.

"That the contention of the Postmaster General for a complete unification of the various wire systems is both wise from an economic standpoint and supported by sound business principles has been confirmed by the ablest experts on electrical transmission in America. That it should be brought about the Postmaster General still believes, preferably through Government ownership and operation as a part of the postal establishment, but, if this is not done, then through some means of unified control by private ownership, over which the Government should at all times exercise a wholesome regulatory supervision.

"About the desirability of this the Postmaster General has had no reason to undergo a change of mind. However, for some time it has been apparent that the first of these alternatives does not meet with the approbation of the new Congress. Such being the case, there is but one course to pursue, and that is to return the various wire properties to their respective owners after urging proper legislation to safeguard the interests of all properties, in fairness to the investors and to insure proper service to the public. Having reached this conclusion, the Postmaster General does not hesitate as to his line of action."

It was formally announced at the White House today that the President had approved the return of the land and underwater wires.

POSTAL WANTS LINES RETURNED AT ONCE

Simply Asks for What They Earn, Says Deegan—Predicts Important Move Soon.

The next few days will see "important developments" in the wire situation, declared William J. Deegan, Secretary of the Mackay Companies, yesterday, in speaking of the Postmaster General's announcement of the surrender of the cable companies. Mr. Deegan declined to go into particulars regarding the events he predicted, but earlier in the day, apparently before he learned of the future developments, he issued a statement which said:

"The remarkable feature about Government control of the wires, to my mind, is that after nine months Mr. Burleson has practically confessed that he put the lines in such shape that he cannot return them to the owners without new arrangements. This, too, notwithstanding that when the lines were taken over none of the owners requested to have their affairs reshaped and none complained about any financial difficulties.

"Mr. Burleson's awards to the Bell Telephone and the Western Union were so much in excess of their real earnings, that apparently he is going to ask Congress to make up the deficiency to these companies. On the other hand, he awarded the Postal Telegraph-Cable Company, $1,680,000, while it was earning approximately $4,200,000. Mr. Burleson has the power under the President's proclamation to return any or all of the lines to their private owners at any time. We think, therefore, that he should turn the Postal Telegraph-Cable Company over to us at once, and we will not ask a dollar from the Government. We merely ask to be allowed to keep what we earn. That is a fair proposition.

"Evidently Mr. Burleson's proposed legislative action is to be for the benefit of the Bell Telephone and the Western Union Telegraph companies, just the same as every one of his acts in connection with the wires since he took control of them has been for the advantage of these two companies. The question is: Are the American people going to allow to continue in office a man who has made such a colossal mess of the entire wire situation?

"If Mr. Burleson wishes to continue his control over the Western Union and the Bell Telephone lines, in order to help them out financially, why doesn't he turn back the Postal lines? We would be glad to compete with any companies operated by Mr. Burleson, and we have no doubt of the result of such competition."

WOMEN IN POLITICAL ROW IN ASTOR HOME

SOME TEMPERS ARE TRIED

Discussion Ends with Resolution to Carry Grievances to State Republican Committee.

There was a little political tempest at the meeting yesterday afternoon of the Consumers' League of the City of New York, held in the home of Mrs. Vincent Astor, 840 Fifth Avenue.

It was started during an address by Mrs. Frederic Nathan, who discussed the reasons for the unrest throughout the country which might lead to Bolshevism and mentioned Speaker of the Assembly Sweet and the women's bills at Albany which had been kept in committee as one of them.

" Speaker Sweet is afraid Bolshevism will raise its head," she said, " but in my opinion there is nothing so likely to do it as his methods of preventing voting on the women's bills. That is not democracy; it is autocracy."

" I would suggest," said Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, " that some good Republican woman propose a resolution that a delegation be sent to the Republican State Committee and ask the Republicans to say whether or not they stand for the methods of Speaker Sweet in holding up these bills. Perhaps the blame is unjustly saddled upon the Republican Party as a whole."

" I am a Republican and I will protest with all the fire of my being," cried a woman in the rear of the room, and then Mrs. James Griswold Wentz, President of the Woman's Republican Club, sprang to her feet saying, with great indignation and bringing out vigorous applause from a good proportion of the women present:

" All the progressive legislation we have had for the last twenty years has been brought up by the Republican Party, and I think at this time to protest "—

" I did not know that this was a partisan meeting," said Mrs. Beatrice Goldie, springing up in another part of the room. " It looks to me as though it was Democratic propaganda."

"The Republicans have always been progressive," said Miss Mary Wood. "That is why the women belong."

"We don't wish a protest against the Republican Party," cried Mrs. Nathan, when she could make herself heard. "We only wish to give the Republican Party a chance to say whether or not it stands back of the action Speaker Sweet is taking in regard to our bills."

"Is this a Democratic or a Republican organization I should like to ask?" interjected a woman speaking with a foreign accent. She wore a bright red hat and spoke in tones as fiery as the color of her headgear.

"It is absolutely non-partisan," cried Mrs. Percy Jackson, the First Vice President of the League, who presided, vehemently. "It always was and always will be."

"I move that this discussion be closed," said Mrs. Sofia Loebinger, as woman after woman, who did not quite hear, in the big picture gallery where the meeting was held, rose to speak. The discussion was ended right away, but the women adopted a resolution to ask the State Republican Committee if it stood back of Senator Sweet's autocratic treatment of the women's bills.

The gathering was made up of representatives of different women's clubs, and Mrs. Nathan asked the President of each to appoint a Chairman of Legislation and to send her name and address to the League headquarters, 105 East Twenty-second Street, that she might be called upon when there was need of bringing the pressure of the woman voters upon the Legislators at Albany.

PLAN ROOSEVELT MEMORIAL

The memory of Theodore Roosevelt will be honored by an endowed bed in the Memorial Hospital which the American Fund for French Wounded will erect in Rheims, France. This announcement was made yesterday by Mrs. Benjamin G. Lathrop at the organization's headquarters, 6 East Sixty-first Street.

The Roosevelt bed will be endowed by individual friends and admirers of the former President. It is possible another bed will be endowed in memory of his aviator son, Quentin, who was killed.

FIND POLITICAL TASK FOR MRS. ROOSEVELT

PART OF 1920 CAMPAIGN

Other Members Named Are Mrs. Charles Whitman and Mrs. Walter Damrosch.

Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr. started into active politics yesterday when Republican State Chairman George A. Glynn appointed her a member of a committee of Republican women who are to co-operate with the Republican Women's National Executive Committee, which was launched some time ago by Chairman Will H. Hays of the Republican National Committee to plan means for encouraging participation by women in the party's affairs. Lieut. Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., her husband, has said publicly that he meant to follow the example of his father, and make a place for himself in public life.

Mrs. Arthur L. Livermore of Westchester, who took part in the State campaign last Fall, was made Chairman of the committee. The other members besides Mrs. Roosevelt are: Mrs. Charles S. Whitman and Mrs. Walter Damrosch of this city, Mrs. William Boyce Thompson of Westchester; Mrs. J. Sloat Fassett of Chemung, Mrs. Eli T. Hosmer of Erie, Miss Mary Chahoon of Clinton, Mrs. Ruth Litt of Suffolk, Mrs. E. S. Knapp of Onondaga, and Mrs. Franklin Mersen of Yates County. Mr. Glynn announced that more appointments would be made within a few days.

" This is the authoritative women's organization of the Republican State Committee and will work through the regular Republican organization," said Chairman Glynn, announcing the appointments. " It is the purpose of the committee to organize for 1920 on the lines laid down for all the States by the National Committee."

We're a Queer Lot—We Americans

DOWN in the harbor there's a statue. It has been there so long that we forget about it most of the time. Our ferry-boats and tugs steam around it; our factories smudge it with their smoke; we point it out to our visitors with a casual wave of the hand. And then we forget all about it and it becomes part of the scenery again.

Part of the scenery—That Woman with the Lamp aloft beside the Golden Door—Mother of Exiles—Spirit of Freedom—America! Countless men have died to keep that Lamp of hers aflame.

And it's part of the scenery!

We're a queer lot—we Americans.

We send two millions of our bravest and best to the other side of the World to fight for the right. We spend our blood and our might without stint. And then—when those men have won the Victory are we to question the money cost of the Victory for which they gave their lives?

We are a queer lot, aren't we?

What's all this got to do with the Statue of Liberty?

Only this.

We might just as well throw Liberty's Torch into the bay as to forget what we've pledged our Honor for. It will look that way to the rest of the world, anyway.

This is not a question of costs. We've spent the money—and got more than full value in return—and we must pay the bills.

Let's finish it.

ENTIRE 77TH MAY BE HOME FOR PARADE

152D FIELD BRIGADE HERE

Three Transports Bring Nearly 10,000 Soldiers Yesterday, Mostly 77th Units.

Nearly 10,000 troops arrived yesterday from France on three transports, mostly units of the 77th Division, who were all glad to get home and hear that they were going to have a parade. The transport Agamemnon, which arrived at Hoboken early in the morning, brought the gunners of the 77th Division, including the 152d Field Artillery Brigade Headquarters, the 304th, the 305th, and the 306th Field Artillery complete. The troops were under the command of Brig. Gen. Pelham Glassford, and they received a warm welcome on their arrival at Hoboken, where fully 5,000 people had been waiting since 8 o'clock to greet them.

The 304th Field Artillery, which was in command of Colonel Copley Enos, regular army, of Los Angeles, sustained most of its casualties along the Vesle River, and had 33 killed and 70 wounded. The 305th Regiment, which was commanded by Colonel F. C. Doyle of the regular army, who was wounded on the Vesle on Sept. 8, lost 30 killed and 63 wounded. The 306th Field Artillery, commanded by Colonel William H. Peek of the regular army, suffered a loss of 73 killed and 270 wounded.

The transport Kroonland, which brought 3,783 troops back from France, had the unique distinction of having a soldier decorated with the D. S. C. at sea. The winner of the honor was First Sergeant Albert Schad of Philadelphia, Company C, 111th Infantry, 28th Division, better known as the "Keystone Division."

At 2 o'clock on Sunday afternoon when the Kroonland was 800 miles east of Sandy Hook, Colonel David J. Davis, Chief of Staff of the 28th Division, read the citation which told that Sergeant Schad had cleaned up a machine gun nest in the section near Montblainville, France, when, with grenades, he killed two of the Germans working the gun, put others to flight, and destroyed the gun. He had a detail of sixteen men with him, but he did the work absolutely alone.

The 111th Regiment lost 33 per cent. killed and more than 80 per cent. wounded, and only returned with two-thirds of the original numbers, which included several officers and men decorated with the D. S. C. The Kroonland also brought twenty-two officers and 461 men who were convalescents from the base hospitals. There were also 100 nurses on the transport.

Major General Robert Alexander, commander of the 77th Division, said yesterday that the parade plans were now completed. The positions of the various units in the parade would be given out today, he said. The General said he had hoped to have four 105-mm. guns, captured in the Argonne Forest from the Germans and later used against the enemy, in the line of march, but it was impossible to bring the trophies back to this country at this time. The division plans to give the four guns to the City of New York, he said, and, to make sure that they would not be lost, members of the 11th Engineers had burned the Statue of Liberty, the insignia of the contingent, on the barrel of the cannon. The regimental flags of the division will bear four silver engraved rings on the staffs, commemorating the four major offensives in which the New York contingent took part, according to General Alexander.

The Board of Aldermen passed a resolution yesterday declaring next Tuesday, May 6, an official holiday in honor of the 77th Division parade, which has been set for that day. The majority of the city offices will be closed on that day, and it is believed that many employers will take similar action to enable their employes to see the parade.

Father Halligan, senior chaplain of the division, who was stationed at St. John Chrysostom's Roman Catholic Church, 167th Street and Hoe Avenue, the Bronx, before the war, was cited for bravery, but he evaded all question pertaining to himself. Lieutenant Arthur McKeogh, a brother officer of the 308th, said that the priest had received the citation for his heroism in burying the bodies of four officers and two noncommissioned officers under fire. On another occasion, Lieutenant McKeogh said, Father Halligan with some stretcher bearers went under heavy fire to the aid of a Chinese and an Indian soldier who had been wounded seriously.

MEN IN 69TH PRAYED NEARLY EVERY NIGHT

LITTLE DRINKING IN UNIT

Had No Fear of Prussian Guards, but Grieve for Men Lost in Battle.

Father Duffy, the chaplain of the old 69th New York Infantry during its eighteen months' service as part of the Rainbow Division, told of the "soul of his regiment" last night in his first public lecture in Carnegie Hall. His talk was given for the benefit of the fund of the New York Foundling Hospital, and the audience that filled the hall cheered so much that his speech was almost half applause.

"Religion over there in this unit was observed in a plump, manly way," said Father Duffy, "in a right-out, 'give-a-damn' way, and it was a tribute to the fundamental decency and tolerance of the American people that those soldiers who were not Catholics respected their comrades the more for it. Most of the men said their prayers every night, some of them by squads, until these squads were broken up.

"There was little drinking among the men, and what there was did them no harm; it did them good! When they came out of the trenches, dirty and muddy and grouchy, I thought many times the money of the Trustees' Fund could have been put to no better use than in rolling a keg of wine down every company street. And the song the soldiers sang was this:

We'll all go home
And drink up bottles of pop,
For the slackers voted the country dry,
While we went over the top!

Father Duffy told of the campaigns of the regiment, of their battles, of the heroism of men and officers, and of their humor and good nature under fire. The men had no fear of the Prussian Guard and referred to them contemptuously as "Dutch," but he added that the men had a wholesome respect for the fighting qualities of the "Dutch guards, who were put in whenever there was a hard job to do."

Archbishop Hayes occupied the centre box with other dignitaries of the diocese, and several hundred priests were in the audience. Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts introduced Father Duffy.

Is It Fair to Make Comparisons?

Without comparisons we could not know values. We say a thing is good or bad, better or best, poorly made or well made, ordinary or distinctive, because we compare the one with the other.

By comparing we gain knowledge, we protect ourselves from errors in judgment, and in the market place we save money.

You have been reading in the national periodicals about certain superiorities of material, invention and design in the Waltham Watch. These superiorities are being demonstrated by comparison. We have made statements, claiming the Waltham Watch to be superior to the Swiss watch, and in many respects superior to any watch in the world. Is this fair?

This is an age of enlightenment—we want to know—to know for certain. When we therefore take the mystery out of the "works" of a watch—explain each part—in what and wherein it is superior—why it is so—are we not doing every prospective watch buyer a real service—a profitable and protective favor?

Watches look alike—but to buy a watch upon looks alone is poor business. A watch cannot be any better than its "works." And because the Waltham Watch can frankly and truthfully claim leadership in material and invention, in those advancements well known to skilled horologists, but necessarily hidden in the works—because of these distinctions—why shouldn't we tell the people all about them?

It is not a question of competition, but of information; not a subject for hearsay or prejudice, but for facts. We believe that taking the public into our confidence, throwing the door wide open, is good business. At least, it is honest business.

It is time to sweep vague ideas out of the watch industry. If a better watch is made at Waltham than in Switzerland, or anywhere else in the world for that matter, let us say so, and prove it.

For instance, the hairspring is the brain of the watch. The Breguet, or overcoil (named for its inventor, a famous old watchmaker), is used on every Waltham watch. And the most important part of the complete operation in making a hairspring is the forming and tempering of this Breguet overcoil.

At Waltham, instead of being formed or bent by hand as a separate operation, the entire completed hairspring is formed at one and the same time, after which it is hardened and tempered in form—an exclusive Waltham invention. Indeed, no other watchmaker in the world claims this perfect method of making the Breguet hairspring—not even Breguet himself.

The Swiss watch has a hairspring that is first formed in the flat, then hardened and tempered in the flat. Then the outercoil is bent to form the Breguet overcoil, which, if the flat spring were as hard as the Waltham and properly tempered like the Waltham hairspring, it could not be bent to correct form and would be liable to break in the attempt.

Therefore in this vital part, upon which largely depends the time-keeping quality of the watch, we see by comparison where Waltham excels, but you would not know this unless we told you.

Go to any Waltham dealer—and that means the leading jewelers in this city—and he will show you Waltham Watches ranging in price, for gentlemen, from the Cadet Strap Watch, with gold covered back, at $22 up to the Waltham Premier Maximus at $530. And, for ladies, the Jewel Series from $31.50 upward to that exquisite watch (its movement is actually smaller than a dime in diameter) which sells from $150 to $1,000 or more—according to the case.

Be sure to follow closely the remaining advertisements in this series. They will make many more comparative statements—and give you facts which it is to your interest to know before investing in a watch.

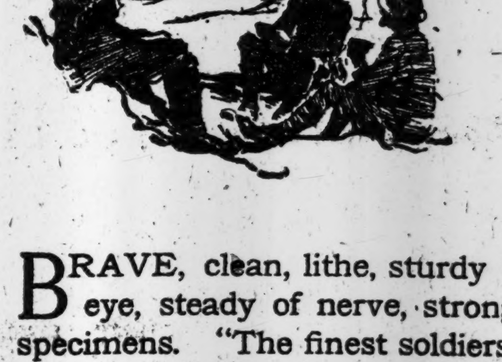
THE WORLD'S WATCH OVER TIME

Your Uncle Sam provided his boys with COFFEE



Our government sent 3,000,000 fighting men abroad. And, to keep them physically fit, it sent millions of pounds of coffee.

BRAVE, clean, lithe, sturdy fellows, they were. Clear of eye, steady of nerve, strong of heart,—splendid physical specimens. "The finest soldiers in the world",—has been said of them. And they proved it!

Coffee lovers, they were—almost to a man. Coffee drinking had been their habit all their lives. They were practically raised on it, in the true American fashion. And they were not deprived of it!

A most careful diet was planned in order to maintain health and strength. While bread and beans and beef were needful, there was one item recognized as absolutely indispensable—coffee.

So—whatever else they had, our boys had their coffee,—plenty of it, four times a day! It cheered and comforted and encouraged them. It helped them do their job,—and do it well. Who shall say how grand a part coffee played in this great war?

DECLARES WILSON SHOULD COME HOME

PEEK DEFENDS PRICE PLAN

Secretary Glass Also a Speaker on War Banking Before the United States Chamber of Commerce.

ST. LOUIS, April 29.—Harry A. Wheeler, President of the United States Chamber of Commerce, told that body today that immediate return to this country of President Wilson and an extra session of Congress to deal with problems of industry are essential to America's business.

"Completion of the Paris conference alone can open the way to resumption of normal conditions," President Wheeler said. He added that business must aid to the utmost in paying war obligations, and that the principle of a fair return only on capital actually invested must be strictly observed, in order to maintain peaceful conditions "at a time when anarchy and other unsound theories are clamoring for an opportunity to try out experiments."

Secretary Glass, of the Treasury, speaking on "Finance and Victory Loan," reviewed the disadvantages of the old national banking system for fifty years prior to the Federal Reserve system.

"The whole startling contrast," he said, "may be summed up in the statement that in 1907 the failure of two banks in New York City precipitated the greatest financial panic that ever afflicted the nation, whereas, under the new system, the greatest war of history failed to create a ripple in the country's banking community."

George N. Peek, Chairman of the Industrial Board of the Department of Commerce, in his address referred to Director General Hines's refusal to accept the schedule of steel prices agreed upon between the Industrial Board and representatives of the industry as a level for Railroad Administration purchases. The course desired by Mr. Hines, said Mr. Peek, would mean such a "beating down" of prices as would force either a general reduction in wages or a diversion of the entire business of the railroads to one or two powerful low-cost producers.

Mr. Peek defended the board's price agreement policy against Mr. Hines's objection that it would give immunity from the operation of the anti-trust laws to the industries involved. Any producer, Mr. Peek pointed out, was free to sell at higher or lower prices than those agreed upon. Such a price agreement, he contended, is "not a combination at all, and even if it were, the result achieved is certainly a fit field for the application of reason."

The Railroad Committee of the Chamber of Commerce submitted a report opposing Government control and operation of railroads, and urging that the roads be returned to their owners. It recommended further "that in the public interest roads be permitted to consolidate into strong competing systems, so located that each of the principal traffic centres shall, if possible, be served by more than one system."

Other recommendations included creation of a Federal transportation board to promote development of a national system of rail, water and highway transportation.

The Public Utilities Committee also submitted a report declaring that the street railway industry throughout the country had reached a critical situation through increased cost of operation, and recommended that the committee have authority to hold hearings and acquaint the public with conditions.

"In March 10 per cent. of the mileage of the street railways of the country was in the hands of receivers," said the report. "By the middle of April the proportion was 12½ per cent. Many companies not yet formally declared bankrupt are, in fact, insolvent when gauged by any ordinary business standard."

George Edward Smith, President of the American Manufacturers' Export Association, expressed the sentiment of the foreign trade section of the convention when he said "foreign trade represents more than an opportunity; it represents a responsibility we cannot shirk."

"But," the speaker continued, "I believe I speak for the enlightened business men of America when I say that American business does not desire to take unfair advantage of other nations. American machinery and inventive genius belong to the world more than ever at this time. Sound business judgment and our duty to humanity command us to become a real exporting nation."

W. L. WOODROW A SUICIDE.

Old Dominion Line President Shoots Himself in Head.

ORANGE N. J., April 29.—William L. Woodrow, President of the Old Dominion Line Steamship Company, committed suicide this morning, while in bed at his home, 33 Overlook Avenue, West Orange. He shot himself through the head with a bullet from a revolver. He was 46 years old.

Mr. Woodrow had been ill for three weeks, the result of overwork in preparing the affairs of the steamship company for its return to private ownership from Government control. He also had been working to obtain for the company more than $1,000,000 which is to be paid by the Government for ships sunk or damaged in the war, and which the Railroad Administration is understood to have claimed as operators of the line.

At the steamship offices in New York it was said there had been trouble over the settlement of the claim, but that all had been adjusted.

Mrs. Woodrow heard a shot shortly after 6 o'clock. Going upstairs, she found her husband with the bedclothes pulled over his head. The revolver was in his hand. She summoned Dr. Austin Thompson, but Mr. Woodrow was dead.

Born in Pennsylvania, Mr. Woodrow had lived in West Orange nine years. He entered the employment of the steamship company in 1903 as General Freight Agent, and later was made Vice President and Traffic Manager. Last December he was made President.

Some years ago, Mr. Woodrow was in the employment of the Southern Railway. He was a member of the American Association of Freight Traffic Officers, former President of the New York Traffic Club, of which body he was Chairman of the Public Affairs Committee at the time of his death; a member of the Ohio Society of New York and the Essex County Country Club of Hutton Park, West Orange.

Mr. Woodrow is survived by his wife. Funeral services will be conducted at the house tomorrow, and the body will be taken to Norfolk, Va., Thursday for burial.

Modern Designs in Metal Beds shown by Merchants of this City

HAVE you seen these beautiful metal beds? If not, we suggest that you ask one of the prominent merchants to show them to you.

They are the modern designs just brought out by Simmons Company—and they are meeting with warm approval by the women of the city.

The housewife of today knows Simmons Beds and Springs so well that it is hardly necessary to call attention to their quality.

The name "Simmons" is a household word, and has been for a quarter of a century—the Nation-wide symbol of beds built for sleep.

It was the Simmons Company who first studied beds in relation to sleep. Who first produced firm, sound construction in metal beds. Who invented, perfected and patented the pressed-steel corner locks, which make Simmons Beds four-square, sturdy and noiseless—inviting complete relaxation of the nerves and deep, refreshing sleep.

It was the Simmons Company, too, who took hold of the spring problem—finally producing Springs that yield to every contour of the body, and still never lose their elasticity.

The time has passed when the woman of taste wished or even consented to "have everything match."

In fact, the use of Simmons Beds is well-nigh universal among the hotels which pride themselves on the comfort of their bedrooms.

It will interest you to know that this same exceptional sleeping equipment can be had for your home.

OCEAN FLIERS AGAIN HALTED BY WEATHER

FEAR AMERICAN SEAPLANES

Our Navy Sends Operators to St. John's to Help Give Wireless Weather Information.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., April 29.—Early morning plans to start the transatlantic airplane race today were upset by Newfoundland's fickle weather. Although midocean conditions were reported favorable, black clouds gathered off shore during the forenoon and soon a heavy rain began to fall. There was no indication of a let-up. In the afternoon, with the fog and rain increasing, the aviators entirely abandoned until tomorrow any attempt to take the air.

When reports were received here this morning that the weather conditions over the ocean were favorable Captain Raynham and Harry Hawker each had his belongings packed and the wings of the machine preened for the flight toward Europe. Simultaneously with the prospect of excellent meteorological conditions at sea, incentive for an immediate start came with the publication of the fact that American seaplanes of the NC type were soon to set out for Newfoundland, preparatory to flying the Atlantic.

It had already been decided that the start when made would be in the afternoon, preferably about 3 o'clock. This was in keeping with the plan of both Raynham and Hawker to minimize flying in the darkness by meeting the "westbound" sun as they flew east and also to effect a landing on the other side before dusk on the following day. The pilots' watches have been adjusted to Greenwich time. It would be necessary to set out here three and one-half hours before sundown to arrive in England before a second twilight, but the aviators believe they could land on the Irish coast within twenty hours if conditions dictated.

Raynham's plane, the Raymor, resembles a racing automobile stripped for a long race. The Sopwith is equipped with an emergency boat, two rubber life saving suits and other accessories, in case the plane fails into the Atlantic. Discussing the possibility of mishap and the lack of equipment on the Martinsyde, Captain Morgan said to-day:

"I am afraid these life saving gadgets will be of little use. For myself, I have decided that I may as well take one deep breath if we strike the water. We will be a small speck on a big ocean out there."

Special to The New York Times.

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland, April 29.—Good in the middle and bad at both ends is a fairly accurate description of today's weather. The barometer is rising in mid-ocean and the winds are shifting to the right direction, but the remnants of severe storms are still overhanging England and Ireland, while there are rain, incipient fog, and adverse winds, which make it unsafe for Raynham in the Martinsyde to attempt to take off from Quidi Vidi Valley, and offer not the best of conditions for Hawker with the Sopwith.

The prospect of a getaway is improving, however, and the general expectation here is that the start will be made by the end of the week at the latest. Major Arthur Partridge, official starter of the Royal Aero Club, today appointed as assitsant Captain J. H. Campbell, aid de camp to Governor Alexander Harris, in case both machines get away nearly simultaneously.

The Aviation Department of the American Navy has despatched here two wireless operators to assist Lieutenant Clements, the local representative of the British Air Ministry Meteorological Service, in maintaining a day and night direct wireless weather information service, which is to be for the benefit of all prospective transatlantic fliers. This service is understood to be the beginning of close co-operation between the British and American Governments in gathering all available weather data, and brings up the question as to whether the American Government will connive at the useless secrecy now insisted upon by the British.

There is no news here yet of the Aroostook and a seaplane advance party from the United States, but it is semi-officially understood that she is going to Trepassey, which is said to have been selected for the American start.

The Ardath Tobacco Company, Lt., of London today cabled Hawker that it had added $10,000 to the Daily Mail prize of $50,000 for the benefit of all contestants.

PHISTER GETS 20 YEARS.

Richard Phister, a retired jeweler of 56 Barbey Street, Brooklyn, formerly a widely-known trap shooter, was sentenced yesterday to Sing Sing at hard labor for not less than twenty years by Justice James C. Cropsey, in the Queens County Supreme Court, for killing his sister, Mrs. Ella M. Zahner, at her home, 10 Earl Court, Woodhaven, Jan. 3. Phister is 53 years old.

The father of Phister had left him and his sister a considerable estate, consisting of property in Brooklyn. Phister was in charge of it. Late in December his sister began proceedings for an accounting. Phister went to her home, quarreled with her, and killed her. The trial took place last week, and the jury returned a verdict Friday night of murder in the second degree.

When Phister was arraigned for sentence his attorney, William A. Robinson, said he had no plea to make for clemency. Justice Cropsey replied:

"The jury was very lenient in your case. Without doubt you were guilty of murder in the first degree."

Phister made no comment after sentence was passed.

NAVY FLIERS HAVE A DRESS REHEARSAL

RADIO TESTS SUCCESSFUL

New Wireless Apparatus, Even on Water, Has 400-Mile Radius—Night Flights to be Made.

Crews No. 2 and 3, which will operate two of the navy's seaplanes on the transatlantic flight attempt, gave a dress rehearsal yesterday at Rockaway Beach in a performance flight in two F-5 machines which lasted for two and a half hours. Extensive radio tests were flashed between the crews, but the object of the flight was to become familiar with conditions which will be met on the long journey and to develop team play.

The planes were piloted under the command of Lieut. Commanders A. C. Read and P. N. L. Bellinger, and flew out in a blustery wind to a point sixty miles south-southwest of the Ambrose Channel Light. Radio-telephonic communication between the two hydroplanes was announced to be perfect, and the wireless compass or direction finder proved entirely satisfactory. A long-distance message was picked up by Crew No. 2 from Norfolk, Va.

The crews of the three planes will have some of the comforts of home during their journey over the Atlantic. A lounge is in place in the NC-3 for the use of fatigued pilots, and smoking will be permitted under certain conditions. The wireless tests today indicate that there is little chance of the American planes getting "lost," for they will be able to send out S O S a distance of 350 miles, and pick up and read a radio message at a distance of 400 miles.

The wireless apparatus, whose construction has been kept a secret, has many new advantages over any yet used. The machines are equipped with three distinct instruments. A new feature is the aerial wires stretched between the skid fins of the airboat. Heretofore a trailing antennae, 150 to 300 feet long, dropped from the planes, could be used only when the machine was high in the air. The new apparatus, known as a "400 watt synchronous spark set," weighs only forty-five pounds, has a radius of 400 miles, and can be used when the hydroplane is on the water.

The seaplanes are also equipped with wireless telephones, which are so designed that the same receiver can be used for telephone and radio instruments. The commanding officer, pilots and radio operator, wear helmets with the receiver attached, and each has a transmitter which will enable him to shut out the sound from the motors and any conflicting messages which they do not wish to pick up.

Night flights may be started any evening now. The crews will make night flights before the getaway so that they will be accoustomed to any contingency, but no information concerning the date of the first night flight was available yesterday.

The naval transport Prairie sailed today from the fleet supply base in Brooklyn for the "jumping off" spot selected in Newfoundland by the Navy Department. On the Prairie are newspapermen and motion picture photographers who will "cover" the start of the overseas journey. The Prairie, commanded by Captain D. T. Ghent, will also serve as a supply ship for the destroyers which are to patrol the ocean course.

DRAMA FORUM GIVES PLAYS.

"Deborah," Biblical, and "Kalidasa's Dream," Hindu, at Princess.

The Drama Forum offered its second program of the season yesterday afternoon, before an audience which filled the Princess Theatre. "Deborah," a Biblical play in two acts, by Alice E. Ives, was the principal offering. In this Anna Cleveland took the title part, and the cast included also Howard Kyle, L. Rogers Lytton, Tullik Bell-Ranske, David Davies, Harmon Cheshire, Leon Kleban, Garfield Learned, and Theodore Holm.

"Deborah" was preceded by a Hindu play in one act, entitled "Kalidasa's Dream," the work of Dhan Gopal Mukerji. In this were seen Harmon Cheshire, Clarice McCauley, Edith Randolph, Alice Keating, and Mabel Fowler.

"Mis' Nelly" Aids Sisters of Mercy.

A special performance of "Mis' Nelly of N'Orleans" was given at Henry Miller's Theatre yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Fiske and her company in aid of the Sisters of Mercy. The theatre was crowded, and as the boxes were sold at a premium it was estimated that several thousand dollars had been raised.

Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.

Now and then are told human stories too big for the three painted walls of the stage—themes that demand the whole world for a setting.

Such is the theme of "FIRES OF FAITH." Only in the limitless language of the moving picture can this story be told—the graphic, emotional dramatization of the theme of the regeneration of a girl the world called "bad."

The Salvation Army, probably the most popular charitable organization in the world, believes in the ideals presented in this photoplay and because "Fires of Faith" so well visualizes this theme, Commander Evangeline Booth, herself, consented to appear in some of the scenes.

At the request of the Salvation Army the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation is presenting this moving drama to the public at this time.

All the profits from this run of "FIRES OF FAITH" will go to the Salvation Army's $13,000,000 Home Service Fund Campaign.

MR. BURLESON'S ADVENTURE.

Inherent probability supports the belief that the President, not Postmaster General BURLESON, was the first to direct the return of the cables and the telegraph and telephone lines to their owners. If upon some watchtower in the land the President has a trusted political adviser, that sentinel, if faithful, could not have failed to advise Mr. WILSON that Mr. BURLESON's performances with the wires were much disliked by the people, were turning them against the Democratic Party, and were playing the mischief with the party's chances of success in the great struggle of next year. But the question who gave the formal order or first made the recommendation that the Government relinquish its grasp upon the wires is of minor consequence. The people of the United States made that decision, they gave the order, it has been obeyed. No Administration in its senses would have stood out against the popular behest.

Thus ends in abject and exemplary failure the Postmaster General's adventure in Government ownership. It is a remarkable example and lesson in the prompt forming and expression of public opinion, in the rapidity with which the people of this country make up their minds upon any matter of general concern when they understand it. In the matter of Government operation of the railroads, the wire systems, and the cables, the opportunity for full understanding was put before the people from the very beginning and they profited by it. The railroads, telegraphs, telephones, and cables are instruments familiar and necessary to practically the whole population. From the farmers of the West, from the shippers of both coasts and the whole interior, from all classes who use the railroads either for business or for pleasure has come a general complaint of much greater cost and inferior service under Federal control. Moreover, the appalling financial results of that control have given cause for serious anxiety to business men and lawmakers alike, as well as to taxpayers, for it very early became evident that sharp advances in rates would never meet the increase in operating costs due to repeated and large additions to wages. The monthly railway reports have long made it evident that, if widespread disaster was to be avoided, remedial legislation would be imperatively necessary before the railway systems can be returned to private ownership. That is one of the great problems that will confront the next Congress. It must be solved, for the railroads must be given up by the Government—the people are resolved as to that.

Mr. BURLESON's escapade has brought down upon the Administration criticism severer even than that occasioned by the taking over of the railroads. He has not avoided trouble, he has seemed actually to seek it, to try to make it by his arbitrary and rough methods. He has been involved in continual quarrels. As in the case of the railways, complaints of bad service and inefficiency have multiplied and he has stirred up a deal of litigation. The power of the courts has been invoked to resist his decrees for the raising of rates; he has brought the wire systems of the country into a state of confusion of which the effects will long be evident.

The need of this assumption of power was never made clear, it has certainly not been justified by its results. As to the cables, Mr. BURLESON has been on the defensive from the beginning. There was no war need involved, for they were not taken over until the war was ended; there has never been any satisfactory explanation of why the order, somewhat furtively promulgated on Nov. 16, was dated Nov. 2—before the armistice. The public has had its suspicions which have not been dispelled. It may be said without any fear of contradiction that nothing which has been done during the period of Government control of the wires has given such a general and profound satisfaction as the announcement that as soon as possible they are to be returned to their owners.

This is a personal defeat for Mr. BURLESON, who has publicly and repeatedly declared himself to be an advocate of Government ownership of the telegraphs and telephones. Evidence of his belief that his seizure of the lines would result in permanent control is afforded by his recent formulation of a grotesque financial plan to reimburse the owners of the telegraphs and telephones without cost to the Government. The experiment comes to an end in failure and under public condemnation of it in theory, practice, and result. We cannot expect that the Postmaster General will be cheerful under this public rebuff, but it is a lesson by which he and all concerned may well profit. But, after all, we find some reason for being grateful to Postmaster General BURLESON. He has offered himself up as a sacrifice upon the altar of Government ownership, as it happened, at a fortunate moment. The minds of men have been much upset by the disturbances of war, and many of them have dreamed dreams and seen visions of a new order in the social, business, and political relations of men. But for this venture in Government control and operation of railroads and wire communications there would have been a flood of talk about the blessings of State socialism. We have had our experience, it was short and sharp, our demonstration, which is all-sufficient. The people have rendered their verdict of practically unanimous condemnation.

SPEED THE VICTORY LOAN.

The Fifth Liberty Loan is like all the earlier ones in failing to attain a rate of subscription apportioned on a daily average as officially reported, and also in being better in fact than on the record, and better in detail than in total. One of the best signs is that the rest of the country is gaining on New York. A few days ago New York's total was double the next largest district, but that disproportion is disappearing as the rest of the country is catching up. The St. Louis district is now the leader in percentage subscribed, and the advantage of leadership in interior districts is plain. New York is the only district which could be relied upon to make up any deficiency by last-minute talks over the telephone by a dozen or two bankers. The other districts could not be hurried or relied upon in that manner, for their subscriptions are more personal, and it is best that the loan should be placed by personal subscriptions.

That is being done even in New York in gratifying degree. Brooklyn is leader among the boroughs, and that is not a leading banking borough. But while Brooklyn leads among the boroughs there are outlying towns which are far ahead of Brooklyn. There is no reason why Atlanta's subscription should be less than half of the next lowest district, and no one believes that it will be content with that showing. It is more reasonable to suppose that Atlanta reports are slow, just as it is known that the official totals are slow and smaller than truth. Toledo challenges the rest of the country to equal its record of a subscription from one in each four of its population.

That is the true test of the success of the loan subscription—the distribution. If the bonds are placed in the Toledo manner, there will be proof of patriotism among the people, whereas a banking subscription would mean merely the saving of the national credit. If the banks took the notes, there would be the familiar effort to distribute the loan after the campaign ended, and that would mean the renewal of the discount, which is now the greatest discouragement to the "drive." If every district emulates Toledo in the popularity of its subscription, there will be a minimum of pressure of bonds on the market, and the day will be hastened, which certainly will come, when all issues will be quoted at a premium.

JUSTICE NEWBURGER.

The present term of JOSEPH E. NEWBURGER as a Justice of the Supreme Court in this district will end on Jan. 31. He has served for nearly fourteen years to the entire satisfaction of the public and the bar. He began his service on the bench in the City Court in 1891. Thence he went by a deserved promotion to the Court of General Sessions. Since January, 1906, he has been a Justice of the Supreme Court. The resolutions adopted by the Bar Association the other day are an excellent description of his high qualifications and fruitful work in that post:

> As a Judge he has shown marked ability, and has been exceptionally industrious and always painstaking, impartial, and courteous. He has been from the beginning constantly assigned to the difficult and important work at our Special Terms, and a large number of his decisions have been affirmed by the Appellate Division and the Court of Appeals. It seems to be the general sentiment of our bar that Mr. Justice NEWBURGER's judicial services have been eminently satisfactory, and that he should be renominated and re-elected on a nonpartisan basis.

It is the practice of THE TIMES, as it is the practice of the Bar Association, "to promote, so far as lies in its power, the renomination and re-election of tried, efficient, impartial, courteous, and incorruptible Judges." Mr. Justice NEWBURGER is emphatically such a Judge. In 1906 he received the nominations of the Republican Party, the Democratic Party, and the Independence League. He should be renominated and re-elected by both parties and by all parties that believe in an honest and an able judiciary, irrespective of and beyond politics.

REPUBLICAN FAVORITES.

A newspaper in Fort Wayne, Ind., has been conducting a straw vote among its readers to find out how public sentiment runs in that State on the subject of Presidential candidates. It is perhaps not surprising to find that Vice President MARSHALL leads on the Democratic side, as he is an Indiana man. On the Republican side, although various Indianians, GOODRICH, NEW, and WATSON, figured in the balloting, the most popular candidate is General LEONARD WOOD, who is so far from being an Indiana man that he comes from New Hampshire, a State which has not had a President since FRANKLIN PIERCE was elected in 1852.

The Wood movement was started in Denver not long ago, and all over New England leagues in favor of his nomination are being formed. Though born in the East and supported by the East, he seems to be regarded, as his friend THEODORE ROOSEVELT was always regarded, as more a Western candidate than an Eastern one. His sympathies are progressive and Western, and the West seems to have taken charge of his political fortunes.

The Harding boom seems to have been still-born, as it was in 1916. Senator HARDING is a man of pleasing personality, but his nomination would certainly mean a split in which the Progressives of the West would play some such part as they did in 1912—not so dangerous perhaps, because there was only one THEODORE ROOSEVELT and he is dead, but a good deal more than the Republican Party would care to encounter.

GIFFORD PINCHOT was kind enough to include the name of Senator LENROOT of Wisconsin in his list of eligibles, but it is a little too early for Mr. LENROOT. Some years will have to go by before the people can forget his vote on the Gore-McLemore resolution. Senator BORAH voted for WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN in 1896, and while this may not be an unpardonable sin, it will still take a few years to pardon it. Governor LOWDEN of Illinois is an unimpeachable candidate, but he is still too local and too easily classified by the contemptuous name of "favorite son."

There remain Mr. HUGHES and Senator JOHNSON. It is curious that Mr. HUGHES, like Mr. TAFT, did not figure in the Indiana straw vote; and if there is anything that the last election taught us it is that the West has got to be taken into consideration. We mean especially the Far West, and it may be that Mr. HUGHES is more popular in the Rocky Mountains and points west than he is in Indiana. As for Mr. JOHNSON, we doubt very much if he has helped himself by his course in Congress. The tendency will be toward the nomination of a man who is neither extremely radical nor extremely conservative. That would exclude Mr. JOHNSON.

THE DIRECTOR GENERAL AS A PRICE FIXER.

Director General HINES has accepted the offer of the Industrial Board "to "bring together the representatives "of the Railroad Administration and "the steel producers." The words imply a reproach that the Industrial Board had not before brought together the representatives of the railways and the steel producers, and the Director General still holds his "opinion" that prices in general are too high. The Industrial Board's position has been that prices it fixed were based on a disinterested study of costs of production and were not based on opinions. Therefore, there was no reason why the buyers and sellers of railway steel should confer any more than the buyers and sellers of all commodities, which is impracticable. No doubt the railways are wholesale buyers, but the prices were fixed for all buyers. A Government bureau could not make variable schedules, higher for some and lower for others, because of the multitude of conditions which control commercial business. The Industrial Bureau attempted nothing more than to determine what were reasonable prices for both sides of the bargain for many materials of basic industries, without consideration of individual buyers or sellers. The board's effort was to erect standards for the guidance of those who wished to conform to them. Nobody was ordered to produce the goods or to buy them. The Director General exercised the privilege not to abstain from buying, but to dispute the prices and the policy on which they were fixed.

The privilege belonged rather to other buyers than to himself, because he represented a department of Government and had been consulted by the board, whereas other buyers had not been. The question raised is the conformity of Government to prices fixed by Government, as is shown by the Navy Department also refusing to buy at the Government price on pending orders for 20,000 tons. With two Government departments disagreeing with a third, private buyers naturally were confused and discouraged. As the board's Chairman said at St. Louis yesterday, the effect of the policy had been immediate and considerable stimulation of buying, but the effect of the Director General's action had been to check the movement.

That the board's reduction of steel prices was considerable appears from the fact that it is below the index for all commodity prices for February, and from the arrest of production to an extent which is increasing costs of production. Overhead costs and wages remaining unchanged, the unit of cost rises as production falls. If the board had cut steel prices further in an attempt to pacify the Director General, it would have shared his responsibility for bringing conditions to the wage-cutting stage. The cheapening of rails to the railways by $2 a ton is not worth the demoralization of trade which is risked by present conditions. Wages and employment can be maintained only by maintaining the volume of steel business, and there never was a time when it was more desirable that wages and prices should move in relation. Once the steel producers threatened the railways. Now the railways are reversing that situation, and do so when they have peremptorily advanced both wages and rates. The alternative to an open market in all prices and wages is orderly regulation of descent toward normal conditions, with advantages to none. If Government departments refuse to co-operate and trade agreements are not allowed, it is difficult to see how confusion and contention can be escaped.

There need be no reluctance in considering the merits of the railway contention that rail prices are too high, although the general range of prices is outside the Director General's jurisdiction and within the Industrial Board's. Six tons of materials must be moved to produce one ton of rails, and the railways would be paid for the six tons more than they would lose on the price of rails. The steel producers are not complaining of railway rates, although the Steel Corporation alone paid the railways $189,000,000 last year, and that is less than half of what the railways profit through the producers whose prices they are now contesting. The price of rails is related to the price of all the materials in the rails, and to the scale of prices of all steel goods. If the other steel prices are right, and they are not disputed, the price of rails ought to be above that fixed by the board, and the board's price certainly is below the price of rails for export. It is not forgotten that the opinion of Director of Steel Supply REPLOGLE favors abandonment of the price-fixing policy and the immediate opening of the market for steel. That is a counsel of perfection, undoubtedly to be aimed at, but by degrees, not by a convulsion. Paternalism is obnoxious and should be ended, but not all at once.

A CANDIDATE WAITS WITHOUT.

According to a correspondent of The World, Count VON BROCKDORFF-RANTZAU, head of the German delegation to the Peace Conference, will enliven that body at his earliest opportunity by a speech of one hour's duration, which has already been written for him by somebody else and is at present undergoing revision by a committee of experts in the art of saying much and admitting nothing. Germany stands before the wicket gate and knocks, but not in the hair shirt of penitence; she is clad in the shining white of a pure and spotless neophyte asking initiation into the League of Nations. BROCKDORFF-RANTZAU will entertain the Conference with > a long but masterful, (sic,) even brilliant, exposition of the new German profession of faith in honest pacifism, disarmament, arbitration, the freedom of the seas, a League of Nations, and President WILSON. He will seek to create an initial favorable attitude by trying to impress the Conference with his own frankness and honesty as the principal mouthpiece of the new German diplomacy, to strengthen the impression that Machiavelism is in the morgue so far as Germany is concerned, and that Germany is enthusiastically a sincere convert to honesty as the best policy; * * * that weak, small nations, let alone France, have nothing to fear from Germany in future; that militarism is dead and its resurrection is unthinkable.

In correspondence with this plan, we are informed, the Great General Staff is to be disbanded with much parade at the psychological moment; the German delegates will scrupulously refrain not only from trying to set one ally against another, but from taking advantage of any differences that may arise without their assistance; they take their stand firmly on the Fourteen Points—as interpreted by themselves, with special emphasis on the freedom of the seas.

It seems to have been no typographical error that referred to him as "Con" VON BROCKDORFF-RANTZAU.

MIDDLE WEST CONSCIOUSNESS.

It is a surprise to find The Chicago Tribune pleading for the development of "Middle West consciousness." In the benighted East there has been an impression that the consciousness, not to say the self-consciousness, of the Middle West was amply developed. It is a region of great prosperities, of much public spirit, passionately addicted to social and political reforms, and justly entitled to think no small beer of itself. Toward New York, in particular, it turns a condescending or a severe eye. New York, in the theory of the Middle West philosophers, is parochial and provincial. In the broader and heartier Middle West men's hearts are more open and their views are more extensive and unprejudiced.

Having been taught to venerate the opinions of the Middle West, are we now to be told that that fortunate region is not conscious of itself, is blind to its own merits? This is a thing difficult for its Eastern disciples to believe. Perhaps a close examination might show, indeed, that the name Middle West is more comprehensive than the facts warrant. For example, the consciousness of Indiana, all for literature and politics, must be different from that of Kansas, which is all for reform. North Dakota belongs, perhaps, rather to Colonel PAT DONAN's Banana Belt than to the Middle West, but, as a member of the latter, its consciousness must be more colored by State socialism than that of any of its fellow-members.

The consciousness of Illinois might be simpler if Chicago and WILLIAM HALE THOMPSON and the various confusions and complexities of Cook County could be set one side. One cannot imagine the same consciousness for Wisconsin and for Ohio. Possibly our Chicago contemporary seeks to make all the States of the Middle West alike, a task that will require a good deal of time.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

As the Young Men See Them.

Why will newspapers send out verdantly youthful reporters to get interviews with husky men long past their own age? MORGAN J. O'BRIEN had a birthday on Monday. A reporter describes him as "hale and hearty at 68." What else should he be? A reporter at 20 or so looks on the Judge as a patriarch. It is not so long since a reporter, referring to some incident in which ex-Senator JOHN C. SPOONER was involved, described him as a "middle-aged man." Now, Mr. SPOONER is 76 years old, but looks middle-aged. He always has looked middle-aged since he became 40 years old. He will never look any older as long as he lives. If the reporter had known how old Mr. SPOONER was he would probably have described him as decrepit.

WOODROW WILSON is 62 years old, but would anybody ever think of describing him as "hale and hearty at 62"? The eyes of youth look at these things in a curiously ignorant way. One of PICKETT's veterans who had gone over the top with General ARMISTEAD at the Bloody Angle, and saw him die, was describing his death at the Gettysburg reunion of 1913. His eyes filled with tears as he said, "And he was an old man, too, past 60." The truth is that General ARMISTEAD was 41, and that appeared a great age to the young Virginian, who was not over 18 when he saw his General fall. Times have changed, and men—and women, too, for that matter—are younger at 60 and 70 than they ever were before.

He Is Now Sir Harry Lauder.

It is not easy to realize that the quaint Scotch minstrel of the music halls, who from the stage has called upon the audience so often to join in the chorus of his ballads and topical songs, is to be made a knight. Never had knight a humbler origin or a more singular career. He tells you in his autobiography in the English "Who's Who" that he was educated by "STUMPY BALL as a half-timer in Arbroath," and that he was "first a mill boy in a flax-spinning mill, then a miner, now is what the people have made him." It was at his native Arbroath that HARRY LAUDER sang his first song as an amateur when a "star" was missing. In the vernacular, he did not "get the hook," being applauded from the start.

HARRY LAUDER, as he became famous, made pretensions to some education. He tells us that he has written a Scotch comedy; also that he is a composer—of his own music, which is so much broken by monologue often better than the score. Like more distinguished men in "Who's Who," he has his recreations: "trying to hit a wee gutty ba'; trying to catch salmon and trout, motoring, shooting." He is a clubman, too: the "Tooting Bec and Kirn Golf." So he was gradually qualifying for society far above the pit mouth and those obscure days of poverty. The most democratic of all wars has translated HARRY LAUDER into a knight, and richly he deserves the honor, as compared with a great many previous aspirants and doubtless with some of the new company in which he finds himself, for he has done his "bit" in the war in his human and useful way, inspiring his countrymen to greater sacrifices and forever endearing himself to them, on the stricken fields of France.

Rents and Prices.

The National Industrial Council reports that between the signing of the armistice in November and March there were two increases in the items which make up the cost of living, and two decreases. Food and clothing are lower, shelter and fuel higher. On the whole the cost of living in recent weeks is lower by 2.8 per cent. That is an encouraging contrast with an increase of 61 per cent. for the war period, in which all items wore ascension robes. The point of particular local interest is that the rate of increase is least where the complaint is loudest. Clothing has risen almost four times as much as rent, and food more than three times. Food accounts for 48 per cent. of this authoritative budget, and clothing for 13 per cent., but the complaints on account of the 18 per cent. represented by shelter, or rent, drown out the complaints on the other 82 per cent.

There seem to be two reasons. The high cost of food represents self-denial. We could not expect to export food products by millions of tons and hundreds of millions of value and still have cheap food. We have not starved that others might eat, but we have voluntarily and cheerfully paid more for our food than many could well afford. Thus millions have lived who otherwise would swell the millions of dead debited to German ruthlessness and treachery. The outcry about rents is due in some degree to the belief that landlords are rich, and that they could better endure the burden of the rising cost of living than their tenants could endure dearer lodgings. Often that is true, but it is not the rich landlords who are mostly complained of. Here, at least, the loudest complaints are against landlords who are little if any richer than their tenants. The tenants fancy that they do not pay taxes because they do not see tax bills. The landlords know that they pay taxes both because they see the bills and because they have in multitudes of cases lost their property through foreclosures due to tax increases reducing the value of their savings. There is no deficiency of sympathy with the tenants in sympathizing also with the troubles of those who have seen their properties depreciate in value as their taxes rose by leaps and bounds. If the landlords had complained as loudly as their tenants, they might have stopped the rise in taxes, and houses would have been built to supply the demand. It is cold comfort, but also it is truth, that New York rents are likely to be dear as long as there is a deficiency of accommodations, whoever complains.

Bluebeard Has His Followers.

The best traditions of French detective fiction are followed out in the story, of which the cables have from time to time given us installments, of HENRI LANDRU and the ten widows. There was the lonely suburban villa, surrounded by a high stone wall at a considerable distance from the house, which was the residence of the mysterious stranger. There were the lonely ladies, each with a modest property, who answered his advertisements in the matrimonial columns. There was the heart interest of ten successive honeymoons in the walled dovecot, each of them followed by the mysterious disappearance of the bride, and the "heavy smoke coming from the chimney." LANDRU, perhaps, would have ensnared his eleventh victim and her property but for the fact that the tenth had a pet dog. The lady seems to have been easily disposed of, but LANDRU had trouble with the dog; and though the faithful pet was eventually killed, he had time to emit a few yelps which were heard by pedestrians hurrying past the house of mystery at nightfall. And now the police have arrested LANDRU.

Defenders of Bluebeard, however, assert that that worthy of times past is slandered by the comparison. Bluebeard duly married his successive wives; he has never been called a fortune hunter; and the penalty which he inflicted upon each of them was what in those days would have been regarded more or less as the legitimate consequence of failing to obey the orders of a husband, lord, and master. LANDRU was of a more sordid type.

A BELGIAN'S TESTIMONY

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In view of the recent letter of President Butler relating to the treatment of professors by the German Army, I think the inclosed communication which I have recently received from a prominent scholar in Belgium may be of interest to your readers. Father Vanhée is a Jesuit scholar of wide reputation, and is, perhaps, the best European authority on the history of Chinese mathematics.

Feb. 24, 1919.

My Dear Teacher:

Of course you made several times the attempt to get into communication with me. I sent you once a letter by a friend of mine in Switzerland, at the early stage of the war.

Just after the armistice I wrote once more to you directly.

Our home here was not disturbed, but the Germans behaved very cruelly against us. I was taken a prisoner and put in close confinement during nine months, without any visit, without books, without the necessary food and clothing; and finally condemned to four years' hard work! I am, of course, very tired and fatigued. Nevertheless, I hope I will soon be able to get again at work.

I never would have thought the Germans as a nation were so cruel, so barbarian, and so false! You will never realize what we have had to suffer since five years!

Yours very sincerely,
L. VANHEE, S. J.

What Italy Forgets.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

What Orlando and Italy seem to overlook is the fact that all the increase of territory promised in the now discredited secret treaty with Great Britain, and Fiume thrown in, could offer for Italy's security not one tithe of that which will be found in the complete breaking up of the empire of her traditional and most dangerous enemy, which has come through the victory in which American valor had at least a very creditable part.

In that and in the League of Nations will be the strength of her defense. Let our brave ally calm down a little and do some sober thinking.

LIFE IS WORTH LIVING.

In spite of its fever of vague unrest,
The sneers that mock and the tears that fall,
The hearts that break and the souls oppressed;
For God, Who watcheth, He knoweth best—
And life is worth living after all.

Hope still smiles after bitter pain;
And under love's sorrowful, sweet refrain
Are echoes of laughter, soft and low;
Seeds that are scattered shall blossom again,
And the sunshine come when the shadows go.

Toil is lightened by noontide rest,
And baby lips on the mother's breast
Blot out the losses beyond recall;
The robin sings as he builds his nest—
And life is worth living after all.

For sweet are the greetings when day is done,
And tender the hands that cling to ours.
And after this world with its sun and its showers,
And its ties that are broken one by one,
Sound is the sleep under drifting flowers—

IDA GOLDSMITH MORRIS.

Tennessee Will Be Named by Daughter of Gov. Roberts.

The superdreadnought Tennessee, up to this time the largest and most powerful battle unit ever built in the history of the world, will be launched at the navy yard in Brooklyn at 9:45 o'clock this morning. As the giant fighter is released from the ways, Miss Helen Roberts, a daughter of Governor A. H. Roberts of Tennessee, will smash a bottle of champagne against the prow of the ship, and from that moment the battleship will officially become the fifth fighting ship named Tennessee in American history. The Tennesseeans had expected that water from a spring near The Hermitage, the famous home of Andrew Jackson, would be used in naming the vessel, but other arrangements had been made, so that the ship that bears the name of a "bone dry" State will plunge into the water with champagne dripping from her red-painted bow.

The launching party from Tennessee, headed by the Governor and his daughter, arrived in New York yesterday morning. Miss Roberts, who is 16 years of age, will be attended during the launching ceremony by thirteen Tennessee girls. The young women who will be aids of honor to Miss Roberts are Miss Evelyn Todd of Murfreesboro, Miss Grace Humphreys of Lebanon, Miss Laura Celeste Hale of Murfreesboro, Miss Cornelia Bratten of Watertown, Miss Geraldine Ford of Gallatin, Miss Alix Field of Knoxville, Miss Clarana Wrenne Sumpter of Nashville, Miss Mamie D. Long of Springfield, Miss Josephine Carter of Sweet Water, Miss Mildred Welch of Nashville, and the Misses Mary Elizabeth and Christine Maxwell of Cookeville. There are thirty-three other persons, including Judge and Mrs. C. J. St. John, Mrs. A. L. Todd, Colonel T. W. Wrenne, Colonel Gillem Maxwell, Colonel and Mrs. F. L. Pittman, Colonel S. E. Cleate, Colonel and Mrs. C. H. Bacon, General P. B. Whitaker, Colonel M. M. Ford, Colonel and Mrs. G. C. Davis, Colonel Caesar Thomas, Major R. W. Hale, and Colonel A. B. Humphreys in the Governor's party.

Governor Roberts, who was elected Chief Executive of Tennessee as a prohibitionist, frankly stated that he regretted that wine instead of water was going to be used to name the Tennessee. He said he had wired to the Navy Department that there was some sentiment in the State against using wine to name a ship that bears the name of a prohibition State, and that the department replied that arrangements had been made and that it was preferred that the original program should stand. The Governor made no further objection, and so champagne won the day.

The Navy Yard authorities issued a request to the holders of tickets for the launching to be at the yard not later than 9 o'clock this morning. About 75,000 tickets have been issued.

The principal official guests today will be acting Secretary of the Nevy Franklin D. Roosevelt, Admiral Mayo, the Commander in Chief, and Vice Admiral Wilson, the second in command of the Atlantic Fleet; Rear Admiral William S. Sims, President of the Naval War College; Rear Admiral Hugh Rodman, who commanded the American division in the Grand Fleet; Rear Admiral James H. Glennon, commanding the Third Naval District; Rear Admiral Samuel McGowan, the Paymaster General of the Navy; Major Gen. Thomas H. Barry, commanding the Department of the East on Governors Island; Major Gen. David C. Shanks, commanding the Port of Embarkation in Hoboken; United States Senators Wadsworth and Calder, and Congressman Lemuel P. Padgett, of Tennessee, the retiring chairman of the House Committee in Naval Affairs. There will also be present a large delegation of State and city officials.

The Tennessee will be manned by a crew of 58 officers and 1,024 men. This ship will burn oil exclusively, and like the New Mexico, will be equipped with electric drive. The keel of the Tennessee was laid on May 14, 1917. Although her construction has been materially delayed on account of urgent war-work, it is expected that she will be completed early in 1920. As soon as the Tennessee is launched, the present ways are to be reconstructed for the purpose of constructing battleship No. 50, which has been assigned to this Navy Yard.

The naval officers who have directed the construction of the Tennessee, and who will be in command at this morning's ceremonies, are: Captain George H. Rock, U. S. N.; Captain J. A. Spilman, Captain B. B. Dungan and Commander C. H. Jones, all of them of the Construction Corps.

TELLS OF CHAOS IN TURKEY.

Luther R. Fowle Says Country Wants American Control.

Starvation, pillage, intense suffering, and generally chaotic conditions in Turkey were pictured yesterday by Luther R. Fowle, who arrived here late Monday night after having spent seven years in that country. During the last few years Mr. Fowle administered the financial affairs of the Armenian and Syrian Relief Commission. Mr. Fowle held out great hopes for the future of the country if a stable administration could be set up by the United States or one of the European nations. He declared that the Americans were the only ones who were trusted in Turkey, because during the last few decades they had proved themselves through their missions and schools to be honest and disinterested, whereas European diplomacy had often turned out to be untrustworthy.

It was announced yesterday by the Armenian and Syrian Relief Commission that for this work in the Near East John Galsworthy has contributed $4,000. This sum Mr. Galsworthy, in a letter accompanying the contribution, said, is the net profit of his lecture tour in this country.

"The confidence that President Wilson has instilled, and, through him, the veneration in which this country is held," said Mr. Fowle, "is indicated by the fact that members of the Greek church, as they come down the main street of Constantinople, can be seen crossing themselves as they pass the picture of the President. In him they see the one guarantee of fair treatment for everybody, great and small, and if they were to choose any foreign Government to help them out of their difficulties, it would be the United States. In fact, there has been formed in Constantinople a Turkish-Wilsonian League, of which all the editors of Turkish papers in that city, except a Bolshevist paper, are members. The League petitioned Wilson and the United States Government to take in charge the Government of Turkey for a period of say 50 years, appointing their own administrators to the Departments of Finance, Agriculture, and Justice.

"Despite the terrible conditions prevailing, there is not the slightest sign of Bolshevism, for the character of the Turks seems to be such that they would rather be led than to take matters into their own hands. However, the food situation is being relieved through the work of Hoover. Howard Heinz is his representative in Constantinople and he is already bringing flour into that city and into Constanza in Rumania, with the result that the price of bread has been cut in half, and bread to the Turks is now synonymous with food. This has had a tremendous moral and political effect in adding to the prestige of the Americans, who, they feel, are responsible for it, and who have brought it about from wholly unselfish motives. There is actually a great deal of food in Turkey, but the great difficulty is in getting it transported and distributed.

"Despite the many obstacles, at no time has the work of relief been halted. In twenty large centers it has been the only hope of the people when there seemed to be nothing at all to hope for. When people were fighting hard to live, it came not only as a physical, but as a moral uplift. It was a checkmate to the efforts of the officials to wipe the Armenians out of existence, and more than that, it took from the German and Turkish armies the food that would otherwise have gone to them.

"What the conditions are may be guessed from the fact that in Tiflis in the Caucasus Mountains there are 150 deaths a day from typhus fever, and further back in the region of Kuban and the Don, there were 100,000 cases among the people. In the latter district there are no hospital supplies. The doctors are dying at the rate of 33 per cent. a year, which means that in three years there will be no more doctors, and the nurses are passing away at the rate of 19 per cent. a year. Conditions are intolerable and something must be done."

SAYS JAPAN WANTS SIBERIA TO PROSPER

HOPES SOON TO SEE PEACE

Declares Attitude Toward Asiatic Neighbor Is the Same as That Held by America.

Russian conditions and elements affecting them were discussed last night at a meeting of the Council on Foreign Relations held in the Hotel Astor. Dr. V. Stefansson, the explorer, presided, and among the speakers were Baron Shimpei Goto, former Japanese Foreign Minister; Allen Wardwell of Stetson, Jennings & Russell; Dr. William C. Huntington, American Commercial Attaché in Russia, and Cornelius K. Callahan of Gaston, Williams & Wigmore. In the course of his remarks, Baron Goto said:

"In dealing with the difficult and delicate situation in Siberia, it was my good fortune to co-operate with your President and with your Secretary of State. On Aug. 3, the State Department at Washington issued a statement declaring that in sending troops to Siberia the United States contemplated no interference with the political sovereignty of Russia, no intervention in her internal affairs, no impairment of her territorial integrity. It further declared that the sole purpose of America in entering Siberia was the rendering of such aid as should be acceptable to the Russian people in their endeavors to regain control of their own affairs. The spirit manifested in this American declaration is the same as that which has guided Japan's steps in Siberia.

"I am happy to observe that the American declaration is almost identical with our own statement of the aims and purposes of the allied enterprise in Siberia. What was set forth in the Japanese proclamation is a clear indication of what Japan has been trying to do for Siberia and will yet endeavor to accomplish. I need not assure you that Japan has never deviated, and will never deviate, from the policy defined in the statement by her Foreign Department.

"The world is grieved that the political horizon of Siberia is still dark. The cloud of discord and disturbance hangs over it. Even the wisest would not dare forecast its future. And yet we have not lost faith and confidence in the Russian people. We hope and trust that the great people of Russia will eventually emerge from the present state of chaos and disorganization and will succeed in establishing a stable government upon advanced and sound principles.

"As far as Japan is concerned, she has a definite idea as to the course she should follow in Siberia. She has pledged herself to a policy of noninterference in the internal affairs of Siberia. She is Russia's immediate neighbor in the east, and no nation can be more anxious than Japan to see a speedy restoration of peace and order in the regions across the Japan Sea. No nation would welcome more gladly than Japan an opportunity to contribute a widow's mite toward the great task of development which awaits the efforts of the Russian people, who will, I trust, undoubtedly follow the counsel of wisdom in molding their destiny."

Baron Goto outlined what Japanese rule had accomplished in Korea and in Manchuria, especially in widening agriculture and generally awakening the country, and concluded by saying:

"If the Russians in Siberia are disposed to invite our co-operation in the development of their country, we shall not shrink from the responsibilities which dictates of humanity and international unity may impose upon us. And in playing the modest rôle which may be assigned to her in the progress of Siberia, Japan will consider it a great privilege to co-operate not only with the great and generous people of Russia, but with the noble and humanitarian people of the great Republic of America."

"The Bolsheviks profess an economic theory which, aside from the question of its morality, cannot be successful," said Mr. Wardwell. He said that the theory would inevitably fail either by a complete breakdown or by the necessity of making such modifications as would fit it to deal with existing facts.

"One of the Bolshevik principles," he pointed out, "is the international revolution, namely, an attempt to create similar revolutionary movements in other countries. This effort of itself creates a danger which should be overcome in some manner. From whatever cause, the Bolsheviks for more than a year and a half have been in control of certain portions of European Russia, the former centres of industry, and there is no substantial evidence as yet that their power is waning."

Mr. Wardell said that although large numbers of people were actually starving because of Bolshevist rule, there was no indication that this condition was lessening the grip of Lenin and Trotzky upon the common people. He said that in the event that intervention is not going to be pushed then the associated powers should lift the embargo, and by sending food into the country put the burden of failure, when it comes, directly upon the Bolsheviks. "We should try to prove we are willing to help in the economic reorganization and if they refuse the fault is their own."

GOMPERS IS IMPROVING.

Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, who was injured Sunday when a trolley car struck the taxicab in which he was riding, continued yesterday to improve. Barring unforeseen developments, he probably will be able to attend the Federation's Executive Council meeting in Washington, May 9.

Following the arrival at the Hotel Continental of a huge basket of flowers with a White House card attached, Joseph Tumulty, Secretary to the President, last night forwarded this cable from Paris:

Dr. Charles R. Hancock and Dr. Charles H. Peck found Mr. Gompers cheerful after a sound night's sleep. They discussed the advisability of an X-ray examination, but decided it was unnecessary. A further examination established that only one rib was broken, and that the hip, at first thought to be sprained, had been merely badly wrenched. Mr. Gompers's pulse and temperature were normal and the physicians agreed complete recovery was only a question of rest and quiet.

"Mr. Gompers shows the effect of the shock. The pains are diminishing. He is very much improved, but shock is the main thing. There is no fever and the pulse is normal. Conditions make it necessary for absolute quiet."

A note and a box of flowers were received from Sir Thomas Lipton, who is at the Commodore. Flowers also were received from the Washington Lodge of Elks and from the Masonic Lodge of that city, to both of which Mr. Gompers belongs. Among those who called in person was former United States Senator Theodore Burton of Ohio.

TELLS OF $40,000 FEE FOR ROSS M'ADOO

Elihu B. Frost of 270 Park Avenue, New York, testified in the Chancery Court at Newark yesterday that Henry R. Carse, President and voting trustee of the Electric Boat Company, told him he had given Malcolm Ross McAdoo $40,000 to get Government contracts for submarines. Of this amount $25,000 was to go to McAdoo's brother, William G. McAdoo, then Secretary of the Treasury, Frost said Carse had told him.

"I remonstrated with Carse for paying such a fee to a man who had never even seen a submarine," said Frost, who was a former Vice President and is still a voting trustee of the company. "Carse said to me: 'Fifteen thousand goes to relieve him of some judgments and the other $25,000 goes to his brother.'

"I said: 'Carse, that's bribery. I am glad I didn't know it before you did it!' and he replied, 'That's all right. I've confused the transaction.' This entry of $40,000 didn't get on the books of the company till eight months afterward."

Frost, who is a voting trustee of the company, is suting to have Carse, who is treasurer of the Hanover Safe Deposit Company, and associated with the Hanover National Bank, removed as voting trustee of the Electric Boat Company. Frost charges that Carse is not working in the interests of the Electric Boat Company but is diverting business to the Sumbarine Boat Corporation, of which Carse is President.

Frost said he met Lawrence Y. Spear and Gregory C. Davison, technical experts and also voting Trustees, at Delmonico's later the same day on which he had his conversation with Carse.

"I detailed what I had said to Carse," he said, "and asked what they thought of the mixup. Spear said, 'I wish I had the law in my hands. I'd find out from the life insurance companies how long you had to live and then sentence you to twice that term for ever letting that bird in the company.'"

Frost said he fell out with Carse because Carse interfered with the company's technical staff at New London.

"Do you know anything besides the McAdoo incident and the disagreement about the New London plant that estranged wou and Mr. Carse?" asked Robert H. McCarter, counsel for Frost.

"To understand the matter I'd have to tell you more about Mr. McAdoo. I was seen by Carse walking on the street and lunching with Ross McAdoo. This was in the Fall of 1916, and Carse's attitude toward McAdoo had changed. He had told me McAdoo might go over to our competitors, the Lake Company. He called him dishonorable.

The Submarine Boat Corporation was organized in 1915, supposedly as holding company for the Electric Boat Company.

"The Submarine Boat was organized when the stock of the Electric Boat had gone to $540, and ten shares of Submarine Boat were given for one of Electric Boat, so that the stock could be dealt in on 'the Street,'" said Frost.

Carse's connection with the Electric Boat came about through the fact that the company was negotiating loans through the Hanover National Bank, of which Carse was Vice President. In 1913, when the Electric Boat Company was in financial difficulties, Carse resigned. He came back into the company in April, 1915, as a voting trustee, and in August of that year succeeded Isaac L. Rice as President.

Frost said he proposed that Carse accept the presidency, as Carse's advice had always been good and conservative, but that after he became President he began to disrupt the organization.

The Electric Boat Company was formed in 1899, succeeding the old Holland Boat Company, and taking over the inventions of the late John P. Holland of Newark. From $8 a share in 1910 the stock jumped to $540 in 1914, he said.

DENIAL BY MR. McADOO.

CHICAGO, April 29.—Ex-Secretary William G. McAdoo denied tonight any knowledge of transactions with the Electric Boat Company of New York.

When a dispatch from New York outlining the testimony of Elihu B. Frost in his action against Harry R. Carse, in Newark, N. J., was shown to Mr. McAdoo, he said:

"I never knew anything of my brother's transactions, but I suppose if he received $40,000 it was probably for services rendered. He was consulting engineer for the firm. I never met Mr. Carse, and knew nothing of my brother's business with him.

"I note that Mr. Frost does not make the charge on his own responsibility, but says Mr. Carse told him so."

Mr. McAdoo then denounced the charge as utterly false.

FIND BURNED BONES IN LANDRU'S STABLE

PARIS, April 29.—A search by a Magistrate and the police authorities of the villa of Henri Landru, at Gambaix, a suburb of Paris, the disappearance from which of a number of women led some time ago to the arrest of Landru, has resulted in the finding in the carriage house at the end of the garden of an enormous heap of cinders.

Among the cinders, according to the authorities, were calcined bones, pieces of ribs, tibias, arm bones, one tooth, a fragment of melted glass, and one hairpin. The landlord of the villa is to be questioned by the authorities tomorrow as to whether Landru is in any way connected with the discovery.

The chief evidence against Landru, according to the police, has been supplied by papers found in his possession. These, it is asserted, included a list of eleven persons—ten women and the young son of one of the women. It has been ascertained, say the police, that the ten women have been missing since various dates, ranging from August, 1914, to January, 1919.

Landru is said t have kept careful accounts of his expenditures. These show that several times he took a return trip ticket and a single trip ticket when he went to Cambaix. Up to the present no trace of any of the missing women has been found.

The missing women were acquaintances of Landru, who was declared to have made a specialty of becoming engaged to widows. The police asserted that from papers found in Landru's possession they believed he had had at least ten fiancees, who could not be found.

C. VANDERBILT, JR., IS 21.

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt will give a dinner and dance tonight at her residence, 640 Fifth Avenue, in celebration of the 21st birthday of her son, Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., recently a private in the 27th Division, in which his father was a Brigadier General. Young Vanderbilt was preparing for Yale when, in July, 1917, he enlisted in the army and was assigned to the headquarters troop of the 27th Division.

He was General O'Ryan's chauffeur when the division went to France. He left France in August, 1918, to go to America Lake, Washington, to act as transportation instructor. On the day of the armistice his commission was signed, but under Secretary Baker's ruling it was void. Mr. Vanderbilt received his discharge at Camp Upton early in the year.

SUED BY MRS. GERAGHTY.

NEWPORT, April 29.—It was learned today that Mrs. Julia French Geraghty, daughter of Mrs. Pauline Leroy French and Amos Tuck French, had filed suit for separate maintenance from her husband, Jack Geraghty, with whom she eloped in August, 1911.

Today it was learned that Stephen J. Casey, a Providence attorney, was acting for Mrs. Geraghty and that he had been here on Monday afternoon in regard to legal proceedings. The clerk of the Superior Court admitted that papers had been filed, alleging non-support. The case cannot be heard until June.

and which took into consideration the hours that traffic moved and the need for men at these hours.

In his letter of Monday to A. H. Smith, Regional Director, Paul A. Vacarelli, Vice President of the International Longshoremen's Association, said that he was unable to reach an agreement with the Assistant Regional Director regarding the definite starting time. He informed Mr. Smith of the plans for the mass meeting last night, and said he was sure that if something were done a general strike might be averted. He said that the men would agree to a starting time as early as 7 o'clock in the morning, but they insisted on being paid at the rate of time and a half for any other work necessary to be done before that time.

"May I prevail upon you to use your good offices and influence to establish a definite starting time which is not unreasonable for the men to demand and receive, to the end that a general strike may be avoided," he continued. "I have been able to prevent this up till now, but there is a limit to the patience of the men, and my ability to hold them in check much longer than tomorrow night. As it stands now, they are determined to take matters into their own hands with or without orders."

Regional Director Smith, in his reply to Mr. Vacarelli yesterday, quoted the memorandum signed on March 30 by Vacarelli, which said that, pending decision by the Regional Director, the present method of starting hours was to continue subject to change by not less than forty-eight hours' advance notice. He said that men who choose to remain in the railroad service must observe agreements until they are modified. The needs of the service require, said Mr. Smith, that a few men shall go to work at an hour earlier than 7 o'clock in order that food and perishable goods for the sustenance of the people may be delivered. He declared that no undue burden was placed on the men required to go to work earlier than 7 o'clock, as they are not expected to work more than eight hours unless unusual conditions arise. He concluded by saying that he regretted that he could not accede to Vacarelli's request.

LISTS TWO "GENERALS."

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The Official Army Register for 1918, the first issue of this periodical, which gives the name, rank, and precedence of every officer in the regular establishment, to appear since December, 1915, has just come from the printer. The publication for 1916 and 1917 was held up for military reasons.

The new issue, under the "Permanent Establishment" head, gives Peyton C. March and John J. Pershing as holding the rank of General, and lists Hunter Liggett and Robert L. Bullard as the only Lieutenant Generals. Leonard Wood heads the list of permanent Major Generals, which now includes eighty-nine names. RETIRES TO HELP A FRIEND.

Police Captain Place, on Deathbed, Does It to Aid Lieut. McAuley.

Police Captain Charles A. Place, in command of Traffic Precinct D, in Classon Avenue, Brooklyn, made a deathbed retirement from the Police Force yesterday, so that a friend might be elevated to the vacancy before the eligible list expired at midnight today.

Lieutenant James McAuley, in whose favor Captain Place retired from the force, probably will be made a Captain today, as his name is at the head of the eligible list. Captain Place has been a patient for some days in St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Manhattan, suffering from an incurable disease.

When he realized that the end was near, Captain Place called Father John Coogan, Police Chaplain, and Lieutenant McAuley to his bedside and told them of his intention to retire. A retirement application blank was brought to him, which he signed with faltering hand. Had he not done this, Lieutenant McAuley would have been forced to take another examination, which might have resulted in his being disqualified.

Captain Place has been on the Police Force for twenty-seven years.

Wine Merchant Murdered.

Joseph Cere, an Italian wine merchant of 2,353 Crotona Avenue, the Bronx, was found dead early yesterday morning, with a bullet through his head, in front of a vacant lot a block from his home. After investigating for hours, the police last night announced they were unable to supply a motive for the shooting. According to Rafaelle Morelli, a partner of the dead man, Cere left the store at 8 o'clock on Monday night. Hours after, a man asleep in a hotel at Crotona Avenue and 183d Street was awakened by shots and saw three men running away. The police investigation disclosed that Cere had been shot as he was about to enter his home and, although mortally wounded, had staggered down to the spot where he dropped.

MACK'S PEPPERY YOUTHS TAKE SAND FROM SHORE, AND YANKEES HAVE A VERY ROUGH TRIP

SHORE'S FIRST BOW A DISMAL FAILURE

JOHNSON IN FINE FORM

Huggins's Men Start Rally in Ninth Inning, but It Comes Too Late and Nets Only One Tally.

Ernie Shore started his first game for the Yankees at the Polo Grounds yesterday, and was going along fairly well until the seventh inning, when Connie Mack's youthful athletes started an uprising and drove Shore out of the game. The Mackmen took the game, 7 to 1. Shore wasn't batted unusually hard, but he got an idea that the home plate was behind the batsman instead of in front of him. He got so wild in the seventh that when he had filled the bases, after a single and two passes, he gave another walk and forced in a run. Ernie then resigned in favor of George Mogridge.

Against the Yankees Mack pitched Jingling Johnson, a sturdy youngster with a moist delivery and a lot of speed. For eight innings the Yanks were unable to register a run, and it was an error in the ninth by Dugan which paved the way for this lone tally just as the game was about over. The Yanks got six hits off Johnson, and five of these were scattered through the first eight innings, and came at times when they did no damage.

Whitey Witt, in centre field, gave Johnson good support, and he grabbed five rockets out in that territory, some of them being difficult chances. Baker poled the ball to deep centre in the sixth, and it looked as if the ball was going to the fence, but little Witt made a catch which won him a storm of applause. Duffy Lewis made his first hit of the season when he got a single to right in the second inning.

For three innings Shore had the Mackmen puzzled, and it looked as if he was in great form. The Athletics went out in order, nine men facing him in these first three rounds. Pipp tapped Johnson for a single in the first inning with two out, and Baker forced him at second. A swiftly executed double play snuffed out the Yanks' hopes in the third. Shore, the first batter up, was hit, but Sam Vick promptly hit into a double play, Thomas to Shannon to Burns.

Shore started to get wild in the fourth. Shannon was tossed out at first by Peckinpaugh, and Merlin Kopp got a pass. After Bobby Roth died at first for the second out, George Burns smashed a triple to right centre and sent Kopp home. Witt hit a single to centre field, which Ping Bodie permitted to trickle past him, and Burns scored, while Witt went all the way around to third base. Thomas ended the inning when he fanned. These two runs were plenty to give the Athletics the victory, for Johnson had the Yankees under his control from the start.

The seventh was the undoing of Shore. Witt got a single through Pratt, and Thomas walked. Dugan laid down a sacrifice, which pushed the runners along a base. Shore then paid a flattering compliment to Perkins by passing him intentionally. The Yanks figured on Johnson being a poor hitter, and depended on a double play to pull them out of the difficulty. By this time Shore had completely forgotten the location of the plate, and he walked Johnson, forcing Witt home with a run.

That was Shore's finish. He was sent to the bench, and Mogridge came in to stop the Mackmen. Mogridge wasn't much of a success as a life saver, for Shannon, the first batsman who faced him, hammered a double off the right-field wall. It got away from Vick, who hasn't yet learned how to play those one-cushion shots off the concrete. Shannon's double sent Thomas and Perkins home and landed Johnson on third base. After Kopp fanned, Roth got his first hit, a bad infield bounder which was just out of Peck's reach. Shannon went to third.

Roth took a big lead off first, and Ruel tossed the ball down and had him trapped. Roth went on to second, and Pipp made a throw to second which Peck had a hard time stopping. In the meantime Shannon scored. Burns lofted to Peck for the third out, after the Athletics had batted all the way around. Mogridge settled down in the next inning and let the White Elephants down without a hit. Frank O'Doul, from the Pacific Coast, was sent in to bat for Mogridge in the eighth, and he struck out.

The Yanks went into the last of the ninth with the score 7 to 0 against them. The crowd overlooked this handicap when the Yanks started something which looked as if it might develop into a rally. Baker slapped an easy grounder to Dugan, who made a low throw to Burns, and Baker was safe. Pratt hammered a double to centre and sent Baker to third. Baker was held at third while Thomas threw Lewis out at third. Bodie sent a sacrifice fly to Witt and Baker romped home. The rally ended when Ruel was thrown out at first by Thomas.

FIRST DEFEAT FOR ROBINS.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., April 29.—The Robins broke into the game's lost column of the standing of the clubs here this afternoon, when they lost the second game of their series to the Phillies by a score of 8 to 5, for their first defeat of the season.

Leon Cadore, who started the game for the visitors, was unable to control the ball in the opening round, and Jack Coombs's crew scored half their runs in that session, making only one hit. Jacobs, who pitched for the Phillies, was nicked for a dozen hits, and four of them were bunched in the fourth inning, and resulted in the Robins scoring three times.

In the Phillies' half of the first, Callahan walked and went to second on a single by Williams. Olson let Bancroft's grounder go through his legs, and the bases were filled. Luderus grounded out and Callahan scored. Whitted walked, filling the bags again. Baird also drew a pass, forcing Williams home. Bancroft scored, while Pearce was forced out by Baird, and when Magee threw the ball past first, trying for a double play, Whitted counted. The Phillies added three more runs to their total in the third when Williams and Bancroft hit safely. Luderus sacrificed, and on Whitted's out Williams scored. Baird singled and Bancroft scored. Pearce singled to right, sending Baird to third. At this stage the Phillies pulled a successful double steal, Baird scoring and Pearce going to second. Adams followed with a hit to right, but Pearce died trying to score.

SUNDAY BASEBALL ONE STEP NEARER

Aldermen Pass Ordinance by 64 to 0 and Mayor Is Expected to Sign It Soon.

Metropolitan baseball fans will soon have an opportunity to witness the local major league teams in Sunday games. The Board of Aldermen at its meeting yesterday passed, by a vote of 64 to 0, an ordinance providing for legalized baseball games, to which an admission fee may be charged, after 2 o'clock P. M. on Sundays, and the only remaining formality is for Mayor John F. Hylan to sign the ordinance. The city's Chief Executive will probably do this before the end of the week, it is said at the City Hall.

Officials of the local teams were unprepared yesterday to announce their plans for Sunday baseball. The Giants and Brooklyn will be playing at their home grounds the latter part of the week, and it is probable the teams will arrange for games next Sunday if Mayor Hylan signs the ordinance without delay. This would bring the Giants in a clash against Philadelphia at the Polo Grounds and the Robins against Boston at Ebbets Field. Definite steps toward arranging the games, however, will be deferred until Mayor Hylan signs the ordinance. If the Mayor does not sign or veto the ordinance within ten days it will automatically become operative.

The measure was passed almost without controversy. When the question first came up Alderman Wirth of Brooklyn moved that the proposed ordinance be returned to the Committee on General Welfare, so that a public hearing might be had. This motion was favored by Aldermen Falconer, Squires, and Post, but when put to a vote was defeated by 50 to 11. The original motion was then brought up, and the entire body of Aldermen voted affirmatively.

Borough President Frank L. Dowling said after voting in favor of the ordinance, "I am going to add a commandment to the ten, making it eleven, and it is, 'Thou shall play ball on Sunday, a healthy regulation, but thou shalt not be disorderly.'"

When the ordinance becomes operative officials of both leagues will get together and readjust their respective schedules. The league heads are confronted with two alternatives. One is to advance Monday's scheduled games to Sunday throughout the remainder of the season. The other is to move up games from the end of the season. The league officials seem inclined to favor this latter plan because the weather gods in the Summer months are more likely to be lenient than at the end of the season. Baseball men believe it would be advisable to take advantage of the midsummer weather and play seven games a week, as is now done in the Western cities on both major league circuits.

It has been positively announced, however, that there will be no increase in the number of games on the major league schedules. Officials of both leagues have also declared against the playing of double-headers on Sunday. There will be no increase in the price of admissions over those prevailing now for weekday games.

SIX STRAIGHT FOR REDS.

Cincinnati Beats Pittsburgh, 8 to 1, and Leads National League.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 29.—Manager Moran's team won its sixth straight victory today by beating Pittsburgh 8 to 1 and assumed the leadership of the Natonal League, as Brooklyn lost to Philadelphia, thus breaking the tie for first place which has existed since the opening day of the season. Ray Fisher, formerly of the New York Americans, pitched strongly, while Cooper was hit very hard in the first and fifth innings and gave way to Miller.

May Holds Champions to Four Hits and Wins, 1 to 0.

CHICAGO, April 29.—May's pitching enabled St. Louis to beat Chicago 1 to 0 today. Chicago made only four hits and had few chances to score. Jim Vaughn opposed May, and was hit eight times. Sharp fielding, including five double plays, kept St. Louis from additional scores. Hits by Stock, Schultz, and Snyder in the second inning produced the only tally.

DARTMOUTH BEATS MAINE.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., April 29.—Cuddy Murphy's double in the last of the ninth started Dartmouth on the road to a 3-to-2 victory over the University of Maine in the opening of the home baseball season here this afternoon. With two out and the score tied, Murphy hit to deep left and came home on Johnny Murphy's clean single over first. Dartmouth was outhit, but ragged fielding by the visitors kept things even throughout.

WHITE WINS TOURNAMENT.

Defeats Rice in Poggenburg Cup Billiard Handicap.

A sustained rally which lasted over his closing eight innings gave Charles E. White, a Class A player, a victory last night in the deciding game of the Poggenburg Cup amateur handicap 18.2 balkline billiard tournament at the Rational Recreation Academy in Brooklyn. White defeated Julian T. Rice, a Class B player, by a score of 250 to 167 in forty innings. The contest was one of the keenest of the tournament. The victor made high runs of 37 and 31. Rice's highest runs were 40 and 18.

The result gave White a leg on the J. Ferdinand Poggenburg Memorial Cup. The former Class B champion finished the final round with four victories and one setback. Rice, with three victories and two defeats, was second, and George Spear, last year's winner, was third, with a brace of victories and a similar number of defeats.

White failed to attain his usual good form, and it appeared that his efforts to overcome a 75 points handicap would result disastrously. Rice played steadily up to the thirty-second inning, when he was within ten points of victory. The score was 165 for Rice and 155 for White. Here Rice's game faltered and he missed repeatedly. White's stroke improved and he clicked off points consistently until he completed his string in the fortieth inning with an unfinished run of twety-eight. Rice added but two points to his score, collecting three in his thirty-ninth turn at the table.

The golfers qualified for the May tournament and they will be paired in two sixteens to continue at match play. The best gross score was easily made by A. F. Poinsette of The Associated Press, who had a 75.

INTERNATIONAL OFF TODAY.

Reorganized League Headed by Fultz to Begin Season.

The new International League, with David L. Fultz at the helm, will begin its season today. With Sunday baseball probable in Rochester, Buffalo, Binghamton, Newark and Jersey City, the backers of the circuit believe that the league is in for an era of prosperity.

The opening games will be played today, as follows: Buffalo at Jersey City, Toronto at Newark, Rochester at Baltimore, and Binghamton at Reading.

The rejuvenated league has a noteworthy array of managers. All have had long experience in the major leagues and the International circuit should benefit by their extensive knowledge of the game. Bill Donovan, the former leader of the Yankees, will manage Jersey City; Pat Donovan will be the leader in Newark, and George Gibson will manage Toronto; Arthur Irwin will be in charge in Rochester, Frank Schulte in Binghamton, Charley Dooin in Reading, Jack Dunn in Baltimore, and George Wiltse in Buffalo.

Joseph J. Lannin is interested in both the Buffalo and Newark club, and he predicts that the new league will have a prosperous season. Mr. Lannin was formerly the owner of the world's champion Red Sox.

FEW DISKS ESCAPE ARIE'S DEADLY GUN

Trapshooters from all sections of the Empire State got away to a good start at the Travers Island Traps of the New York Athletic Club yesterday in the sixty-first annual shoot of the New York State Sportsmen's Association for the clay bird championship of the State. The conditions call for a shoot at 300 targets, 100 targets to be trapped on each of three days. A gunner to be eligible must have been a resident of New York State for at least ninety days prior to the start of the shoot.

When the last bird was trapped it was found that the leader was F. S. Wright of Buffalo, winner of the championship in 1914. He had a grand total of 95 out of a possible 100 targets. The second gunners were W. H. Patterson, also of Buffalo, and Tracy H. Lewis of the New York Athletic Club, each having a total of 93. Then came R. L. Spotts and W. S. Silkworth, both of the New York A. C., and the State champion, H. J. Prendergast of Phoenix, with totals of 92.

In the open Victory Shoot at 175 targets the high-over-all gunner was Mark Arie, Chicago, Ill., who had a grand total of 169 targets. He also won Class A in the morning with 74 out of a possible 75 targets. Both the morning and the Victory Shoots were divided into four classes. The winner in Class B in the morning was J. N. Morehead, Charlotte, N. C.; in Class C, E. T. Hall, Buffalo, N. Y., and in Class D, L. N. Smith, Buffalo, N. Y.

Class B of the Victory Shoot also was taken by Morehead, with a score of 165 targets. In Class C the winner was J. B. Fontaine, Philadelphia, Penn., with a card of 160. George J. Roll, Chicago, Ill., and Alan Smith, Buffalo, N. Y., tied in Class D with cards of 154 targets each.

CUDGEL TAKES THE CECIL.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 29.—Commander Ross's great handicap horse Cudgel proved that he is now at the top of his form when he galloped off with the Cecil Handicap at a mile and seventy yards this afternoon. There was some disappointment because Harry Payne Whitney's Preakness candidate, Vindex, did not oppose the Ross five-year-old, but the ease with which Cudgel carried the crushing impost of 132 pounds and disposed of F. D. Weir's War Machine was sufficient to show that, though it was his first start of the season, he is in grand condition. Cudgel led his solitary opponent all the way, gradually increasing his lead until he had an advantage of six lengths at the end. Cudgel was conceding thirty-five pounds to War Machine.

There was a shock for the form students in the first race for two-year-olds, which was supposed to be between Mr. Whitney's Amase and the Kentucky Stable's Oleaster. The Glen Riddle Farm started Rocking Horse for the first time, and this son of Trap Rock raced away from the favored pair to win by three lengths.

HORSES ENTERTAIN SOLDIERS AND TARS

For twenty-four years there have been horse shows at Durland's Riding Academy as each Spring came around. There always have been high-class horses in the ring and spectators drawn from the ranks of society, but last night at the opening there was, in addition, a victory spirit prevalent which gave unusual snap and life to the proceedings. The show was held for the benefit of the Motor Corps of America, and members of that organization supplemented the regular Horse Show Committee and kept things moving every minute of the session.

Mounted police and the Motor Corps itself did their share to entertain the large crowd, and the evolutions of these bodies were as liberally applauded as the most popular of the equine victors. The army and navy also were brought in to add variety to the entertainment, among the early visitors being Admiral A. H. Robertson and Commander Irving Mayfield.

Other social features were provided by the Advisory Committee, which included Mrs. Burke Roche, Mrs. James Speyer, Mrs. Adolf Ladenburg, Mrs. Edwin Gould, and others.

There was the keenest kind of competition in most of the classes, but in one of the largest and best competitions of the night none was found to dethrone Miss Alice A. Dodsworth's Thus, which won the championship of the recent Brooklyn show. There were a dozen horses in the ring for this class for saddle horses over 15.2 hands in which cups were awarded to the first and second. The beautiful bay Thus was as smoothly gaited as ever, but admirers of Miss Dodsworth's champion had been by no means sure that she would repeat her victories across the bridge. An old favorite, K'Nut, showed much better for Miss Barbara Guggenheim, than he had in Brooklyn, and this old-fashioned chestnut took the fancy of many of the old-timers.

There was a long deciding trial, but at the end the blue was pinned on Thus and Miss Guggenheim's entry received the red. It was a notable triumph for women riders, as Miss Dodsworth and Miss Guggenheim were the only women appearing in the large class. The third ribbon went to S. C. Munoz's Don Carlos, while R. Lawrence Smith's Meadow Lark, a forward competitor in Brooklyn, had to be content with fourth place.

Mrs. F. P. Garvan was supreme in the pony classes, her brown mare Tissington Belle capturing two blues. In the first event Tissington Belle was driven by an amateur and was placed first over Miss Constance Sala Regan's The Moth, driven by the owner. In a later class Mrs. T. J. Regan held the reins over The Moth, but Tissington Belle again was victorious, with Mrs. E. B. Moffit's Fire Flirt second and The Moth third.

Another woman driver to capture a blue was Miss Louise Beavor Webb, who drove A. W. Atkinson's Ideal Mathias with great skill in the class for harness horses exceeding 15.1 hands. There was a long trial between the winner and Mr. Atkinson's other entry, Marcel, but the all-round quality and steadiness of Ideal Mathias prevailed.

The awards:

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Pressure is moderately high over Ontario, the lake region, and on the North Pacific Coast and generally low elsewhere, with very irregular distribution in the West and Southwest. As a result, cloudy weather prevails east of the Rocky Mountains, with rain over the greater portion of this area, except from the Dakotas eastward through the lower lake region. In the extreme West the weather was fair.

It is considerably cooler in the Lower Mississippi Valley, and temperatures below the seasonal average now predominate east of the Rockies, except in the Northwest. In the extreme West temperatures remain well above the April average.

Unsettled, showery weather may be expected during the next two days east of the Mississippi River, except that it will be fair Wednesday in the lower lake region, the Middle Atlantic States, and New England.

Winds for Wednesday and Thursday along the North Atlantic Coast will be moderate north, with clearing weather; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate north and northeast, fair Wednesday, cloudy Thursday; South Atlantic Coast, moderate shifting, with showers, except east off the Southern Florida Coast, fair.

FORECAST TODAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York—Fair Wednesday. Thursday cloudy, probably showers.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair Wednesday, showers at night or on Thursday.

Northern New England—Fair Wednesday, preceded by rain in Eastern Maine. Thursday fair, except showers in Vermont.

12 M.	56	52	11 P. M.	49	46

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 51; for the corresponding date last year it was 56; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 54. The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 48; at 8 P. M. it was 52. Maximum temperature, 56 degrees at 2:15 P. M.; minimum, 46 degrees at 7 A. M. Humidity, 68 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 87 per cent. at 8 P. M.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

The stock market yesterday was surrounded by developments likely to have greater influence on future operations than was apparent in the session's trading. Because of the elimination of the Steel Corporation's extra dividend and the poor statement of earnings in the first quarter, stocks will be subjected during the next few days to a sentimental factor which in an ordinary period might be expected to test rather thoroughly the underlying structure. The sort of speculation in evidence during the last month has been of a character which ignored many events in industry, events of an unfavorable nature, and for this reason the Street was quite evenly divided after the Steel Directors' meeting in opinion on whether or not prices would be impelled to reaction. The reduction of the extra disbursement had been generally expected, and in some quarters the elimination of the payment had been looked for. As far as the dividend was concerned, it may be that the market has passed through a discounting process, but the income account was not as satisfactory as had been hoped for. The earnings in March, amounting to $9,390,000, were not only approximately $3,000,000 less than January, but were the smallest for any month since May, 1915, when the steel industry was just beginning to feel the effect of the expanding demand for war materials. The quarter's net income left about $2.20 a share available for common stock dividends after prior drafts upon income had been provided for, a total which justified the Directors in limiting the declaration to $1.25 per share. The statement of earnings promises to cause unusual study in financial circles because for the first time the corporation decided not to report the amount of revenue reserved for income and excess profits taxes. The corporation, of course, is only one of a number of companies to show a sharp falling off of earnings this year, but its prominent position in the industry lends to its results peculiar influence for the stock market. The reception of the statement by the speculative community today holds forth interesting possibilities.

Another event to add to interest in speculative phenomena was the harder tone of call money yesterday, coupled with information showing that some of the banks were closely scrutinizing collateral pledged for stock market loans. Money lent at 6 per cent. during the period of heaviest demand, easing to 5¾ per cent. near the end of the day. It was the first time in a week or more that the rate had risen above 5½ per cent. Stocks, with transactions again in excess of 1,500,000 shares, were sold heavily, but most of the time fresh speculative demands were great enough to absorb the offerings without permitting material price concessions, except in the case of several specialties which had risen lately with much rapidity. A broad survey of the price list at the close failed to show that the insistence of traders for stocks had subsided even though the consensus in brokerage offices was that the short interest had been greatly extended since the middle of last week. Steel common, far from reflecting nervousness over the Directors' meeting to be held after the close of the market, gained a good-sized fraction. The shipping stocks were buoyant and several steel and equipment issues of the lesser order gained considerable ground. The so-called standard rails declined slightly for the most part, reflecting a waiting attitude which may have been controlled by a desire on the part of traders to hear results of the meeting during the day between railway managers and an official of the Railroad Administration over the much-involved allocation of equipment and the payment therefor. Postmaster General Burleson's decision to surrender the cables to their owners within a fortnight, and the promise to restore the land lines later, acted to stimulate the telephone and telegraph shares. Doubtless the expectation of getting their property back had no less effect on share owners than the proof supplied that Government ownership of wire communications had received its deathblow.

Applying the Brakes.

There are signs that some brokers are becoming uneasy over the wild desire of the trading public to buy anything New Street says is going up. The brokers are applying the brakes, as they say in the commission houses, but thus far the old-style brakes—big margins and high carrying charges—have been of small avail in checking the bullish urge. Now, these brokers say, they simply have to refuse orders, on occasion, and they insist they are looking with no favor at all on that popular pastime of the winning bull-pyramiding.

Some of the most skilled traders in Wall Street have been making money recently on the short side of the market. This may sound strange, considering the recent nature of the market, but it is, nevertheless, true. These skilled traders, backed by very high-class organizations, are taking advantage of the bulges to sell stocks short, and for those in position to make quick turns, the practice has been profitable in the extreme. It is a dangerous practice, however, and one not generally recommended to the average trader. It requires a tape-reading ability of a high order, and brokerage connections of the best, and at that it is not always a sure way to wealth.

Equipment Shares Lower.

The muddle over the allocation of railway equipment, and the incidental question of who is to pay for the cars and locomotives, now that they are coming into being, was reflected in the market for equipment shares, most of which finished the day fractionally lower than on Monday. Railway Steel Spring was an exception to the rule, but even this stock lost about half of its early gain before the close. The conference of railway executives and Swager Sherley, representing the Railroad Administration, was not productive of anything the stock market could plume itself on and left much to be desired. As it appears now, it will be some little time before anybody knows just what is to be done in this matter, and as the matter involves something like $200,000,000, it is serious enough to give pause to those who might otherwise be inclined to bull the equipment stocks.

It has been the inclination for a considerable time to consider the dividend declaration on United States Steel common, and the report of earnings, as a barometer of conditions not only in the steel industry but in the entire industrial structure as well. On this basis the elimination of the extra dividend, and the report of meagre earnings as compared with the halcyon days of not long ago, would normally be construed as an unfavorable omen. From the action of Steel Common in yesterday's market there were apparently many who believed that the extra dividend of 1 per cent. would be declared, for the stock was firm, in fact at one time climbed to 102. It remains, however, for today's market to determine whether the Steel dividend holds the special significance that it did in the past.

Oil Shares Weak.

There was a decided off tone throughout the oil group yesterday, many of the speculative favorites of the last few days suffering substantial recessions which were attributed rather generally to profit taking. Royal Dutch shares were under pressure throughout the day, the American shares declining 4½ points and the New York shares 3¼. Mexican Petroleum and Texas Company also lost ground. One of the exceptions was Texas & Pacific which closed with a fractional gain.

Wire Stocks Advance.

The announcement by Postmaster General Burleson that arrangements would be completed rapidly for the return of the wire companies to private control was directly reflected in the market action of the two largest companies. American Telephone and Telegraph advanced 3 points and Western Union, on a very moderate turnover, made a gain of almost as much.

Oils Popular in Paris.

Word from abroad shows that the oil stocks are enjoying a degree of activity on the Paris Bourse which is commensurate with that which has been obtaining here for some time. Mexican Eagle and Royal Dutch are reported as features of the market.

Market Inconsistencies.

Outstanding inconsistencies in yesterday's stock market were the quotations for United States Rubber, Reading and Railway Steel Spring. The first, paying no dividend, sold at 87¾, the second paying $4, sold at 84⅝, and the last, paying an $8 dividend, was quoted at 87¾.

Irregularity in Rails.

While the majority of the shares in the railroad group eased off in yesterday's trading, there were exceptions. These chiefly were among the so-called oil-rails, but Union Pacific, which sold off in the preceding market, regained a point yesterday. Southern Pacific and Reading moved off fractionally and the low-priced rails which do not have oil prospects followed suit. St. Louis & San Francisco preferred gained more than a point. New York Central and New Haven registered fractional gains.

Atlantic Gulf in Demand.

Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies attracted the attention of the professional element early in yesterday's trading session and before the close the stock had found an active and considerable following. After an opening at 139 the stock sold to a new high at 147¾ and eased off a little more than a point on profit-taking at the close. While the stock was advancing it was reported that the company intended to enter new lines of business which would insure an immediate and substantial return.

Copper Price Pegged.

For several weeks the price of copper has ranged between 15 and 15½ cents a pound, which has given rise to the belief that the producers have pegged the quotation. It is admitted that the price is affording little business, but apparently the mining companies are willing to bide their time rather than make too heavy sacrifices in order to create a demand for the metal.

The Western Pacific Dividend.

Directors of the Western Pacific Railroad Corporation have declared a 1 per cent. dividend on the preferred stock after receiving permission from the Director General of Railroads to do so. The disbursement is ½ per cent. less than the last regular quarterly dividend which was paassed by the Board. The stock responded on a light turnover with a fractional advance.

NO EXTRA DIVIDEND ON STEEL COMMON

NO HINT AS TO WAR TAXES

Earnings for Quarter Decline Steadily, March Being Poorest Month Since May, 1915.

No extra dividend on the common stock of the United States Steel Corporation was declared yesterday; only the regular 1¼ per cent. quarterly dividend. Three months ago 1 per cent. extra was paid and six months ago 2 per cent. Before that there had been a number of quarterly 3 per cent. extra payments. The regular dividend of 1¾ per cent. was announced on the preferred. The preferred dividend is payable May 29 to holders of record of May 5 and the common dividend on June 28, to holders of record of June 3.

The passing of the extra dividend was not surprising, for there had been persistent rumors that the action had been decided upon. The dividend announcement was not made until about twenty minutes after the close of the market, as is the custom of the corporation.

The report of earnings was a surprise in that it made no announcement of the reservation for war taxes. Heretofore, the corporation has indicated in each of its quarterly statements the tax reservation, and it has been one of the chief objects of interest. Yesterday's statement announced that reservations have been made, but the public was not informed as to the amount. In the last quarter of 1918 the corporation set aside $50,000,000 for taxes.

The net earnings of the corporation for the first quarter of this year were $32,513,384, compared with $36,354,165 in the preceding quarter. The monthly earnings show a continuous decline from January to March. In the latter month the earnings were $9,390,190, or the lowest since May of 1915. The earnings available for the common were equivalent to $2.20 a share for the quarter.

Following the meeting of the Directors, Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the board, refused to comment on the elimination of the extra dividend or on the report of earnings. The cancellation of the extra dividend of 1 per cent. was a saving of more than $5,000,000 for the quarter. The surplus for the corporation after dividend payments was $4,822,316, or not quite enough to permit of a declaration of an extra of 1 per cent. without infringing on surplus. For the quarter ended Dec. 31 of last year the surplus after the payment of an extra 1 per cent. was $2,997,255.

STEEL MEN MEET IN SECRET.

Rumored That Price Ultimatum Was Sent to Railway Administration.

Members of the General Committee of the American Iron and Steel Institute met at the office of Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the Steel Corporation, yesterday morning. Some of those present, besides Judge Gary, were Eugene G. Grace, President of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation; James A. Farrell, President of the United States Steel Corporation; A. C. Dinkey, President of the Midvale Steel and Ordnance Company, and John A. Toppin, President of the Republic Iron and Steel Company.

No statement concerning the meeting was given out, but it was understood that it considered the suggestion that the steel manufacturers confer directly with the Railroad Administration as to steel prices. Information that the Railroad Administration was not averse to such a conference was sent to the Industrial Board of the Department of Commerce in a telegram by Director General Hines. Secretary Reid of the Industrial Board came to this city yesterday and just before the meeting of the steel men consulted with Mr. Gary. When the steel manufacturers were called together Secretary Reid left the room until after they had adjourned.

After the meeting Judge Gary said no statement would be given out. Many rumors were current as to the proceedings, some of which came indirectly from what would be considered authoritative sources. One was that the steel men had delivered an ultimatum to the Railroad Administration. It was asserted that the sense of the meeting was that if the Railroad Administration wanted to discuss prices with the steel manufacturers it could send representatives to New York just as could any other customer, but that the steel manufacturers were unwilling to make any further concessions in order to bring about stabilization.

CERRO DE PASCO REPORT.

The Cerro de Pasco Copper Corporation, which operates mines in Peru, reports gross income from the sale of metals in 1918, amounting to $22,867,807, a decline of $2,106,275 over the preceding year. After adding in income from investments and the value of the inventory as of Dec. 31, the full revenue for the year was $27,422,806. Operating expenses of $9,659,536 were approximately $1,827,000 larger than the year before, the reserve for mine depletion was $767,000 larger and the reserve for taxes increased $488,441. As a result of the smaller gross earnings and the heavy write-offs the profit was no more than $441,916, compared with $5,078,868 in 1917.

Dividends totalling $4,393,352 were paid, necessitating a draft upon surplus to the extent of $3,951,436. The profit and loss surplus at the end of 1918 amounted to $7,290,830, compared with $11,447,916 a year before. The report, issued yesterday, said that plans were being worked out for the construction of a large, modern smelter, nearer the coast than the present plant.

BIG FRENCH AND U. S. BANKS IN ALLIANCE

Corporation Formed in Which Half of Stock Will Be Held in Each Country.

$1,250,000,000 RESOURCES

Primarily a Commercial Institution, It Is Announced—To Foster Trade Between Both Nations.

The French-American Banking Corporation, with a paid-in capital of $2,000,000 and a surplus of $500,000, has been organized by the National Bank of Commerce in New York, the First National Bank of Boston, and the Comptoir National d'Escompte of France. The stock of the new company will be owned by the American and French interests in equal shares. The National Bank of Commerce and the Boston institution will each hold 25 per cent.

The object of the new corporation is to facilitate financial and trade relations between the two countries. James S. Alexander, President of the Bank of Commerce; Daniel G. Wing, President of the First National of Boston, and Maurice Silvester, American representative of the French bank, are among the incorporators. Mr. Silvester will be President of the new company.

The three banks behind this new concern represent a combined capital and surplus of more than $125,000,000 and combined resources in excess of $1,280,000,000. Representation on the Board of Directors will be equally divided between the American and French groups. Each are to have six members on the board.

According to Mr. Alexander, this new company will provide banking facilities for Americans who may have business to transact in France which will equal the facilities Frenchmen themselves enjoy.

"This alliance of great French and American banks represents, we believe, an efficient instrumentality to facilitate and foster trade relations between the United States and France which the new era of world trade demands," said Mr. Alexander yesterday. "We consider it a most practical way to realize the necessary co-operation between French and American banking, and to give America's business men the benefit of the experience and connections of native French bankers that could be given to them in no other way.

"The French American Banking Corporation is an organization which has behind it the good-will of the three established institutions which hold its stock. It is primarily a commercial bank, and it is expected it will engage in the acceptance business and in general assist in financing trade between the United States and France, including the French colonies in all parts of the world."

Mr. Wing, in commenting on the new corporation, said that the entire facilities of both of the American banks will be placed at the disposal of the French American Banking Corporation, and that the new arrangement will enable the Comptoir National d'Escompte de Paris to extend the best of terms and services to the French importers and exporters who are interested in developing or extending their trade with America.

The Comptoir National d'Escompte de Paris, which is one of the three largest banks in France, has approximately 200 branches in France and also has branches in England, Spain, Belgium, Australia, New Zealand, and India, and is expected shortly to open branches in Alsace and Lorraine. It also has working arrangements with the French colonial banks in Algeria, Egypt, East Africa, Madagascar, Martinique, and Indo-China.

BUYING SENDS COTTON UP.

Liverpool Strength Precedes Drive by Trade Here.

A very much better Liverpool market than the American trade had looked for sent first prices in yesterday's cotton market up with a rush. In the first hour buying was on a very good scale and appeared to come from all the principal quarters.

The Liverpool market apparently inspired a considerable amount of confidence among local ring traders, who joined in the buying movement with enthusiasm, and some of the Wall Street houses which have recently been prominent in cotton also bought heavily on balance, so that before the session was more than an hour old virtually all of the new style contracts, in which virtually all the trading interest was centred, were selling at new high records. The market at this time was up 35 to 45 points over Saturday's closing figures.

Then, at the top, old trade interests and some of the speculative Southern houses started selling and the drive which this brought about precipitated the price level down for the entire gain and carried it in the early afternoon to levels 20 to 35 points below last week's last prices. In this selling, probably most of the cotton offered represented profit-taking by last week's biggest bulls, which is to say, the technical position was not greatly benefited because no new short interest was created. However, it was assumed by some keen operators that the profit-taking sales did not hurt the market to any great extent, for those who sold on yesterday's bulge are quite likely to buy back again at no far distant date.

The strength at Liverpool, under these circumstances, was regarded with much satisfaction by the bulls, who profess to see in this development a most favorable situation. The foreign goods market was a deterring influence a few weeks ago, because of the backing up of stocks at the mills, and the fortnight suspension of spinning activities at Manchester and elsewhere is thought to have rectified this. Now that the spinners are again opening up, the goods market is reported active and spot markets abroad are displaying strength. The American spot markets yesterday also reflected a more active situation and most of them reported higher prices.

COOPERATION WITH OUR CUSTOMERS

THE value of personal acquaintance and relationship between our officers and our customers has always been recognized by this institution. It was foreseen that as the bank grew larger the tendency might be to reduce business transactions to a mere mechanical routine and thus lose this valuable personal contact. To overcome this possibility it has been our policy to keep in close touch with our customers and to ascertain and conform whenever possible to their requirements.

EXECUTIVES TAKE UP EQUIPMENT SNARL

ARRANGE ANOTHER MEETING

Association Will Name Special Committee to Discuss Situation with Federal Board.

Following a special meeting of members of the Association of Railway Executives and Swager Shirley, Director of the Division of Finance of the United States Railroad Administration, which was also attended by local bankers, T. DeWitt Cuyler, Chairman of the Association, announced that a special committee would be appointed by the Association to go to Washington and confer with the Railroad Administration on the equipment situation.

Earlier in the day the Standing Committee of the Association was in conference on routine matters dealing with the preparation of suggestions for remedial legislation which will be presented to Congress at the approaching special session. But the afternoon meeting was by far the most important of the two, as it was taken to indicate that the Railroad Administration wants the help of the railroad executives in untangling the financial and physical muddle surrounding the allocation of about $200,000,000 worth of equipment.

While nothing more definite than the statement that the Association of Railway Executives would appoint the special committee to confer with Railroad Administration officials on the equipment problem, it is understood that the question of financing the equipment which has not as yet been accepted by the different carriers was considered.

In banking circles it was learned that an effort would be made to solve the question of paying for the equipment which had been ordered at different times by the Administration, but which had not been accepted by the roads. Of this there is some $200,000,000 worth, in round figures. Some of this has been paid for by the issuance of certificates by the Director General, which are promises to pay, and it is understood that this method is not working out satisfactorily.

Among the suggestions which will be made for financing the equipment, which was ordered by the Government at war prices and which the carriers refused to accept, will be one to the effect that the Railroad Administration write off a fair part of the high price paid for cars and locomotives, as one of the costs of the war—as was done in the case of standardized ships by the United States Shipping Board—and then create a national equipment trust, holding the equipment in reserve to be used in replacements.

Railroad bankers and operators said yesterday that in their opinion more than 75 per cent. of the cars and locomotives so held would be absorbed by the carriers within a year's time.

The total amount involved in the equipment ordered by the Railroad Administration in 1918 and 1919 was, roughly, $400,000,000, all of which was originally allocated to the roads which were taken over by the President. Of this amount the railroads have accepted about half. General Henry W. Thornton, who was in charge of English railroads during the war period, was a guest of the association and described railroad conditions on the other side. He was formerly connected with the Pennsylvania and Long Island Railroads.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The Yale & Towne Manufacturing Company has issued a booklet souvenir for the company's semi-centennial, which shows that for the first ten years of the company's existence its gross business amounted to only $1,600,000, whereas in 1918 the sales aggregated $76,000,000.

The Guaranty Trust Company has been appointed trustee under the mortgage securing $6,500,000 of the 6 per cent. bonds of the Caddo Oil and Refining Company. The Liberty National Bank has been made registrar and the Central Union Trust Company transfer agent.

A. H. Lamborn of Lamborn & Co. has prepared a special report on sugar. Mr. Lamborn has just returned from Europe, where he went to study the sugar situation in detail.

St. Louis Transit Company

Improvement Twenty Year Five Per Cent Gold Bonds due October 1, 1924

ON April 12, 1919, the United States District Court at St. Louis appointed a Receiver for the property of the United Railways Company of St. Louis, the corporation guaranteeing the Improvement Twenty-Year Five Per Cent Gold Bonds due October 1, 1924, of the St. Louis Transit Company.

The undersigned have been requested by the holders of a large amount of the above bonds to form an INDEPENDENT COMMITTEE made up of members representing the various localities in which the bonds are most widely held. In view of the situation of the said bonds and the appointment of a Receiver, it is very important that the holders of the bonds, for their own protection, should organize at once for united action under a committee having adequate power and authority.

Holders of the bonds are therefore requested to deposit their bonds with the Depositary or the Sub-Depositaries named below, on the terms and conditions set forth in a bondholders agreement to be dated April 22d, 1919. All bonds so deposited must be in negotiable form and bear the unmatured coupons. All depositors will be entitled to receive certificates of deposit issued in their names in negotiable form.

Are You Seeking Real Production?

IT MATTERS NOT how limited or how extensive the scope of an enterprise may be, everyone—manufacturing or contemplating manufacture—is confronted with certain vital questions.

SLOCUM-AVRAM-SLOCUM MANAGEMENT

3. Commercial worth.
4. Most economical method of development.
5. Expense of development warranted by commercial worth.
6. Value of enterprise as an investment.
7. Proper tooling for economical production thus providing for standardization and interchangeability of parts.

Knowledge of these factors spells "PREPAREDNESS" and preparedness spells "SUCCESS."

With these points soundly determined, economy and efficiency must result. If, however, you have not soundly determined these all-important elements, you are not prepared for production.

The S-A-S MANAGEMENT, by reason of its exceptional experience and laboratory facilities, can apply its methods of investigation, development and production and determine for you in advance what you may expect from your enterprise in the future. Uncertainty is thus reduced to a minimum, while the all too frequent speculative elements are practically eliminated.

If you are facing difficult problems in development or production, our services are at your command, and if necessary we will assume management of your product—its development and manufacture—in our own mechanical laboratories.

BRITISH INDUSTRIAL CRISIS

England has come to the place where the working people, in a practically solid organization, re-enforced by her best brains, are presenting demands which mean an absolute revolution of industrial conditions.

A brief resume of this situation is contained in one of our recent Labor Bulletins, of which we have a few copies remaining. The lines which have been followed in England are the lines which will be followed here to a very marked degree. For your own good, write for a copy of Labor Bulletin L-121.

GRAIN DROPS IN CHICAGO.

Government Wheat Flour Purchase Dictum Helps Break Market.

CHICAGO, April 29.—Tremendous price-smashing took place today on the Board of Trade. Holders of grain and provisions competed on a big scale to unload and stop losses on a declining market.

Accompanying the break and forming a powerful aid to the sentiment for a greatly cheaper level of values was a notice from the Federal Wheat Director that the Government would discontinue until further announcement any further purchases of wheat flour for export excepting first clears and victory mixed flours. The purpose was stated to be to stop speculative fever.

The close found corn prices virtually the lowest of the day, 9⅝ to 11⅛c. under yesterday's close, with May $1.55½ to $1.56; July at $1.53¾ to 1.54¼, and September at $1.51 to $1.51½. There was a break of $1.30 a barrel on pork.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

There was an irregular movement to the market at the close of an active session yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange, but final quotations showed gains in a majority of the issues, especially in the industrials. Railroad shares, with the exception of Texas Pacific, which gained a point, and Southern Pacific, which was fractionally higher, had minor losses. Prices at the very end receded slightly as a result of realizing sales and speculation was spotty, giving the general market an unsettled tone.

Are You Interested in the Operation of a Coal Mine?

¶ If you are financially interested in the operation of a coal mine you should investigate the service we can offer you. We are giving our clients the benefit of thirty years successful experience in the management and operation of coal mines.

¶ We have developed principles of practice which are most valuable now when after-war conditions demand highly capable supervision of coal properties.

¶ We undertake the management of mines with or without a separate agreement for the sale of the out-put. Our broad service includes also the financing of mines, appraising coal lands, engineering and supervision of construction. In addition we act as agent for the purchase of the fuel supply of manufacturers, railroads and dealers.

¶ An inquiry will bring an explanation of our service.

Paris Sometimes Behind This City.

According to fashion correspondence from the French capital, smartly dressed women in Paris are wearing rings over their gloves. This is apparently the ultra fad of the moment there, yet some women were doing the same thing here in New York at least a year ago, and mention of the fact was made in THE TIMES. The vogue, however, did not last.

New Dress Shirts.

In the new dress shirts brought out by one of the leading shirt houses, several designs that show a variation over those of previous seasons are featured. The principal material employed is pique, and pleats are used in a number of different combinations to secure a novelly effect in a dignified manner. In one case a box pleat is placed beteween knife pleats. In another, just a very narrow pleat is used.

Wedding Outfits Selling.

Sales of wedding outfits are already reaching record proportions at retail, in spite of the time left before the opening of the June matrimonial season, and all indications point to the biggest business in this class of goods that has ever been done. Not all of the wedding finery selling is meant for the adornment of the bride's person, for bridesmaids also are preparing themselves for their part of the ceremony. The business now being done includes all the various types of lingerie required by a bride, and price appears to be no object. A feature of most of the lingerie sold is the liberal way it is embellished with fine laces, embroideries, and ribbons.

Miniature Memorandum Pad.

A miniature memorandum pad in a case that should prove a welcome accessory to a woman's vanity bag is gotten out by a house that sells the article to the retail trade and also to hotels and others for advertising purposes. The cover to the case is held down by passing the small pencil through two holders on the side, one attached to the front and the other to the back of the case. When the pencil is withdrawn the pad opens immediately. The case is made of a gold-plated silver composition.

Novelties Will Puzzle Buyers.

The extreme novelties that are being featured in the Fall clothing lines should, in the opinion of manufacturers representatives, prove somewhat puzzling to the retailer called upon to make a selection. It was pointed out that, after a dearth of variety during the war, the change to extreme styles may turn out very disconcerting. With the manufacturers already urging the retail trade to be quick about their selections and order plenty of merchandise, the retailer faces a difficult situation. He must decide on what he wants from a multitude of new and novel designs.

Better to Use French Card.

A solicitor is sometimes known by the card he carries. At least, the executive for a large association believes this theory is correct. Upon being handed a card he gives it one glance and, if it shows the least trace of former use, his visitor is immediately classified as a solicitor. "It's false economy," he said, "for a salesman to use the same card time and again. Once is sufficient, if he doesn't want to advertise the fact immediately that he is out to sell something. The salesman who spends a little extra money for an engraved card frequently finds it pays to make a good impression from the start."

Gray Goods Still Active.

Gray goods buying continued active here yesterday, with prices strong. The rising market was said to be causing buyers to try to trade well into the early Fall months, with the mills for the most part unwilling to commit themselves so far ahead at the present figures. While some mills are unwilling to trade further on 39-inch 80 squares at 17½ cents, it is apparent that others do not share this feeling. They were sold yesterday at that price for delivery during the remainder of this month and next. Buyers could do no better than 13⅛ cents on 39-inch 68-72s and 12 cents on 38½-inch 60-48s. Not all mills would take those figures. Sheetings were firmly held on the basis of 13⅛ cents for 36-inch 56-60 four-yard goods.

Summer Fur Sales Increasing.

Sales of summer-weight furs, while they sustained a temporary setback during the recent cold "spell," are becoming so active at retail that they are manifesting themselves in the wholesale trade in the form of duplicate orders of no mean size. Apparently no check has been put on business by the 10 per cent. luxury impost, although there is some argument reported between manufacturers and buyers as to the best way of billing the goods so taxed. In the merchandise demand "chokers" continue strong, with one and two-animal scarfs also reported good. Marten, sable, fisher and other short-haired furs are much wanted. One of the season's surprises is the growing business done in ringtail cat in the cheaper lines. This fur, properly "dolled up," makes a pretty good imitation of marten.

Velour Checks Gro wPopular.

In addition to tricotines and plaids, the favorites in the dress goods trade at the present time, velour checks are showing such strength that they deserve mention among the leaders. One mill organization that has sold up its production of plaids and tricotines to September 1 could place immediately at work a couple of more mills, if they had them, on velour checks. The demand for this class of goods from the skirt manufacturers is especially brisk, but the suit makers also have placed a quantity of orders on them.

NEW FOREIGN CARGO RATES.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Freight rates on general cargo established today by the Shipping Board include $1.25 per 100 pounds, or 65 cents per cubic foot to Rotterdam, Antwerp, Havre, and Bordeaux; $1.50 per 100 pounds, or 85 cents per cubic foot to Copenhagen; $1.60 per 100 pounds, or 85 cents per cubic foot to Marseilles, Cette, Genoa, Naples, and Bilbao; and $1.85 per 100 pounds, or 95 cents per cubic foot, to Barcelona and Valencia.

The rates do not cover the shipment of cotton, which is covered in a special tariff, or refrigerated meats on which a rate of $4.50 per 100 pounds was quoted to Antwerp.

Ribbon Sport Hats Popular.

Smart little hats for sport wear, made of faille or moiré ribbon, are now being shown here. Narrow strips of hemp braid are used on many of them at the joining of the rows of ribbon. Soft, easily-adjusted shapes dominate the models of these hats, and they are seen both in solid color effects and combinations. Trimmings are simple, some of them consisting only of a band and bow of ribbon, or little ball tassels that dangle over the side. Others show the use of novel wool embroideries. Another smart type of sport model is made of a novel pyroxaline braid, on which Angora wool bandings appear at intervals of half an inch. The bodies of these hats are colored and contrast with the wool bandings in white.

KEEN BIDDING AT FUR SALE.

ST. LOUIS, April 29.—The keenest kind of competition marked transactions today on the International Fur Exchange. Despite expressed opinions prior to the sale that while prices would be well maintained, no sensations were expected, today's selling reached the highest levels ever recorded here.

The sale was opened with 265,000 squirrel, which sold at 69 cents and ran quickly up to $1.07, with the bulk of the selling from 75 to 95 cents for good grades. Clear grays were most in demand. Light grays brought almost as much as the darks, and totaled approximately $195,000. Fisher selling was sensational.

Paris buyers bought well, London fairly, with New York, Cleveland, Detroit, and Minneapolis well represented in the high-priced lots. Fourteen hundred fisher totaled over $137,500.

A small presentation of 356 chinchillas brought exciting competition. They were listed at 25 cents advance, but the bidders jumped the bids $2 and $3 a skin. Prices ranged from $4 to $40, bringing over $7,000. The showing of 171,000 marmot opened at 93 cents and mounted to $1.49. Strings of large lots brought from $1.17 to $1.46. The collection totaled approximately $165,000.

The afternoon session was opened with 6,000 marten, which opened at $81, and exciting bidding ran the price up to $210 a skin, the highest price ever recorded. This was paid for six fine dark pelts. The next prices were $195, $192, $165, and $164, with good blending skins selling from $60 to $100 apiece. The bulk of the selling ranged from $30 to $110.

Nine hundred thousand moles closed a day of selling of over 1,350,000 pelts. The moles opened at 20 cents, and were quickly run up to 55 cents. The collection brought $225,000, making the day's total selling approximately $1,150,000, and the sales to date almost $2,200,000.

ASSERTS CITY FACES TEACHERS' WALKOUT

DISCUSS EQUAL-PAY BILL

The city is faced with the possibility of a walkout of 17,000 school teachers if they do not get an increase in pay, Mayor Hylan was told yesterday at the public hearing in the Board of Estimate chamber at the City Hall on the Lockwood-Fertig Teachers' Equal Pay bill. A number of teachers were present to plead with the Mayor to sign the bill, but it was opposed by representatives of real estate interests and others.

"The City of New York is facing a walkout of 17,000 women elementary teachers if you veto this bill, Mr. Mayor," declared Harriet A. Tupper, Principal of Public School 119 in Brooklyn.

Miss Tupper's reply was lost in the laughter that followed, but she added that the teachers would be compelled to seek more lucrative employment. Miss Clara C. Calkins, another teacher, of Public School 6, also spoke in defense of the bill. In the past, she said, the opposition to increase women teachers' salaries was discrimination against her sex.

"Today," she declared, "we have a vote and, instead of swinging a club stuffed with feathers, as they say we have in the past, we wield a club stuffed with iron."

"Have you any idea where we are to get the money with which to increase the teachers' pay?" asked the Mayor.

"Get it by economizing in some other department," Miss Calkins replied. "I think, Mr. Mayor, it was you who suggested some time ago that this method might be resorted to."

"Every one is now interested in the great problem of rents," went on the Mayor. "The greatest and most important question in New York City today is: How can we lower rents? If we raise your pay to the tune of $20,000,000 it will mean a 10 per cent. tax rate increase, I'm told. That, in turn, would mean higher rents. What would the people say to such a proposition?"

"The rent payers are satisfied to have it so," said Miss Calkins.

A number of real estate owners in the room vigorously protested at this. Dr. Henry W. Berg, representing real estate interests, was one of those who vigorously protested against the Mayor signing the bill. He said that if the bill became a law the minimum pay of teachers, now $900, would be increased to $1,500, making the cost to the taxpayers $20,000,000.

Stewart Browne, also representing real estate interests, and John B. Cottrell, President of the Elementary School Men's League of New York City, strongly opposed the bill.

The Mayor also held hearings on a number of legislative bills, and with the exception of one bill, that providing for the removal of the elevated tracks on Forty-second Street, he did not intimate whether or not he would sign any of them. Regarding the Forty-second Street bill, the Mayor remarked: "I'm in favor of that bill." President Dowling of the Borough of Manhattan also said he was in favor of the measure.

When the bill to abolish the police reserve raised during the war and amending the charter to empower the Police Commissioner to appoint a municipal guard of not less than three brigades of three regiments each was called, representatives from the three organizations of the uniformed police, as well as representatives from the Civil Service Reform Association and the Civil Service Forum, opposed it. Warren Leslie, who drew the bill and had Senator James Walker introduce it, declared it was a meritorious measure and its sole purpose was to retain for the city the police reserves.

ESSEX MARKET COURT ENDS

Magistrate Will Sit in New Building for the First Time Today.

David Levine, 18 years old, an errand boy, of 29 Ridge Street, had the distinction of being the last person to be arraigned in the Old Essex Market Courthouse yesterday afternoon before Magistrate Charles E. Simms. Immediately after he had been arraigned in $2,000 bail for examination next Thursday on a charge of grand larceny workmen began tearing down the partitions and moving the records, tables, benches, and railings.

Levine was charged with the theft of a package of jewelry containing fourteen signet rings, valued at $140, and $8 in money, belonging to Philip Kravitzky, a jeweler of 57 Eldrige Street.

The new Courthouse at Second Avenue and Second Street will be opened promptly at 9 o'clock today with a celebration and speeches. Magistrate Simms will preside.

Hylan Reappoints A. S. Prall.

Mayor Hylan yesterday reappointed Anning S. Prass a member of the Board of Education to succeed himself. The term is for seven years. In a letter the Mayor praised Mr. Prall for his work, but said:

"The only mistake in judgment that you have made during your time just expired, that I can see, was voting for a Superintendent of Schools who during his occupancy of his new office seems to be more interested in increasing the school budget to the extent of millions of dollars than in the professional side of his duties."

100 LAWYERS ASKED TO AID RENT PAYERS

DISCUSS PROBLEM TODAY

Lack of Houses Will Diminish May Day Moving—Complaints Still Pour In.

Judge Robert L. Luce, Chairman of the Law Committee of the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering, announced yesterday that he has invited the co-operation of one hundred lawyers in the city to investigate proofs of profiteering and to appear in court in defense of rent payers.

The lawyers will be expected to look after cases in their Assembly Districts, it was said. They have been asked to meet at 12:45 o'clock today in Room 1220 of the Municipal Building. A mass meeting at the City Hall to discuss solutions of the rent problem will be held at 1:30 o'clock.

The indications are that, because of the lack of vacant apartments, the May Day moving tomorrow will be greatly diminished, as compared to former years.

Among the legislative bills before Mayor Hylan yesterday for approval or veto was one prescribing that real estate should pay a tax of 2.25 per $100, beginning January, 1922.

Benjamin W. Burger, a rentpayer opposing the bill, said if it were signed rentals in another year would mount so high that people would have to move from the city.

The office of the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering in the Municipal Building was besieged by persons complaining of extortionate rentals. A tenant of a house in Powell Street, Brooklyn, told of a protest made by tenants when the landlord raised the rentals $3 to $6 a month.

Most of the tenants were served with dispossess notices. In court, they proved they had not been supplied with hot water, and the Magistrate deducted $1.50 from their rent. The landlord served notice that seven of the tenants must move today. More are expected to go tomorrow. The tenants complained they could not find storage places for their goods, and the Mayor's Committee sent for the landlord. One woman who was dispossessed has a son in France and five children at home. Another is a widow whose soldier son has just returned from France and is without a position.

A civil war veteran, with a pension of $35 a month, living in Simpson Street, the Bronx, said his rent was increased from $24 to $29 a month. In one case called to the committee's attention an apartment on Harrison Avenue that rented formerly for $34 was increased to $50, the landlord pressing the tenant to sign a two-year lease. One letter suggested looking into the affairs of a realty corporation controlling eleven houses, where rents had been raised from $1,300 an apartment in 1915 to $2,700 at present.

"I see by the newspapers that so-called rent profiteers are to be investigated," another tenant wrote. "I would like to know when the so-called rent profiteers will have a chance to investigate the city, whose tax rate in 1908 was 1.6 and in 1918 is 2.40, with increased valuations. Everybody is profiteering, therefore investigate everybody. Rent is the cheapest necessity in the market today.

"If you want rent to be cheaper, cut out the city automobiles. Go through the city departments and weed out useless employes with big salaries. There are three men in every department doing the work of one."

What is termed "extortion of the rankest character because the property is paying well now" was the keynote of a letter sent by a man living on West 150th Street. The writer said that before recent increases the rent totaled $14,580, or more than 14 per cent., on a property worth $100,000.

Continuing, he said: "It is 13¼ per cent. on the valuation of $110,000, which is about what the present owner paid for the property about two years ago. The property is assessed at $83,000.

"The operating expenses are: Taxes, $1,926; water, (less than,) $300; insurance, (less than,) $200; interest on first mortgage, ($76,500,) $3,825; interest on second mortgage, ($5,000,) $300; janitor, $300, and coal, (less than,) $2,000, making in all $8,851. Adding $1,000 to this for depreciation, lighting, and repairs, (and no repairs, painting, or papering have been done for two or three years,) brings the total to $9,851. The net profit of the property is annually $4,729. This is over 23 per cent. on an equity of $20,000, and is nearly 16 per cent. on an assured equity of $30,000. This is calculated on the rentals existing today. But the thirty-three families have been served with notices of increases from May 1 which will amount to $2,000 a year more."

Commissioner of Accounts Hirschfield heard several owners and janitors yesterday, and from some obtained the admission that they were evicting tenants after raising rents, to make way for tenants who would pay still more. The Commissioner told some of the property owners he would see that higher assessments are placed against their property.

DRYS IN NEW ORGANIZATION.

"Allied Citizens of America" to Seek Enforcement of Prohibition.

The organization of the Allied Citizens of America for the purpose of obtaining the enforcement of the prohibition amendment to the United States Constitution was announced yesterday by William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, who is named as the President and General Manager of the new organization. Papers on incorporation it was said had been applied for in New York, and it was the intention of the founders to make the organization a national one with State departments and local divisions grouped by counties. The expenses of supporting the work, it was said, would be met by voluntary contributions, membership in the society involving no financial obligations.

The work of the Allied Citizens, according to the announcement, will supplement that of the Anti-Saloon League, but while the league is restricted to the alcohol problem, it is said that the new organization "is broad enough ultimately to afford the means through which the people of each community may deal with any issue involving vindication of Americanism."

In addition to Mr. Anderson the officers of the organization are: Vice President, Rollin O. Everhart, editor American Issue; Secretary and counsel, Robert G. Davey; Treasurer, Andrew B. Wood, and Superintendent, Miss Adella Potter, all of New York.

> The "Allied Citizens of America," incorporated to uphold American ideals and the United States Constitution" is not primarily a prohibition organization, though its first objective under the slogan "Enforce Prohibition to Uphold the Constitution" is to carry into effect the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States—the finest act of altruistic self-restraint ever achieved by and for a great people.
> While the Anti-Saloon League is restricted to the alcohol problem the "Allied Citizens of America" is broad enough ultimately to afford the means through which the people of each community may deal with any issue involving vindication of Americanism.
>
> The Anti-Saloon League is a federation of organizations, especially churches, and the "Allied Citizens of America" is the link through which it establishes direct and vital contact with the invidual voter.
> In the spirit of service and reunciation, putting the welfare of others above personal gratification, the "Allied Citizens of America" holds that personal liberty ends where public injury begins. It is determined that democracy shall not fail an intent and waiting world on a moral issue.
> The "Allied Citizens of America" is not a law enforcement agency in the sense of undertaking to relieve public officials of responsibility for the performance of their sworn duty. It is designed to enable the citizens of each community to secure value received for taxes expended to cover official salaries instead of requiring them at extra expense to hire detectives to do the work that the police, sheriffs and marshals are paid to do. Instead of fighting the local government, the aim of the "Allied Citizens" is to make it efficient and responsive to enlightened public opinion.

William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York and President and General Manager of the Allied Citizens of America, said: "The new movement is formally inaugurated on April 30, the anniversary of the first inauguration of George Washington as President and the beginning of business in the regular way under the Constitution of the United States."

The firm who said that can tell you a lot more about the benefit of using Burroughs Bookkeeping Machines; but the reason quoted above is enough all by itself.

We might substitute "daily balance as a help to the credit man," "prompt statements" or "simplicity of operation" instead of "trial balance," and it would be just as true—not only in Levett, Frank & Company's experience but with scores of other Burroughs users, no matter what method they previously used.

The Burroughs representative can tell you interesting things about a lot of these firms. Give him a few minutes when he calls and learn how the experience of other concerns can be applied to your business.
